Marshall County Fiscal Court Approves Contract for Aurora Project

By Kelsey Edwards
Marshall Times Editor

The Marshall County Fiscal Court held its meeting on October 7, 2025 where they approved the appointment of a Deputy Emergency Management Director, rescheduled a meeting, discussed several projects in Aurora and much more. The meeting opened with a proclamation deeming the week of October 12 through 18 is Kentucky Extension Homemakers' Week. This proclamation honors Extension Homemakers clubs across the state, and Connie Conley, the Marshall County club advisory council president shared with the court what the clubs do in the area. She stated, "Our first club was started in 1935. We probably had 20 clubs, and it started out with home economics, and then economics extension, and then it became the Kentucky extension homemakers association." Conley also noted that in 2026, the organization would mark its 93rd year. She continued on by sharing that the organization focuses on local community service projects. "We believe in staying local. We love to do donations and fundraisers. We have our big game day in March and we choose a donation every year." SHE continued, "We've given to DAV. We love to make monthly donations. We do blessing boxes, the snack program with the family resource center and children at the school, and right now through the winter, we're making scarves and we put gloves and hats with that and it goes to the homeless, the health department, FRC gets some, we just kind of like to spread it around in the community." Following the proclamation, the court heard from Curt Curtner, the Marshall County Emergency Management Director, who asked the court's permission to appoint a deputy director. Curtner stated that the position would be an unpaid volunteer and would be "another tool in Curtner's tool box." Curtner went on to share that he intended to appoint Brian Andurs to the position. Andrus is currently serving as the chief of the West Marshall Fire Department, and also works with the Kentucky State Police. Curtner told the court that Andrus's experience as a fire captain will be a benefit that could be useful in the increase in vehicle accidents on the interstates that often involve semi trucks, which sometimes include hazardous materials. The court did go on to approve the appointment. The court went on to approve an updated contract with Paul Cloud Engineering for the ongoing Aurora package plant project. Kevin Spraggs, the Judge/Executive said the changes made to the contract were at the recommendation of Jason Darnall the County Attorney. Spraggs proposed to the court to consider enclosing the pavilion at the Aurora park to create an indoor event space. Spraggs noted that there are limited options on meeting space in the Aurora area. Spraggs continued on saying that the county maintenance department could handle much of the work, aside from the electric and HVAC work. He also noted that the county had received a donation specifically for the use of updating the Aurora park. Spraggs stated, "Back in 2021 Mr. Mason Cook, former director of the Aurora-Jonathan Creek Tourism Association, and signatory on the organization's bank account, transferred $8,362 from the organization to the Marshall County Parks Department." All three commissioners had expressed interest in the project, however, no formal vote was taken. The court went on to reschedule the November 4 meeting to October 31, 2025 at 9 a.m. Right before the meeting came to a close, Spraggs reminded the public that the animal control shelter is now open on Saturdays and that October is free adoption month. Darnall also encouraged citizens to check the state treasurer's website to see if they have any unclaimed property. The next meeting is set for October 21, 2025 at 9 a.m.

These funds represent the plants' commitment to supporting impactful work that strengthens their community and builds a stronger future," said Lisa Lauck, Owner of Lauck Marketing and CCCAT Meeting Facilitator.

Marshall County Sheriff's Office to Join ICE Program

By Kelsey Edwards
Marshall Times Editor

The Marshall County Sheriff's Office has officially signed documents along with Lyon County, to begin the process of partnering with the agency's 287(g) program. The program aims to enhance community safety by identifying and removing non-citizens who have been convicted of crimes. This comes after, Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) arrests increased across the state of Kentucky. Both Marshall and Lyon County signed on to 287(g) contracts on May 8, 2025. There are three models for the program that agencies can choose to participate in: Task Force, Jail Enforcement and Warrant Service Officer. Both of these sheriff offices have registered under the Task Force Model. According to ice.gov, the Task Force Model allows officers to enforce limited immigration authority while performing routine police duties that include identifying an alien at a DUI checkpoint and sharing information directly with ICE. The Task Force Model of the program was discontinued in 2012 under the Obama administration, but due to the executive order, President Donald Trump put in place on January 20, it was revived. Matt Hilbrecht, the Marshall County Sheriff signed a memorandum of understanding, or MoU, with ICE to allow selected Marshall County deputies to have the ability to serve federal warrants and detain undocumented immigrants. However, the process is in its early stages according to the Sheriff. They are not currently in the program as there is a credentialing process along with a training process that has not been completed which means at this point they have zero authority. According to Hilbrecht, we do not have an increase in ICE activity or issues involving illegal immigration in Marshall County, but having this capability is another tool in their toolbox to enforce those laws if it were to be an issue. The purpose of this, for the Marshall County Sheriff's office is to be able to detain someone should they come across them and have the need to, and not to do the big roundups like other areas have done.

Marshall County Sheriff Launches New Safety Program

By Kelsey Edwards
Marshall Times Editor

The Marshall County Sheriff's Office has just recently launched the High Five Rural Traffic Safety Project also known as High Five. This project is a 12 month program that is intended to increase the use of seatbelts and decrease the number of serious vehicle crashes in the area. To measure the efficacy of the program, Preusser Research Group conducted a study to measure the seatbelt usage of each participating county prior to the program, and they are expected to measure use again at the conclusion of the program. The program is done in partnership with the Kentucky State Police, the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet, and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Representatives from each of the organizations gathered at the Marshall County Courthouse to announce the launch of High Five. It was stated that this program is done with a systematic and multi-disciplinary approach using the three E's, enforcement, education, and engineering. It was also noted during the announcement that the program provided $10,000 to the sheriff's office and $10,000 to KSP for the purpose of implementing the program within the county. There were nine counties, Marshall being one of them, selected for the program, which puts an emphasis on education over ticketing. The program will operate in several ways, but the main primary focus is on education. Matt Hilbrecht, the Sheriff of Marshall County mentioned that the focus on education was a welcome change from other programs that have focused more on enforcement. The program will also see the addition of seatbelt safety educational pamphlets that drivers could be given during a traffic stop. The sheriff's office will also be coordinating with KSP for educational opportunities, such as showing a rollover simulation to high school students to demonstrate the risks of not wearing a seatbelt. It will also include information on the most up to date car seat and booster seat laws for children. Hilbrecht also shared that ever since he took the role of sheriff back in January of 2023, the county has seen close to 2,500 traffic accidents, with around 430 people sustaining injuries, and 22 of them being fatalities.

Kentucky Agricultural Finance Corp. approves more than $4.5 million in loans

FRANKFORT – The Kentucky Agricultural Finance Corp. (KAFC) approved 23 agricultural loans totaling $4,576,205 for projects across the Commonwealth today at its monthly board meeting.

Agricultural Infrastructure Loan Program (AILP)

Five Agricultural Infrastructure loans totaling up to $1,004,350 were approved. Loan recipients were in Graves ($10,000, $250,000, and $250,000), Ohio ($250,000), and Taylor ($244,350) counties.

KAFC participates with lenders to provide financing to producers making capital expenditures for agricultural projects through the AILP. Eligible projects include permanent farm structures with attached equipment that improves the profitability of farming operations. Producers may be eligible for up to $250,000 not to exceed 50 percent of the project.

Beginning Farmer Loan Program (BFLP)

Fifteen Beginning Farmer loans totaling up to $2,821,855 were approved. Loan recipients were in Clinton ($74,980), Graves ($250,000), Grayson ($62,500 and $152,500), Green ($125,000, $220,000, $250,000 and $250,000), Harrison ($250,000), Logan ($250,000), Marshall ($250,000), McClean ($250,000), Metcalfe ($150,000), Scott ($173,375), and Shelby ($113,500) counties.

The BFLP is designed to assist individuals with some farming experience who desire to develop, expand, or buy into a farming operation. Beginning farmers may qualify for financing to purchase livestock, equipment, or agriculture facilities; to secure permanent working capital; for the purchase of farm real estate; or to invest in a partnership or LLC.

Diversification through Entrepreneurship in Agribusiness Program (DEALP)

Two Diversification through Entrepreneurship in Agribusiness loans totaling up to $500,000 were approved. Loan recipients were in Bath ($250,000) and Logan ($250,000) counties.

DEALP is designed to assist agri-entrepreneurs with the purchase, establishment or expansion of a business that sells agricultural products or services to farmers or consumers.

Large/Food Animal Veterinary Loan Program (LFAVLP)

One LFAVLP Loan totaling $250,000 was approved for a recipient in Owen County.

LFAVLP is designed to assist individuals licensed to practice veterinary medicine in Kentucky who desire to construct, expand, equip, or buy into a practice serving large animal producers, including goat, sheep, swine, and other smaller food animals.

Kentucky needs public charter schools

An educator’s plea for choice

BY: Gus LaFontaine

I was a public school teacher. Many of my closest friends still are, and my daughter attends our local public school. I know firsthand the challenges teachers face and the slow pace of systemic change. I stepped away from traditional public schools over 15 years ago, not from a lack of faith in public education, but to create a better model for students, families and teachers. That journey led me to apply to open what could become Kentucky’s first public charter school. I believe more families – especially those with limited financial means – deserve real options for their children’s education. Kentucky’s teachers deserve environments where they are trusted, supported and given the freedom to innovate. Public charter schools can deliver these opportunities. Critics argue charter schools undermine the traditional system. I understand those concerns, but the current system – while serving many – certainly isn’t meeting every student’s needs. It’s a one-size-fits-all approach that fails too many students. To those in our traditional system of schools, let me ask: Are you satisfied with Kentucky’s only public education option? If so, I’m happy for you. If not, you’re not alone. I’m advocating for Kentuckians to have access to an additional public education model that operates successfully in all states bordering ours and in nearly every one – red and blue – across the nation.

Gus LaFontaine

The school we built 15 years ago, which I hope will eventually become a public charter school, wasn’t designed to compete. We built it because we couldn’t wait for smaller class sizes, better teacher support or systemic fixes that never came. Now, we want to offer this tuition-free, open-to-all public education model to others. Here’s what our school offers: Our teachers teach four days a week, with the fifth day for uninterrupted planning. They have hour-long lunches. Class sizes are capped at 16 students. There is room to teach, collaborate and recharge. Our students get three recesses a day and are free of the burden of excessive test preparation. They move, play and grow. Critics claim charter schools will harm traditional public schools. But if we trust our public schools, why fear giving families options? Public schools will still have the largest budgets, most experienced teachers and best facilities. They’re not going anywhere. I believe in public schools. I also believe many families want options. Those goals can coexist. Critics say only the privileged will benefit. But wealthy families already have options. For low-income families, single parents and students who don’t fit neatly into – or thrive in – a uniform system, having only one option limits them in ways I believe are unjust. Kentucky teachers in traditional systems have ideas about how schools could better serve students and whisper to me that they’re ready to innovate. A public charter school system in Kentucky would empower them to act on their ideas, fostering innovation that benefits students and families. We must recognize that many families feel trapped in a standardized system and create schools that meet diverse student needs while empowering teachers. That’s why I’m hopeful Kentucky’s Supreme Court will soon rule that charter schools are constitutional under legislation passed by the General Assembly, enabling families, students and teachers to finally have real choices within our public education system. Gus LaFontaine and his wife, Kristin, founded LaFontaine Preparatory School, a nonprofit private school in Madison County, in 2011 after a tour of duty in Afghanistan with the Kentucky Army National Guard. A former public-school teacher, LaFontaine sought to create an innovative approach to early education. The school has grown from 13 half-day pre-kindergarteners to over 175 students in pre-K through fifth grade. LaFontaine has applied to convert his school to Kentucky’s first public charter school. He’s a party in a Kentucky Supreme Court case challenging the constitutionality of legislation funding public charter schools.

Baptist Health Paducah invites community to Baby & Family Health Expo

PADUCAH, KY - Baptist Health Paducah invites all parents-to-be and growing families to its Baby & Family Health Expo on Tuesday, Oct. 21 from 4:30–6:30 p.m. Join physicians, nurses and other healthcare providers in the Larry Barton Atrium located inside Medical Park 2 to learn how Baptist Health Paducah can care for families through all stages of life. Whether you’re beginning a family, or thinking about growing it, you will have the chance to meet with an assortment of local vendors at the expo. The Baby & Family Health Expo will help individuals find the provider that is right for them and their family by having representatives from OB/GYN, Labor & Delivery, NICU, pediatrics, primary care, family medicine and others in attendance. Along with meeting providers, the Baby & Family Health Expo will include: Guided Tours: See the renovated Mother/Baby suites with guided tours happening every 30 minutes throughout the expo. Vendors: Visit with Baptist Health Paducah-affiliated and community vendors. Family fun: Enjoy a kid’s craft table with coloring books and Play-Doh.

Giveaways and door prizes: From car seats to breast pumps, door prizes will be announced every 20 minutes throughout the event. All community members are invited to attend this free event.

Kentucky’s Charter Schools

A New Era of Choice and Controversy

Charter schools in Kentucky represent a relatively new chapter in the state’s education system. Although charter schools have been authorized by law since 2017, their implementation has faced significant delays due to funding and political debates. In 2022, the Kentucky General Assembly passed legislation requiring state and local education funding to follow students to charter schools, effectively paving the way for their creation. Charter schools are publicly funded but operate independently of traditional school districts. Supporters argue that they provide families with more educational choices and foster innovation through flexible teaching methods and specialized curricula. They believe that charter schools can raise academic performance by encouraging competition and accountability. Opponents, however, worry that diverting funds from public schools could weaken already under-resourced districts, particularly in rural areas. They also question whether charter schools will serve all students equitably, including those with special needs. As of 2025, Kentucky’s first charter schools are in early stages of development, with applications emerging in major cities like Louisville and Lexington. Their success or failure will likely shape the future of education reform in the state, influencing debates over school choice, funding priorities, and the role of public accountability in education.

WEST KY SPORTS

Reviving stagnant running attack will be crucial for Cards at Miami

BluegrassPreps.com High School Football Rankings

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (KT) - Louisville's football team began the season with high expectations for its rushing attack, and with good reason; the Cardinals boasted a trio of experienced, talented running backs led by 2024 ACC Rookie of the Year Isaac Brown.

Brown set a U of L freshman record with 1,173 rushing yards and scored 11 touchdowns. He was backed up by two other reliable and dangerous sophomores in Duke Watson and Keyjuan Brown.

But instead of dominating, the Cards' running attack has disappeared, and the timing couldn't be worse as they get ready to face No. 2 Miami (5-0, 1-0) and the Hurricanes' ferocious defense in prime time Friday night at 7 in Hard Rock Stadium.

Going into the game Louisville is averaging only 115 yards per game rushing, which ranks 12th in the FBS, and its running backs haven't scored a touchdown since Isaac Brown's 78-yard dash in a 40-17 romp past overmatched Bowling Green on Sept. 20. The bulk of the Cards' rushing yards came in their first three games against Eastern Kentucky, James Madison and the Falcons.

Against Power 4 opponents in the last two outings, they have managed a total of just 107 yards, 53 in a 34-27 win at Pittsburgh and 54 in a 30-27 loss to Virginia. In those two games, Brown has netted 86 yards on 27 tries, but even that modest total is deceiving. Take away his 78-yard TD and he has averaged less than a half yard per trip. Watson has fared better, with 49 yards in 15 tries for a 3.2 ypc average.

"We need to find ways to run the ball more effectively and be able to put some pressure on the defense," U of L coach Jeff Brohm said. "That way, instead of having to throw the ball quite as much, that will be important as we proceed forward. We just have to play more efficient. We're just going to have to go make plays. We'll have an opportunity this week, but we're going to have to block these guys and find a way to create some big plays."

Granted, all three running backs have been banged up, but it has been apparent that of L has problems in the offensive line, which hasn't been able to protect quarterback Miller Moss consistently, as well as being unable to open holes for Isaac Brown and company to get started.

"Our offensive line has to play better," offensive coordinator/quarterbacks coach Brian Brohm said.

However, Coral Gables isn't an ideal place to go seeking an offensive repair job. Far from it. Running against the Canes' front is like trying to bust through a brick wall with a head start -- painful, pointless and over before you know it.

Miami ranks second in the ACC and 25th nationally in rushing yards allowed at 87.4 yards per game and are second to Louisville in total defense in the league, allowing 276 yards against a much stronger schedule than the Cards (262 ypg).

"Their defensive line is very good," Brian Brohm said. "They've got really good pass rushers. Remind you a little bit of the Florida State team from 2023 that we played in the ACC championship game (a 16-6 loss). They're just really good up front, going to present a challenge for us. And we've got to do some different things protection wise to try to keep them on their toes."

The Canes aren't just fast and talented, they're cocky, confident and mean, reminiscent of Jimmy Johnson's dominant Miami teams in the mid-to-late '80s. In the 1987 Fiesta Bowl against Penn State in a game that was billed as good vs. evil, the Canes arrived dressed as storm troopers, wearing green and brown Army fatigues. Even without the pregame look, Jeff Brohm expects them to show up Friday night ready to go to war.

"Trust me, it shows up on tape," he said. "They've got two defensive ends that are really talented and fast and strong along with some big guys up front and fast linebackers. They're not overly complicated, but when you're that talented, you don't have to be. They come off the ball, they strike and they do a very good job."

Purdue tops preseason AP Top 25 poll for 1st time; Kentucky comes in at No. 9, Louisville at 11

By AARON BEARD - AP Basketball Writer

Purdue is No. 1 in the preseason Associated Press Top 25 college basketball poll for the first time.

The Boilermakers earned 35 of 61 first-place votes to top Monday's poll to begin the 2025-26 season. That put Matt Painter's squad ahead of the two teams that played in last year's NCAA title game, with runner-up Houston at No. 2 and reigning champion Florida at No. 3.

"We are obviously excited to get the season going and being ranked No. 1 in the preseason is a great indicator of what we feel this team can accomplish," Painter said. "But the goal is to be No. 1 at the end of the year. We're thrilled that people think this highly of our team, but there is a long ways to go and a lot of work to do to reach that goal in April."

Purdue started a year ranked as high as No. 2 once before, in 1987-88 under Gene Keady.

It's another milestone for Painter, the former Keady player who has built his own successful program that is still looking for its NCAA title breakthrough as he enters his 21st season. Purdue had never been ranked No. 1 in any AP poll before the 2021-22 season, which marked the first of three straight seasons in which the Boilermakers have reached the top. The last was during the 2023-24 season behind two-time AP national player of the year Zach Edey in a run all the way to the national title game.

The Boilermakers reached last year's Sweet 16 before falling to Houston on a last-second basket, but return a first-team AP All-American in point guard Braden Smith, scoring leader Trey Kaufman-Renn (20.1) and veteran guard Fletcher Loyer.

Kentucky, which plays Purdue in an exhibition game in Rupp Arena on Oct. 24, came in at No. 9 Louisville cracked the preseason top 25 for the first time since 2019, landing at No. 11. The Cats and Cardinals play an early regular-season battle on Nov. 11 at the KFC Yum! Center.

The top tier

Kelvin Sampson's Cougars earned 16 first-place votes to match the program's best-ever preseason AP ranking after last year's finals run. The other No. 2 appearance was by the 1967-68 team led by Elvin Hayes.

Todd Golden's Gators earned eight first-place votes to start this year with their highest preseason ranking since the last time they entered a year as reigning champions in 2006-07, the start of a run to a second straight title.

UConn was next at No. 4 and earned the remaining two first-place votes. St. John's was fifth, with Rick Pitino's Red Storm surpassing the program's previous best ranking in a preseason AP poll (No. 7 in 1984-85).

Duke was next at No. 6, followed by Michigan, BYU — which landed the nation's No. 1 recruit in A.J. Dybantsa — Kentucky and Texas Tech to round out the top 10.

Quick transitions

It hasn't taken long for Pat Kelsey to get Louisville back among the national elite, with the Cardinals checking in at No. 11 after a 27-win season to start his tenure. The Cardinals were 12-52 in the two seasons before his arrival.

Louisville is one of five programs with a second-year coach in the preseason poll, joining Michigan, BYU, Kentucky and No. 14 Arkansas with John Calipari.

Jayhawks lower Kansas checked in at No. 19, the lowest preseason rank for Bill Self's Jayhawks since starting at No. 24 in the 2008-09 season as the reigning national champion. Kansas had been ranked outside the top 10 only once since that year (No. 13 in 2011-12) while starting at No. 1 in 2019-20 as well as each of the last two seasons in that stretch.

Pearl's debut

Auburn opens at No. 20 as it enters its first season since the unexpected retirement of coach Bruce Pearl following last year's Final Four run.

Pearl stepped aside last month after 11 seasons, triggering a transition to his 38-year-old son Steven, who climbed his father's staff through the elder Pearl's Auburn tenure but has never been a head coach nor coached elsewhere in college.

Conference watch

The Southeastern Conference, Big Ten and Big 12 each had six ranked teams to make up 72% of the field. The Atlantic Coast Conference and Big East were next with three each, while the West Coast Conference had one with No. 21 Gonzaga. The Big 12 was the only league of that group to have three top-10 teams.

Watch list

Will Wade's arrival at N.C. State and subsequent roster shakeup has the Wolfpack as the first team outside the poll, sitting just three points behind 25th-ranked rival North Carolina from the ACC. Oregon is lurking close behind entering its 16th year under Dana Altman.

Glisson 3rd in KHSAA State Championship

By: Tim Taylor

Ballard Memorial senior golfer Madison Glisson looked to put an exclamation point on her high school golfing career. She entered the Leachman Buick-GMC-Cadillac KHSAA Girls State Championship as one of the top 5 golfers expected to make a run at a state title. She did not disappoint as she competed in the 2-day tournament at the Bowling Green Country Club. In her 6th and final appearance in the state tournament, a state title was on her mind. She had claimed 3 All A State Championship in her career, but the overall state championship had alluded her. She entered the 2025 tournament with a career best 4th place finish in her previous 5 attempts. Day 1 was about putting yourself in contention and Glisson accomplished that with a strong one under par performance. She had 3 bogeys but offset that with 4 birdies to end the day one shot off the lead. Day 2 could not have started any better. She birdied holes 2 and 3, including nearly hitting a hole in one on the 3rd hole on the par 3. Her tee shot bounced a few feet in front of the pin and the ball appeared to hit the back lip of the hole and stopped about a foot away from the pin. Her 3 under par through 3 holes put her atop the leaderboard with Marshall County's Trinity Beth. She remained at 3 under before troubles struck as a great tee shot on the par 3 11th hole left her about 5 feet from the hole. But the putt came up inches away from getting a stroke back. Another 10 foot putt on 12 would not fall for the Lady Bomber senior. She struggled making the greens on a few holes and settled for pars. Her final hole, she was 4 shots off the lead and with the state title hopes diminishing, she wanted to close out with a strong finish. The final hole ended similarly to her final round. Her birdie putt on the par 5 rimmed out leaving her with a tap in par to finish the tournament at even par 71-73 total 144 for the 2 days. Her even par 144 was 3rd best with Beth finishing 2nd with a 142, but no one was catching Sacred Heart's Keira Yun. The junior had a pair of birdies and an eagle on the back 9 to finish with a tournament best 5 under par 67 for the final day and a tournament 2-day total 138.

on the par 3 7th hole. A double bogey on the hole followed by a bogey on the par 4 9th hole dropped her back to even par for the tournament. Glisson could not get her putts to fall on the back 9

McCracken County Approves $150,000 Grant for Lifeline Recovery Center’s New Women’s Campus

McCracken County officials on Monday approved a $150,000 grant to support the ongoing construction of Lifeline Recovery Center’s new women’s campus near Barkley Regional Airport. The funds will be used for key infrastructure improvements, including site development, road access, and sewer connections for the new facility, which is expected to open in 2026.

Lifeline Recovery Center, a faith-based substance abuse treatment organization, has been a vital part of the region’s recovery community for years. The new campus will expand services to women struggling with addiction, providing residential treatment, counseling, and life-skills training.

Lifeline Executive Director Ashley Miller expressed gratitude for the county’s leadership and support. She thanked McCracken County Judge-Executive Craig Clymer, Commissioners Eddie Jones, Bill Bartleman, and Richard Abraham, along with Deputy Judge-Executive Steve Ervin, for their role in securing the county’s first-ever financial contribution to the center.

“Their support comes at a critical time as Lifeline works to complete the construction of the new campus,” Miller said. “People across our community have come together to be part of this effort to help restore lives, reunite families, and strengthen our community as a whole. The county’s investment is another powerful example of that shared commitment.”

Construction on the campus began earlier this year. The administration building is projected to open in December, while the dining halls and dormitories are scheduled for completion in March 2026.

The $150,000 grant is part of a broader fundraising effort totaling more than $12 million, most of which has come from local donations and community partnerships. Miller said this grassroots support demonstrates a strong regional commitment to combating addiction and offering second chances.

Donations to support the project can be made online at www.lifelinerecoverycenter.org/donate or mailed to Lifeline Recovery Center, P.O. Box, Paducah, KY 42002.

When complete, the women’s campus will mark a major milestone for Lifeline Recovery Center and McCracken County, expanding access to life-changing treatment and reinforcing the region’s dedication to recovery, hope, and community renewal.

Dual Solo Exhibitions by Cody Arnall and Rick Nance to Open at Paducah School of Art and Design

PADUCAH, Ky. — Two provocative solo exhibitions exploring themes of technology, identity, and human error will open Oct. 23 at the Bill Ford Gallery and the PJC Gallery at Paducah School of Art and Design.

The exhibitions, “Boredom and Failure v. III” by Cody Arnall and “I Am Not a Purist” by Rick Nance, will run concurrently through Dec. 5. Both galleries are located at 9th and Harrison streets in Paducah’s historic downtown. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

An opening reception will be held from 5 to 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 23. Admission to the reception and both exhibitions is free and open to the public.

Arnall, an associate professor of sculpture at Texas Tech University and former instructor at PSAD, presents a body of work shaped by industrial debris, sound, and a grim fascination with environmental decay.

“My art research is preoccupied by human error — actions that lead to unintended outcomes,” Arnall said. “I think a lot about our impending doom, how fragile existence is, and what the future looks like with or without us.”

Through installation, video, light, and found objects, Arnall invites viewers to confront unsettling themes including environmental degradation, violence, and memory. Originally from Tulsa, Oklahoma, he holds a Master of Fine Arts from Louisiana State University and has exhibited internationally in more than 60 shows.

His solo exhibition will be on view in the Bill Ford Gallery.

In the adjacent PJC Gallery, Paducah-based artist Rick Nance will present “I Am Not a Purist,” a digital art exhibition rooted in the visual imperfections of analog media.

“I attempt to combine elements found in many non-digital technical processes — hatch marks, halftone dots, plate scratches, uneven saturation and even mistakes from earlier reproduction techniques,” Nance said.

Nance’s work blends pop culture, music and classical references into layered digital compositions. With a career spanning from the 1970s to today, his background includes pre-press work in Nashville, freelance illustration and decades as a graphic designer and instructor.

The exhibitions are presented by Paducah School of Art and Design, a division of West Kentucky Community and Technical College.

Pearson, faithful KPI Editor and layout specialist retiring

By Greg LeNeave
Publisher, KPI Newspaper Group

It all began about 16 years ago in downtown Paducah at the corner of 7th & Jefferson Streets. A lady walked in for a job opportunity at Kentucky Publishing, Inc.(KPI)

The position available at the time was a Graphics & Layout position where the employee would be laying out the pages of the newspapers we published; along with helping construct our Special Sections. These newspapers ranged from the Ballard County Advance Yeoman, The Carlisle County News, The Livingston Ledger and the West KY News just to name a few. As for the Special Sections there were many. Very big sections were becoming a huge need at KPI Newspaper Group and the production staff had to keep up at a pace that seemed fast to many that worked there.

The original Paducah Business Journal {est. 1993} was a major cog in the KPI wheel of publications. Couple that with a TOURISM publication and Progress Editions which were made for each county, there was much to do and that was a regular routine for everyone there.

Before Teresa Ann Pearson arrived at KPI, she got her start at the local community college WKCTC where she found out that she had a natural aptitude for Graphics Communications. She parlayed this knowledge into a couple of 5-year jobs. One at the Paducah Sun and a similar job at Unlimited Graphics in LaCenter. She briefly got a two-year stint as a Pearson (Teresa Ann) says she will going to visit her brother who lives in the Black Hills area of South Dakota, along with her daughter Candi Mitchell who is a Captain in the U.S. Air Force. Her daughter will be stationed out there in the very near future. So it looks like Pearson’s retirement could range from a Sturgis motorcycle rally and to visiting Washington, Jefferson, Roosevelt and Lincoln at Mt. Rushmore.

cook at Lifecare Center of La-Center. This was not her cup of tea (no cook pun intended here). It was after that job she decided to make a more permanent career move and that’s where she hit her stride as a reliable and faithful employee.

For 16+ years, Pearson has been well schooled in the art of newspaper publishing. She took on the role as Managing Editor. At KPI that meant she would manage the editorial content that was layout in the newspapers and special sections. She got to work closely with a 20-year KPI employee, former KPI Production Manager Gregory Vaught. Those two together worked very hard on the Kentucky publications and were successful. Both earned Kentucky Press Awards with Pearson getting a first Place award for Front Page design for West KY News in 2013.

Later on Pearson became Editor of the Advance Yeoman {est. 1880} and did that while still helping layout many pages each week for the newspapers. Recently, Pearson began to cut back on her duties and started Freelance Writing and doing the Obituaries and making the famous Puzzle pages that readers love so much.

When asked about her job, she said I loved going to events and meeting people but I really enjoyed laying out the paper and making things fit, it’s like a putting together puzzle. Her highlight from the job was getting to meet big time political figures and she really enjoyed meeting Kentucky Senator Rand Paul which she did on at least three occasions.

As for her final farewell, Pearson has said she was pleasantly surprised how well she would do money-wise with her Social Security checks that are rolling in now. People that work all of there life for a living, regularly put money back week after week and month after month and then one day, there it is . . . the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. Well at least for the hard-working folks that had a work ethic instilled in them from a young age and stuck with it.

She mentioned that “I am a nervous wreck about not working each day.” But, when questioned about her retirement plans, she seems to have a great plan. Pearson intends to some church work and serving The Lord by doing some mission work. She intends to travel to see her daughter and grand children, plus her brother that will all be residing in South Dakota. A 23 hour trip from her home in Barlow. She plans to do some gardening for pure fun and pleasure.

Her thoughts on KPI were good to hear. She stated “KPI has been great to me. It’s been like family, easy-going and flexible for me when it came to any family issues or church obligations.”

Teresa Ann Pearson was one of a kind. She, like many of us had her moments when she would get frustrated but always came through in the end. She always stepped up when a fellow worker fell to illness or some type of tragedy. The Lord knows what he’s doing when he puts someone in your path. I hope Teresa Ann Pearson know that The Lord did that not just for her, but for me and my family here at KPI.

We will miss her but I’m sure she will enjoy riding off into the sunset; especially with that fat social security check.

Safe travels young lady.

Team Kentucky supporting federal workers amid shutdown

The state provides competitive benefits packages, with first-day health insurance, retirement and leave options to help those interested meet immediate and long-term goals. Visit TeamKY4FedEmployees.ky.gov to get started exploring options today.

Kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – As the federal shutdown is reaching two weeks, Gov. Andy Beshear is reminding displaced federal employees who live in Kentucky about state government’s benefits portal, TeamKY4FedEmployees.ky.gov.

The website was created in April to assist federal employees amid widespread layoffs during the spring, and offers a list of resources, including career counselors, virtual career fairs, job openings and links to unemployment benefits.

“Despite facing ongoing challenges by the Trump administration, federal employees have continued to show up for Americans and our country. Now, as the shutdown continues and thousands face layoffs, Team Kentucky is showing up and offering support during their time of need,” Beshear said. “We launched the Team Kentucky Federal Employees portal in April, and it is still live and ready to help those impacted find new employment or access the resources they need during the shutdown.”

On the site, displaced federal employees can search through open jobs in state government or across the commonwealth. They can also view a virtual career fair or speak directly with a free career counselor by calling 502-564-8030 or emailing pers.career-counseling@ky.gov to learn more.

“Team Kentucky is committed to making state government the commonwealth’s employer of choice, and that also means being there for our fellow Americans during times of need,” said Personnel Cabinet Secretary Mary Elizabeth Bailey. “Our team is ready to help affected federal employees – whether that means finding a job here on Team Kentucky or accessing the support needed until the federal government is back up and running.”

For those in need of filing unemployment benefits, the site offers a direct link to the portal where they can apply. Federal, military or postal employees affected by the federal shutdown who plan to file for unemployment insurance need the following documents:

- 2024 W2 or final 2024 pay stub showing year-to-date earnings.
- Last pay stub from March 2025 and June 2025.
- SF-8 and SF-50 (if available).

WKCTC Faculty Member Selected for KACTE Leadership Fellows Program

Staff Report

PADUCAH, Ky. — West Kentucky Community & Technical College (WKCTC) announced this week that Jason Willoughby, assistant professor at WKCTC, has been selected to participate in the 2025–26 Kentucky Association for Career and Technical Education (KACTE) Leadership Fellows Program.

The prestigious yearlong program is designed to strengthen leadership skills, expand understanding of educational policy, and build professional networks among career and technical education (CTE) professionals across Kentucky. As part of the fellowship, participants will engage in three in-person leadership development sessions and monthly virtual meetings. Each component is aligned with WKCTC’s High-Quality Career and Technical Education Program of Study framework, emphasizing innovation, collaboration, and excellence in technical education.

Jason Willoughby

“I am honored to be chosen for the Fellow Leadership Program with the Kentucky Association of Career and Technical Education,” Willoughby said. “I feel that this yearlong experience will allow me to put my doctorate degree into action.”

Willoughby, who is currently completing his dissertation in educational leadership, expressed gratitude to WKCTC President Dr. Anton Reece for his encouragement and support during the application process. “I will be able to use my knowledge in the KACTE program on the state level,” he added.

KACTE serves as the Kentucky affiliate of the Association for Career and Technical Education (ACTE), one of the nation’s leading advocacy and policymaking organizations for CTE. Through initiatives like the Leadership Fellows Program, KACTE helps develop educators who are prepared to advance the field of technical education and empower students to succeed in a rapidly evolving workforce.

WKCTC officials said Willoughby’s selection highlights the college’s commitment to fostering professional growth and leadership development among its faculty and staff.

AAA: Gas Prices Continue to Fall Across Kentucky

PADUCAH, Ky. — Gas prices in West Central Kentucky have dropped again this week, falling six cents to an average of $2.61 per gallon, according to AAA East Central’s Gas Price Report.

The decline mirrors national trends as fuel costs continue to slide into mid-October. The national average price for a gallon of regular gasoline is now $3.08, down five cents from last week. According to the Energy Information Administration (EIA), demand for gasoline has fallen to a four-month low, while the transition from summer-grade to winter-grade fuel — which is less expensive to produce — is further driving prices downward. The national average is nine cents lower than a month ago and 12 cents less than a year ago.

Regionally, prices vary slightly across Kentucky. Motorists are paying $2.58 in Bowling Green, $2.52 in Elizabethtown, $2.75 in Louisville, $2.52 in Owensboro, and $2.69 in Paducah. A year ago, the regional average was $2.87, while the all-time high for the area remains $4.74, recorded on June 13, 2022.

Nationally, crude oil prices edged slightly higher, with West Texas Intermediate rising 82 cents to $62.55 per barrel. Despite the increase, U.S. crude inventories rose by 3.7 million barrels, remaining about 4% below the five-year average for this time of year.

Kentucky currently ranks among the 10 least expensive states for gasoline, averaging $2.76 per gallon, alongside Oklahoma, Mississippi, and Missouri.

Meanwhile, the national average electricity cost for public electric vehicle (EV) charging stations held steady at 36 cents per kilowatt hour.

Motorists can find the latest fuel and electricity prices nationwide, statewide, and countywide by visiting gasprices.aaa.com.

Kentucky State Parks Launches New Mobile App To Improve Visitor Experience

FRANKFORT, Ky. – Building on the New Kentucky Home initiative, the Kentucky Department of Parks has implemented a new mobile app designed to enhance state parks’ outdoor recreation experiences. For the first time, guests will have access to accurate digital maps that are also available offline.

The free mobile app, powered by OuterSpatial, provides up-to-date information and resources on outdoor recreational opportunities and events, curated experiences and hiking trail maps.

“From hiking, activities, golf and more, our Kentucky State Parks are a great place to visit, and this free app will help make it easier for families to enjoy,” said Gov. Andy Beshear. “If you haven’t visited one of our 44 Kentucky State Parks in a while, this new app and passport challenge is a great reason to plan a stay.”

“We’re excited to finally have a mobile app that will give Kentuckians and visitors a better way to explore the incredible range of parks across our state,” said Kentucky State Parks Commissioner Russ Meyer. “From hiking and camping to cultural events and family outings, this app brings it all together in one reliable and easy-to-use place.”

Key features for the mobile app include:

- Detailed Park Maps – View boundaries, trail networks, restrooms, parking areas and more.
- Over 1,000 Outdoor Points of Interest – Discover scenic overlooks, boat launches, playgrounds, climbing areas, historical sites and other amenities.
- Outings – Follow curated experiences created by park staff to help you explore something new.
- Challenges – Complete outdoor goals and earn digital badges for achievements.
- Real-Time Updates – Stay informed about trail closures, facility changes and event schedules.
- To celebrate the launch, Kentucky State Parks is introducing the KY Passport Challenge, a statewide invitation to explore all 44 state parks. Participants can check in at any state park to get started. Each check-in earns a unique digital badge tied to that park, with the goal of collecting all 44 badges to complete your passport.

VICTORIOUS Living ...in a troubled world

Pass Jesus to the next generation

By Teresa LeNeave
Leneave2@comcast.net

As the younger generation grows up, Christian's (especially ministers and young parents) are going to be faced with some tough questions that they better know the answer to. Questions like, "If Jesus ever lived on this earth, why isn't he written about outside the Bible?" He has been, but very few survived the times. Jesus lived in a time when political and religious leaders both wanted to squash any news of him. God preserved all we need to know and its well documented in the Bible.

More and more we hear people say, "I don't believe in God" or, "There may be a God, but I don't think there is just one." How do you answer these questions? Do you just flatly tell them, "You should believe because the Bible says you should - and that's that!" Or, do we give them an answer that will give them something to think about and to satisfy their questioning minds? Maybe it's because the Church is not talking as loud at the world, but kids today are not going to believe everything they are told. There is just so much unbelief being thrown at them and so many things flood their minds that some kids who grew up in a Christian home are becoming doubters.

When they tell us they don't believe in God, what do we tell them? In the Bible, Paul said, "Walk in wisdom toward those who are outside, redeeming the time. Let your speech always be with grace, seasoned with salt, that you may know how you ought to answer each one" (Colossians 4:5-7 NKJV).

Later we read where Peter said, "But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear" (1 Peter 3:15 KJV).

So, are you ready to give an answer to your son or daughter who say they don't believe? Can you give a sound, educated, answer for the reason of the hope that you believe in?

First of all, walking with Jesus is a faith walk so we'll not have all the answers. Second, we do the praying but God does the drawing. He will draw them to him.

Here are tips to discuss with doubters:

1. The biography of Jesus was written before He was born. Who else has that happened to? No one.

Old Testament prophecies predicted the city He would be born (Micah 5:2); it foretold His Name (Isaiah 7:14); and what He would do while in the world (Isaiah 61:1,2). Jesus clearly said those prophecies were about Him. He quoted Isaiah 61:1-2 and then "closed the book, handed it to the minister, sat down and said, 'This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears'" (Luke 4:18-21).

2. Jesus actually is talked about in ancient history, which solidly backs up the Bible. Following are some ancient sources that mention Jesus:

In Book 18 of the Antiquities, 63-64, Josephus a Jewish historian who lived during Jesus' time wrote: "About this time there lived Jesus, a wise man, for he was a performer of wonderful deeds, a teacher of such men as are happy to accept the truth. He won over many of the Jews and many of the Gentiles. When Pilate, at the suggestion of the leading men among us, had condemned him to the cross, those who had loved him at the first did not forsake him; and the tribe of Christians, so named from him, are not extinct to this day." (http://www.facingthechallenge.org/josephus.php)

Tacitus - A Roman Historian wrote about Nero's hatred for the Christians. He said the name 'Christian' comes from the name of 'Christ' who is the founder of the Christian religion. Scholars say all the details that Tacitus give matches the details in the Bible. (http://www.christian-faith.com/html/page/did_jesus_exist)

Pliny the Younger, a governor in those days, wrote that there was a new sect of people called Christians. He talks about how the Christians sang praise to their leader, Christ. Pliny the Younger, Letters 10.96 (http://www.christian-faith.com/html/page/did_jesus_exist)

The truth is, Jesus has been debated for centuries, but His name and power can't be disproved. Paul said Apollos, who was a disciple, an eloquent man, and mighty in the scriptures, debated the Jews publicly. Paul says Apollos "publicly proved by the scripture that Jesus was the Christ." (Acts 18:28).

Pass Jesus on to the next generation. He will always have a people who believe, but we want it to include our own families. So, pass him on to them.

LET GOD SORT 'EM OUT

Bro. Brandon G. Bramlett
Bandana Baptist Church

He was contemptuously convicted of crimes he never committed. Witnesses stepped forward, alleging that he tried to spark a political insurrection and urged individuals to engage in tax evasion. Other witnesses accused him of terroristic threatening, stating that he vowed to demolish a local religious center and reconstruct it in three days. When the judge inquired whether the man had anything to say in his defense, he surprisingly kept quiet. Dissatisfied with the proceedings, the judge forwarded the case to another neighborhood judge, who repeatedly pressured the man to refute the accusations against him—but there was only silence. No appeals for mercy. No assertion of innocence.

This famous trial was for the most blameless Man who ever lived, the sinless son of God (Matt. 26:57-68; 27:11-14). The Gospels teach that Jesus remarkably refrained from defending Himself while being unjustly prosecuted (Mark 14:61). He spoke only a few words about His divine nature to the seething Sanhedrin and a probing Pilate, but never once shouted, "I have done nothing wrong!" He had no need to—the holy One had nothing to prove. But according to Peter, there was an additional reason for the Lamb's silence before His shearers: Jesus believed that the Judge of all humanity would set the record straight and right every wrong: "He committed no sin, neither was deceit found in his mouth. When he was reviled, he did not revile in return; when he suffered, he did not threaten, but continued entrusting himself to him who judges justly" (1 Pet. 2:22-23).

If you have been a Christian for long, you have likely been the target of false accusations and unjust criticisms just like Jesus. Rumors, gossip, and slander can incinerate precious relationships, put our jobs in jeopardy, and tarnish our otherwise godly reputation. And the easiest and most natural reflexes are revenge, rage, resentment, retaliation, and a refusal to forgive. But the righteous response is the one modeled by Christ: entrusting ourselves to the Defender of the oppressed and Avenger of the wronged (Psalm 9:9; 10:17-18; Nahum 1:2). The Lord knows every heart, His scales are perfectly balanced, and He will vindicate us if we are blameless (1 Sam. 16:7; Prov. 16:11; Deut. 32:35).

Therefore, when you are unfairly condemned, do not take matters into your own hands. It is already in the hands of the God whose verdicts are always right. "The LORD loves justice" (Psalm 37:28), and has never misjudged a case—and He won't start with yours. His job is to judge, and yours is to rest in His righteous justice. Let God sort 'em out.

The beauty of being broken before God

By William F Holland Jr.
billyhollandministries.com

Have you ever wondered if God is listening to you? One of His many divine attributes is that He is Omnipresent which means He is everywhere at the same time. His presence constantly permeates the atmosphere whether it be on earth, in heaven, or throughout the universe. This is how He knows everything that happens and every word that is said. He knows every tree that falls in the forest and every thought that has ever been imagined, as well as the motives and intentions of every heart.

I enjoy taking walks so that I can have the privacy to talk to Him. It gives me comfort and peace to know He is there, even though I do not hear Him reply in a literal voice.

Like you, I’ve discovered that it’s easy to share with Him, but difficult to hear and comprehend what He is saying. Sometimes I will just stop talking and listen for Him in the quiet. As Psalm 46:10 talks about being still and knowing that He is God, we are encouraged to stop allowing stress to make us afraid, and to learn how to rest in His presence. A key to developing a strong personal relationship with God is to have a holy reverence for who He is and this begins with being broken before Him.

Since Romans 10:17 says, “So faith comes from hearing, and hearing by the word of Christ” we know that hearing always precedes obedience. Faith can arise when instructions are revealed, however, if we are without the desire to understand, we are without a vision to accomplish His will. We can obtain libraries of knowledge but the gift from heaven that changes lives is the passion to hear God’s voice. The next step is deciding just how much of our will we are going to surrender. During the Welsh Revival of the early nineteen hundreds, a song that was heard frequently by those who were seeking a closer walk with God was, “Bend me lower, lower, down at the feet of Jesus.” Yes, spiritual awakenings can become a wide-spread excitement, but the emphasis is on the individual entering into the holy of holies with God on their own. This spiritual metamorphosis happens through a personal conviction of the Holy Spirit who opens the eyes of the conscience and understand what it means to be saved by grace and become a servant to Christ as Lord and King.

The greatest need in Christendom today is not necessarily more religious seminars, programs, or conferences. It is for men and women to be broken before God and to realize their great need to be focused on His constant presence. Once broken we will be empowered with divine supernatural energy, wisdom, and the anointing from heaven will be overwhelmingly evident. The fragrance from Mary’s alabaster box could not be released until it was broken. To accomplish His desires, we will need to allow the Lord to break us so the inner fragrance of His presence can be released. It is then we will have revival in our souls and be able to relay and express His compassion to others.

I heard a story years ago from a minister who said one morning he climbed a mountain and was sitting on a boulder contemplating the majesty of God, when nature revealed a profound message about the Christian life. He noticed something very interesting about the grass with fresh dew on it. The blades that stood tall and extended to the sky had no droplets of refreshing water, but the blades that were bent to the ground had several droplets on them. The bent grass reminds us that seasons of spiritual refreshing often come when we bow before Him in a state of gratitude and humility. It’s the attitude of descending that enables us to experience the reality of His majesty.

Psalm 51 is one of my favorite chapters and verses 16-17

declare, “For you will not delight in sacrifice, or I would give it; you will not be pleased with a burnt offering. The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit; a broken and contrite heart, O God, you will not despise.” The life that stands tall and arrogant is not in the spiritual position to bask in the presence of His glorious presence. When the dew drops of heaven fall upon the heart that is calloused and distant, they roll off leaving that soul to remain dry and discontent.

What I do requires me to travel. I’m not sure how many days I’m gone from home, but it’s quite a few. If my trip is ten hours or less, I prefer to drive. Driving lets me pack my truck with as much gear as possible. When these trips don’t involve a hunt, I can load plenty of the stuff that is associated with my ministry. When the trips include hunting, I can pack bows or guns as well as all the gear I need. I really like doing it this way. Planes limit me unless I pay an extra expensive fee. And while taking weapons on a plane is doable, it can also be a hassle. So, when I fly and hunt, I usually borrow a friend’s gun. This also gives me an excuse if my hunt is unsuccessful. I can (and do) blame the gun I was given. I actually blame the guy who let me borrow his gun, because I firmly believe he gave me one with a crooked barrel. (looking at you John and Jason) Being able to borrow anything from a friend is a great benefit. It fills a need when our own is unavailable, broken, or simply something we don’t have. Borrowing is a temporary exchange that allows one person’s supply to meet another person’s need. It is using someone else’s plenty in the presence of someone else’s lack. There are times in each of our lives when what we are lacking, or what is broken, or what is absent is our faith. Not our religion, but our trust. Our faith in God. There are times when our own beliefs have been damaged so much, we don’t trust them to take us much further. It’s like an old truck that we have patched and patched so much that it’s good for a few miles, but we just don’t trust it on a long haul. If I can bring this home, I would say it this way. We’ve prayed, and we’re tired of praying. We’ve sought God, and we’re tired of seeking. We’ve forced gratitude, and we’re tired of faking it. We’ve confessed and promised until we’ve exhausted every word we know. And if we’re just being honest (and God loves honesty) our faith is not taking us anywhere, and the only words we can conjure up to God, is, “God, I got nothin’.” And if that’s where you are, that’s okay. You can borrow faith from those who still have it. Be open and honest. Let someone know -- let several know-- you have crippled faith- you are unable to bring yourself to Jesus – you are unable to muster up even a mustard seed of faith. And what they will do for you, is break through a crowd, bust a hole in a roof, and lower you to Jesus. And when Jesus sees their faith, your healing will come. Because borrowed faith still moves mountains. I’ll talk about this article on Tuesday at 7:30 am eastern time, on Zoom. Email me for the link. Paducah Head Start Director Appointed to State Early Childhood Advisory Council PADUCAH, Ky. — Paducah Public Schools announced that Kristy Lewis, director of Paducah Head Start, has been appointed to the Kentucky Early Childhood Advisory Council (ECAC). Lewis will represent Head Start programs across the state in this important leadership role.

The ECAC, supported by the Kentucky Governor’s Office of Early Childhood, works to unify and strengthen early childhood programs, services, and agencies across the Commonwealth. The council plays a key role in shaping statewide early childhood policy and ensuring that Kentucky’s youngest learners and their families have access to high-quality educational and developmental opportunities. The council coordinates efforts among more than 30 state agencies, including the Cabinet for Health and Family Services, the Education and Labor Cabinet, and the Kentucky Department of Education. By bringing these agencies together, the ECAC aims to align resources and improve outcomes for children from birth to age five. Paducah Public Schools officials congratulated Lewis on her appointment, noting that her leadership and experience in early childhood education will help advance the mission of both the ECAC and the Head Start community statewide. For more information, visit kyecac.ky.gov.

Safe communities allow residents to thrive and live their lives to the fullest. Such communities are sought-after places to live, and maintaining a community-wide sense of safety and security is no small task.

- Offer discounts to law enforcement and their families. Small business owners recognize the vital role local police play in keeping Main Street safe. A safe dining and shopping district is beneficial to business owners' bottom line, and that makes it worth their while to offer discounts to local law

- Showcase officers on social media. Local governments can get in on the act by highlighting a different officer each month on various social media platforms. Interview a new officer each month and highlight their backgrounds and careers. This can be a great way to showcase the talents of local officers and foster strong connections between community residents and the men and women in law enforcement who keep their towns and cities safe.

- Support police during town council meetings. Attendance at town council meetings is a good way to remain informed about what's going on in a community, and it also serves as an opportunity to support measures aimed at benefiting local law

There's no shortage of ways for communities and residents to express their appreciation and support for the local law enforcement personnel who keep their towns and cities safe.

History of the Thin Blue Line

The “thin blue line” is a term that typically refers to the concept of the police as the line between law-and-order and chaos in society. The “blue” in “thin blue line” refers to the blue color of the uniforms of many police departments.

The phrase originated as an allusion to the Thin Red Line incident during the Crimean War in 1854, wherein a Scottish regiment—wearing red uniforms—famously held off an Imperial Russian Army cavalry charge. Its use referring specifically to the police was popularized by Los Angeles Police Department Chief William H. Parker during the 1950s; author and police officer Joseph Wambaugh in the 1970s, by which time “thin blue line” was used across the United States; and Errol Morris’s documentary The Thin Blue Line (1988). In recent years, the symbol has also been used by the Blue Lives Matter movement in the United States.

which aims to show solidarity with the police, and a number of far-right movements in the U.S., particularly after the Unite the Right rally in 2017.

History

The term is adapted from The Thin Red Line, an incident of the 1854 Battle of Balaclava during the Crimean War where troops the 93rd Regiment of Foot successfully stood their ground against a Imperial Russian Army cavalry charge. This action was widely publicized by the British press and depicted in several artworks, becoming one of the most famous episodes of the entire conflict. The name is now used for firefighters today.

In the book Lawtalk, James Clapp and Elizabeth Thornburg say the term spread to other professions, e.g., a “thin white line of bishops.”

An early known use of the phrase “thin blue line” is from a 1911 poem by Nels Dickmann Anderson, titled “The Thin Blue Line.” In the poem, the phrase is used to refer to the United States Army, alluding both to the Thin Red Line and to the fact that US Army soldiers wore blue uniforms from the eighteenth century through the nineteenth century.

First used to refer to police when New York police commissioner Richard Enright used the phrase in 1922. In the 1950s, Los Angeles Police Chief Bill Parker often used the term in speeches, and he also lent the phrase to the department-produced television show The Thin Blue Line. Parker used the term “thin blue line” to further reinforce the role of the LAPD. As Parker explained, the thin blue line, representing the LAPD, was the barrier between law and order and social and civil anarchy.

The Oxford English Dictionary records its use in 1962 by The Sunday Times referring to police presence at an anti-nuclear demonstration. The phrase is also documented in a 1965 pamphlet by the Massachusetts government, referring to its state police force, and in even earlier police reports of the NYPD. By the early 1970s, the term had spread to police departments across the United States. Author and police officer Joseph Wambaugh helped to further popularize the phrase with his police novels throughout the 1970s and 1980s.

The term was used for the title of Errol Morris's 1988 documentary film The Thin Blue Line about the murder of the Dallas Police officer Robert W. Wood. Judge Don Metcalfe, who presided over the trial of Randall Adams, states in the film that prosecutor "Doug Mulder's final argument was one I'd never heard before: about the 'thin blue line' of police that separate the public from anarchy." The judge admitted to being deeply moved by the prosecutor's words, though the trial resulted in a wrongful conviction and death sentence.

12 facts about law enforcement

Law enforcement professionals are in the business of keeping people safe and secure. Statista reports that, in 2022, there were 70,566 police officers across Canada and 708,001 officer employed in the United States.

People from all walks of life work in law enforcement, where careers include dispatchers, crime scene technicians and police chiefs. The law enforcement field is vast and interesting, and the following are 14 facts about those who protect and serve, courtesy of Fact Retriever, Kiddle, the National Law Enforcement Memorial Fund, and the Law Enforcement Legal Defense Fund.

1. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police provide police services to every province in Canada except Quebec and Ontario.

2. In 1916, Georgia Ann Robinson became the first African American police woman.

3. Law enforcement agencies are still staffed primarily with men. However, about 12 percent of sworn law enforcement officers in the U.S. are women.

4. The deadliest day in law enforcement history was on September 11, 2001. Seventy-two officers were killed while responding to the terrorist attack on the World Trade Center and other locations.

5. Police are trained in first aid and rescue because they usually are the first to arrive on the scene of an emergency.

6. The police are known by different names in other countries. In Ireland, for example, they are known as the Garda.

7. Around 90 percent of London's police officers do not carry firearms.

8. Police in the United States cannot make an arrest without probable cause and the intent to prosecute.

9. The vast majority of Americans (71 percent) are satisfied with local police.

10. Most cops (95 percent) never fire their service weapons on duty during their entire careers.

11. 99.9 percent of police calls are resolved peacefully.

12. In colonial America, law enforcement officers had less authority and personnel and were not effective at apprehending criminals. The church congregation would hold trials to "catch" criminals.

Sheriff Jon Hayden focuses on Community, Teamwork, and Continuous Improvement

By: Laurna Todd
Scene Writer

Graves County Sheriff Jon Hayden shared insights about his service, staff, and goals for the department in a recent interview.

Sheriff Hayden brings decades of law enforcement experience to his role. He served three terms as McCracken County Sheriff, completing a 27-year career there in 2018, before returning to his home county. “My wife and I are both from Graves County originally, and most of our families live here,” he said. “Being elected sheriff in Graves County in 2019—and re-elected in 2022—means a lot to me. It’s an honor to serve the county where I was born and raised.”

This year, the department welcomed three new deputies. One is currently attending the Kentucky Department of Criminal Justice Training Academy, another is slated to begin this fall, and the third is a lateral transfer from the McCracken County Sheriff’s Office. The latter brought valuable experience from both the Paducah Police Department and McCracken County, and he and his family are longtime Graves County residents.

Sheriff Hayden praised the department’s culture. “Our staff works well together, and most of us genuinely look at one another as family. What stands out is their willingness to jump in and help each other without being asked. It makes the office stronger and the community safer.”

Looking forward, Hayden

Graves County Sheriff

emphasized continuous improvement. “Our ongoing goal is to become better each day in the jobs we perform for the community. We strive to be an agency that the residents of Mayfield and Graves County can depend on—transparent, ethical, and always acting in their best interest.”

Under Sheriff Hayden’s leadership, the Graves County Sheriff’s Office continues to prioritize community trust, staff cohesion, and excellence in public service.

Many skilled professionals work in police departments

Each and every day, communities rely on law enforcement agencies to keep their cities and towns orderly and safe. Uniformed patrol officers may be the most visible employees of police departments, but there are many individuals who work in concert to keep communities safe and precincts running smoothly. The following are some of the essential personnel who serve in local police departments across the country.

- Dispatcher/telecommunicator: This may be the first person individuals speak with during an emergency situation. Dispatchers typically work on the phone in police departments or from remote call centers. They patch information through to law enforcement so that officers can respond to situations.
- Investigators: Some departments employ civilian detectives to strengthen their investigative services. They work primarily from desks within the police department. These investigators will look into a wide range of low-level crimes like traffic incidents, burglaries and financial crimes. Sworn officers are able to devote their time elsewhere in the field as a result.
- Police technician: A technician is an entry-level position who assists sworn personnel in follow-up investigations. Technicians also may perform other tasks, including working on paperwork or filing incident reports.

- Officer/detective: The broadest rank in the police department belongs to those who are police officers, patrol officers and police detectives. These people respond to emergencies and non-emergency calls, patrol areas, obtain warrants, and perform many other duties, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.
- Information technology specialists: Those with IT experience can work in police departments with video surveillance, in-car mobile data terminals, wireless communications, and global mapping technology to assist with crime prevention. Some IT professionals enter cybercrime detective units to help solve crimes related to computers and the internet.
- Victim advocates: These people help victims of crime cope with trauma and may work in the services department of a police force. They typically inform victims of their legal rights, including their right to protection.
- Sheriff: According to Indeed, a sheriff is an elected official authorized by the state to enforce laws at a county level. They cover areas that are wider than those covered by local police departments. Sheriffs also may manage local jails and ensure security in these areas.

- Evidence custodian: This is the person who oversees evidence and is responsible for cataloging and securing it safely in storage.
- Crime scene technician: The technician is a forensic expert who works with law enforcement to collect evidence found at crime scenes to help solve crimes.

- Additional officials: Police departments follow a hierarchy of rank advancement. Above officers one will find corporals, sergeants, lieutenants, captains, a deputy police chief, and a chief of police. Higher ranks may manage other officers, monitor budgets and programs, enforce policies, and serve as the public face of local police departments.

Various professionals work at police departments across the country.

Carlisle County Sheriff outlines plans, recognizes staff excellence

By: Laurna Todd
Scene Writer

Carlisle County Sheriff Eric Perry recently shared his perspective on serving the community, recognizing staff, and future goals for the department.

Sheriff Perry has served as Carlisle County’s Sheriff for approximately 1.5 years. He was appointed in June 2024 and elected in a special election that November. “I was born and raised in this county and have served as Deputy and then Chief Deputy for the last 15 years,” he said. “This community and county is who I love to serve. I try to give back to better our way of life and keep our families safe.”

This year, the department added two new deputies. Austin Rathman joined as a full-time Deputy and completed his training at the DOCJT Academy, graduating in June 2025. Additionally, certified part-time Deputy Jeff Hartman was hired to help relieve workload pressures for Sheriff Perry and Chief Deputy Ben Green.

Sheriff Perry praised the dedication of his staff. “The staff I have in place were here under the former Sheriff and they know their jobs, which makes office life easier. My office manager and her assistant are the best at what they do—I could not be more proud to have them on board.”

Looking ahead, Perry is excited about upcoming initiatives. “I am looking forward to getting our Task Force off the ground. We are still in the beginning stages and preparing for the upcoming election year.”

Under Sheriff Perry’s leadership, the Carlisle County Sheriff’s Office continues to focus on safety, efficiency, and service to the local community.

Sheriff Ryan Norman Highlights Staff, New Hires, and Department Goals

By: Laurna Todd
Scene Writer

McCracken County Sheriff Ryan Norman recently shared insights about his role, his team, and plans for the Sheriff’s Office. Norman has served as Sheriff for three years. “Being the Sheriff, to me, means that I get to have a lasting effect on our county and hopefully continue to make it a great place to live,” he said. “The Sheriff’s Office has a great team that truly cares for our community. It is exciting to help shape the culture here as well as the future of our county, our home.” This year, the department welcomed eight new staff members: four deputies—Caleb Cope, Ashley Copeland, Daniel Griggs, and Jon Wentworth—and four court security officers—Madyson Coil, Tina Raper, Tyler Steele, and Theresita Vasquez.

Norman noted that all the deputies were already certified and had prior experience, with Deputy Copeland also serving in the Army National Guard. Norman praised the dedication of his staff. “From our office personnel to our deputies, they are all committed to helping our community. They spend countless hours training, working overtime, and participating in programs like our Sheriff’s Office Citizen’s Academy. Many sacrifice family time and other activities to fill gaps and assist us. These qualities are hard to find.” Looking ahead, Norman shared ambitious plans for the department. “We are working towards accreditation by the Kentucky Association of Chiefs of Police, which is a multiyear process. Our standing goals are to constantly improve through monthly training. Even minor skills can make a law enforcement officer great, and we strive to improve each one. The Sheriff’s Foundation also purchased a 3D scanner for $70,000 earlier this year, which has already helped our team tremendously and will continue to do so in the future.” Sheriff Norman’s focus on community, staff excellence, and innovation highlights the ongoing dedication of McCracken County law enforcement to keeping residents safe and supported.

McCracken County Jailer discusses daily challenges, staff dedication, and future initiatives

By: Laurna Todd
Scene Writer

PADUCAH — McCracken County Jailer Stephen Carter has served the county for 16 years and recently took on the role of Jailer two months ago. “Working in this role is deeply meaningful to me because it allows me to make a positive impact on both the facility and the lives of those entrusted to our care,” he said. “I take great pride in leading a dedicated team and building a safe, secure, and rehabilitative environment.” The jail operates 24/7, with staff overseeing inmate movement, medical care, meals, security checks, and rehabilitation programs. “[Working closely with inmates] requires patience, professionalism, and empathy,” Carter explained. “It can be demanding, but it’s rewarding to see individuals make positive changes.” While most inmates come from McCracken County, the jail also houses individuals from surrounding counties and occasionally from state or federal agencies. This diversity adds complexity, but the staff maintains strong coordination with other jurisdictions to ensure smooth operations. Carter praised his team’s dedication and professionalism. “What truly sets our staff apart is their commitment to safety, fairness, and supporting one another. They handle challenges with integrity and take pride in contributing to rehabilitation.”

Looking ahead, the jail is focusing on improving reentry programs. A new initiative provides inmates within 90 days of release with state-issued IDs and birth certificates, helping remove barriers to employment and essential services. Ongoing professional development and training opportunities for staff are also priorities. “Our staff is the backbone of this facility,” Carter said. “Investing in their growth and well-being is key to our continued success.”

Inside Calloway County Jail: Jailer shares challenges, achievements, and staff dedication

By: Laurna Todd
Scene Writer

Ken Claud, the elected Jailer for Calloway County, has served in this role for eleven years, following a 27-year career in law enforcement that included six years as Chief of Police for the City of Murray. As jailer, Claud oversees the overall management and security of the facility, assisted by a staff of 32 deputy jailers and two non-sworn positions. “The jail operates 24/7,” Claud said. “Our staff must be present every day, regardless of weather or holidays. I am extremely proud of their dedication and professionalism.”

Dealing with inmates can be challenging, Claud noted, but he believes respect produces better outcomes. The main jail has a rated capacity of 129 beds, with an additional 34-bed restricted custody center. The population typically ranges around 140, with about half being state inmates after felony convictions. The county receives a per diem payment for housing state inmates, which helps offset operating costs.

Claud highlighted several rehabilitative programs offered at the jail, including work contracts with local entities such as the City of Murray, the Kentucky Department of Transportation, and Murray Electric System. Inmates also have access to evidence-based classes covering topics like anger management, parenting, and moral reconation therapy, as well as the opportunity to earn a GED through a partnership with the Kentucky Department of Adult Education.

Technology upgrades have also improved safety and security, including a body scanner, digital radios, handheld devices for cell checks and headcounts, and upgraded surveillance cameras. While the jail, now nearly 30 years old, faces ongoing infrastructure challenges, Claud emphasized continual maintenance and equipment replacement, including the kitchen and laundry areas.

Staffing has historically been a challenge due to the demands of corrections work. However, a recent salary study by the Calloway County Fiscal Court raised deputy jailer starting pay from $14 to $17.45 per hour, aiming to stabilize the workforce and reduce turnover.

Claud reflected, “The county jail is a major part of the criminal justice system. It has been my honor to lead this institution for the last eleven years. We also welcome tours for appropriate groups to educate the public about the work we do.”

“We stand united with our law enforcement heroes. Thank you for your service, courage, and sacrifice.”

Leadership, Loyalty, and Service: Sheriff Davidson reflects on his role

By: Laurna Todd
Scene Writer

Livingston County Sheriff Bobby Davidson, elected in November 2010, recently reflected on his years of service, the strength of his department, and the deep connection he feels with the community he proudly serves. “Being Sheriff is not something I take lightly,” Davidson said. “In fact, it means more to me than words can fully express. It’s not just a title — it’s a promise: a promise to serve, to protect, and to lead with integrity.” For Davidson, the role of sheriff is rooted in both duty and personal connection. “This isn’t just where I work — it’s where I live, where I raise my family, and where I share a deep bond with each and every one of you.” He emphasized that law enforcement goes beyond enforcing the law; it’s about building trust with residents and being present in their daily lives. “It’s about showing up, not just in moments of crisis, but in everyday life — at community events, in our schools, and on the front steps of homes when someone needs help.” Under Davidson’s leadership, the Livingston County Sheriff’s Office has launched and expanded numerous outreach initiatives, including the implementation of School Resource Officers (SROs) in schools to ensure the safety of children, as well as programs like Cram the Cruiser, Santa Cop, and DARE — all aimed at supporting youth and fostering positive relationships within the community. “We’ve lowered crime rates and expanded outreach,” he stated. “But I know there’s still more to be done. I’m committed — not just as a law enforcement officer, but as your neighbor — to doing the hard work necessary to keep improving.” While Davidson did not highlight individual new hires this year, he offered high praise for the entire team serving under him. “I want to recognize the dedicated deputies who wear the badge in this department, along with the court security officers up front. They put their lives on the line each day with courage, professionalism, and a sense of duty that inspires me. They are the backbone of this office, and I’m proud to lead them.” Maintaining law and order is a foundational responsibility for the department, ensuring safety, accountability, and peace of mind for county residents. Sheriff Davidson expressed gratitude that there are still individuals willing to step up and accept this responsibility with pride and purpose. As he looks to the year ahead, Davidson is focused on continuing to grow the department’s impact through both innovation and community partnership.

Marshall County Sheriff Matt Hillbrecht highlights staff, new hires, and department goals

By: Laurna Todd
Scene Writer

Marshall County Sheriff Matt Hillbrecht has dedicated more than two decades to serving his community, sharing a deep connection to the county he calls home.

Sheriff Hillbrecht has served as Marshall County Sheriff since January 2023, but his career in law enforcement spans 26 years. “Marshall County is my home, where my children were raised, and now where my grandchildren are being raised,” he said. “It means everything to me to serve in a capacity to help make Marshall County a safer place to live and raise our families. It has been a privilege to serve the citizens of Marshall County over the course of my career, and I hope to continue for several more years.”

This year, the Sheriff’s Office welcomed several new team members, including Deputies Dustin Bevil, Patrick Kelly, and Trevin Green; School Resource Officers Nathan Maxlow, Caleb Curtner, Benny Kauffman, John Lancaster, and Greg Reynolds; and Court Security Officers Darvin Stom and Mike Frensley. Hillbrecht praised their contributions, saying each has played a vital role in the success of the office.

Sheriff Hillbrecht also praised his staff for their dedication and courage. “In a world where law enforcement is often scrutinized, these deputies continue to serve with pride, integrity, and bravery every single day. They put on their uniform knowing the risks, protecting strangers, and making the community safer. Their commitment is what truly makes a great team, and I am honored to serve alongside these heroes.”

Looking ahead, Hillbrecht outlined several goals and initiatives for 2025. One key accomplishment is the expansion of the Peer Support Team, in collaboration with neighboring police departments, providing mental health services to officers after traumatic events. Another upcoming initiative is a Police Clergy Alliance, designed to offer spiritual and emotional support to victims and their families during crises.

The department is also advancing in technology and safety, implementing a drone program, updating mobile data terminals in cruisers, and pursuing grants to obtain additional ballistic shields, helmets, and protective gear for deputies.

Sheriff Hillbrecht’s focus on community, staff excellence, and innovative programs underscores the ongoing dedication of

Backing the Blue in Washington

In 2022 Congressman Sam Graves of Missouri wrote:

I’ve heard a lot of bad ideas over the years. But one of them, this notion that we should “defund the police,” really takes the cake.

There’s no substitute for the brave law enforcement officers who put their lives on the line to keep our communities safe. When you call 911, and I pray that day never comes for you, you expect an armed police officer to respond, not a social worker. But that’s exactly what some of the out-of-touch liberals want to happen.

They want to defund our police departments and send unarmed social workers to do the job of law enforcement professionals. That’s a recipe for disaster. You don’t stop rising crime by sending social workers to do the job of cops and letting criminals off the hook. You stop rising crime by supporting our police officers and cracking down on violent criminals. That seems fairly easy to understand.

This isn’t some harmless, obscure political debate. These kinds of ideas and policies are having real impacts on our communities. The Biden Administration’s decision to turn their backs on law-enforcement agents at the border has allowed deadly fentanyl to flood into our communities at an unpredicted rate.

I don’t just mean border towns in Texas and Arizona. Almost every other day, I see a new story of a teen or toddler stolen from us too soon—in places like Kansas City and Chillicothe. None of this nonsense has done anything to fight back against the crime plaguing our country. In fact, it’s only emboldened criminals to attack and target our law enforcement officers.

In May, the FBI released data showing that the number of law-enforcement officers intentionally killed in the line of duty reached the highest level our country has seen since September 11, 2001. That’s completely unacceptable.

I cosponsored the Protect and Serve Act to enhance penalties for the cowardly criminals that target our police officers. It’s time we got serious about cracking down on violent criminals. Back the blue shouldn’t just be a catchy slogan. It should be something we all try to live up to—to fight back against all these attacks on our police officers and this “defund the police” nonsense.

Sincerely,
Sam Graves

Op-ed by 4 House Republicans

This op-ed from May 2025 with Reps. Pete Stauber, Troy Nehls, Clay Higgins, and Congressman Gabe Evans shares how House Republicans have backed the blue.

During National Police Week, our nation remembers those who bravely served our communities in uniform and who made the ultimate sacrifice upholding the law.

Despite these sacrifices, President Joe Biden and Democrats turned their backs on law enforcement officers across America for the last four years. By allowing millions of illegal immigrants into our country and by passing soft-on-crime policies, the radical Left put local law enforcement officers’ lives in danger.

Now, with President Donald Trump in the White House and with Republicans in control of Congress, America’s law enforcement can rest assured knowing we will always back the blue.

As former law enforcement officers now serving in Congress, we are dedicated to enacting legislation to better the lives of our fellow officers.

We’ve already passed numerous measures to help law enforcement officers do their jobs, like the HALT Fentanyl Act and the Agent Raul Gonzalez Officer Safety Act.

The HALT Fentanyl Act would equip law enforcement officials with the power to go after fentanyl traffickers by permanently classifying fentanyl analogs as a Schedule I substance. And the Agent Raul Gonzalez Officer Safety Act would enact harsher penalties for those who evade law enforcement near the border and prevent illegal immigrants who flee Border Patrol from ever being admitted to the United States. Both bills could help prevent future tragedies from happening again.

In case it wasn’t clear, the days of lawmakers turning their backs on law enforcement officers are over. House Republicans are working with President Trump to honor and protect those who put their lives on the line.

America’s laws are being upheld again. The Thin Blue Line protects our families and communities. It’s only right that we have their backs.

Reps. Pete Stauber, Troy Nehls, Clay Higgins, and Gabe Evans are Republican members of Congress. All four served their communities in law enforcement roles before their time in office.

Thank you

Criminal Justice Training announce 22 Officers Graduate

Program sharpens investigative skills of Kentucky’s law enforcement officers

Gov. Andy Beshear and the Department of Criminal Justice Training (DOCJT) announced that 22 crime scene investigators (CSIs) from across the commonwealth have graduated from the 2025 Kentucky Criminalistics Academy (KCA) Crime Scene Technician Course Class 10.

“Crime scene investigators are vital in supporting our law enforcement and providing justice for victims across our commonwealth,” Gov. Beshear said. “You have answered a call that will help build a safer New Kentucky Home, and for that, all of Kentucky thanks you.”

KCA is made up of two five-week, 200-hour courses for full-time and newly appointed CSIs and patrol officers who serve as CSIs for their agencies. In addition to sworn officers, KCA is open to civilian CSIs who work for law enforcement agencies.

“Your skills as law enforcement officers have been enhanced by completing this academy,” DOCJT Commissioner Mike Bosse said. “It reflects your dedication to the field. I wish you all the best as you continue your careers.”

KCA certification includes training in:

- Digital photography
- Advanced latent print development
- Evidence collection and documentation
- Latent fingerprint recognition and identification
- Shooting scene reconstruction
- Bloodstain pattern recognition and documentation
- Post blast investigation
- Forensic mapping
- Computer crimes investigations
- Forensic anthropological recovery course (University of Tennessee)

DOCJT provides basic training for city and county police officers, sheriff’s deputies, university police and airport police throughout the state, only excluding the Louisville Metro Police Department, Lexington Police Department, Bowling Green Police Department, Owensboro Police Department and Kentucky State Police, each of which have independent academies.

THE KCA CLASS NO. 10 GRADUATES AND THEIR AGENCIES ARE:

1. Jeffery Bessinger, Scottsville Police Department
2. Christopher Boone, Hillview Police Department
3. Chase Bowman, Nicholasville Police Department
4. Emma Burbrink, Louisville Metro Police Department
5. Allyson L. Cook, Hardin County Sheriff’s Office
6. Travis Davis, Todd County Sheriff’s Office
7. Scott Evelyn, Lexington Police Department
8. Evan B. Guilfoyle, Erlanger Police Department

Showing appreciation to your local police officers

You can support law enforcement through various actions, including providing direct appreciation like sending thank-you letters or food, and engaging with your local police department by volunteering, following their social media, or attending community events. Supporting their work also involves advocating for policies that provide adequate funding, training, and resources for officers.

Show personal appreciation

Write a letter: Send a formal letter to your local police department, praising specific actions you have witnessed.

Say thank you: A simple greeting and a verbal “thank you” to officers you see in the community can make a difference.

Bring food: Drop off gift cards, coffee, or meals at the local precinct for officers to enjoy.

Pay it forward: Buy an officer’s coffee or lunch when you are at a restaurant with them.

Engage with your local police

Volunteer: Join the Volunteers in Police Service (VIPS) program or other local volunteer opportunities, which can include administrative work, community outreach, and other support tasks.

Follow on social media: Stay informed about local events, crime alerts, and traffic updates by following your police department’s social media accounts.

Attend community events: Look for and attend events organized by or for your local police department.

Support non-profits: Donate to or support non-profit organizations that help law enforcement officers and their families, or those that assist in breaking the stigma around mental health for officers.

Advocate for systemic support

Advocate for funding: Support policies that provide adequate funding for law enforcement agencies.

Support training and resources: Encourage the allocation of resources for officer training and mental health support, such as counseling and peer support programs.

Encourage reform: Support police reform measures that aim to improve the institution while acknowledging the need for a police presence in the community.

Support the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial and Museum: Support the museum and memorial to honor fallen officers and their families.

Law Enforcement support includes other programs

Law enforcement support includes federal programs like the Department of Defense’s 1033 Program and the Department of Justice’s grant systems, which provide funding and equipment. Community support can be shown through participation in community policing programs and attendance at community meetings. The Department of Homeland Security’s Office for State and Local Law Enforcement acts as a liaison and resource for state, local, and tribal law enforcement.

Federal and state support programs

Department of Justice (DOJ) Grants: Provides funding, training, and technical assistance for public safety and criminal justice activities through the Justice Grants System (JustGrants).

Law Enforcement Support Office (LESO): The Defense Logistics Agency program that transfers excess Department of Defense property, such as vehicles, tools, and supplies, to law enforcement agencies.

DHS Office for State and Local Law Enforcement (OSLLE): Serves as a liaison and resource for state, local, and tribal law enforcement within the Department of Homeland Security.

Law Enforcement Support Center (LESC) : Located within Immigration and Customs Enforcement, it is a national point-of-contact for sharing information and providing assistance to law enforcement partners.

FinCEN Support: The Financial Crimes Enforcement Network provides financial intelligence support, including access to Bank Secrecy Act data and participation in a global network of financial intelligence units.

Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA): Part of the Office of Justice Programs, it provides grants, training, and technical assistance to strengthen the criminal justice system.

Community and individual support

Participate in community policing programs: These programs allow for direct communication and collaboration between citizens and police to address community issues.

Attend community meetings: This provides a platform to communicate directly with police representatives and help solve local problems, fostering a positive relationship.

Support law enforcement organizations: You can support organizations dedicated to providing resources, training, and assistance to law enforcement officers.

Provide feedback and information: Citizens can provide information to law enforcement about crimes or neighborhood concerns.

Report issues: You can report concerns about police misconduct to the appropriate oversight or internal affairs departments.

Be a supportive bystander: Respect law enforcement officers’ actions, and avoid interfering with their work.

Strengthening and unleashing America’s Law Enforcement to pursue criminals and protect innocent citizens

From President DONALD J. TRUMP in April 2025

By the authority vested in me as President by the Constitution and the laws of the United States of America, it is hereby ordered:

Section 1. Purpose and Policy. Safe communities rely on the backbone and heroism of a tough and well-equipped police force. My Administration is steadfastly committed to empowering State and local law enforcement to firmly police dangerous criminal behavior and protect innocent citizens.

When local leaders demonize law enforcement and impose legal and political handcuffs that make aggressively enforcing the law impossible, crime thrives and innocent citizens and small business owners suffer. My Administration will therefore: establish best practices at the State and local level for cities to unleash high-impact local police forces; protect and defend law enforcement officers wrongly accused and abused by State or local officials; and surge resources to officers in need. My Administration will work to ensure that law enforcement officers across America focus on ending crime, not pursuing harmful, illegal race- and sex-based “equity” policies.

The result will be a law-abiding society in which tenacious law enforcement officers protect the innocent, violations of law are not tolerated, and American communities are safely enjoyed by all their citizens again.

Sec. 2. Legal Defense of Law Enforcement Officers. The Attorney General shall take all appropriate action to create a mechanism to provide legal resources and indemnification to law enforcement officers who unjustly incur expenses and liabilities for actions taken during the performance of their official duties to enforce the law. This mechanism shall include the use of private-sector pro bono assistance for such law enforcement officers.

Sec. 3. Empowering State and Local Law Enforcement. (a) The Attorney General and other appropriate heads of executive departments and agencies (agencies) shall take all appropriate action to maximize the use of Federal resources to:

- (i) provide new best practices to State and local law enforcement to aggressively police communities against all crimes;
- (ii) expand access and improve the quality of training available to State and local law enforcement;
- (iii) increase pay and benefits for law enforcement officers;
- (iv) strengthen and expand legal protections for law enforcement officers;
- (v) seek enhanced sentences for crimes against law enforcement officers;
- (vi) promote investment in the security and capacity of prisons; and
- (vii) increase the investment in and collection, distribution, and uniformity of crime data across jurisdictions.

(b) Within 60 days of the date of this order, the Attorney General shall review all ongoing Federal consent decrees, out-of-court agreements, and post-judgment orders to which a State or local law enforcement agency is a party and modify, rescind, or move to conclude such measures that unduly impede the performance of law enforcement functions.

Sec. 4. Using National Security Assets for Law and Order. (a) Within 90 days of the date of this order, the Attorney General and the Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Secretary of Homeland Security and the heads of agencies as appropriate, shall increase the provision of excess military and national security assets in local jurisdictions to assist State and local law enforcement.

(b) Within 90 days of the date of this order, the Secretary of Defense, in coordination with the Attorney General, shall determine how military and national security assets, training, non-lethal capabilities, and personnel can most effectively be utilized to prevent crime.

Sec. 5. Holding State and Local Officials Accountable. The Attorney General shall pursue all necessary legal remedies and enforcement measures to enforce the rights of Americans impacted by crime and shall prioritize prosecution of any applicable violations of Federal criminal law with respect to State and local jurisdictions whose officials:

- (a) willfully and unlawfully direct the obstruction of criminal law, including by directly and unlawfully prohibiting law enforcement officers from carrying out duties necessary for public safety and law enforcement; or
- (b) unlawfully engage in discrimination or civil-rights violations under the guise of “diversity, equity, and inclusion” initiatives that restrict law enforcement activity or endanger citizens.

Sec. 6. Use of Homeland Security Task Forces. The Attorney General and the Secretary of Homeland Security shall utilize the Homeland Security

Task Forces (HSTFs) formed in accordance with Executive Order 14159 of January 20, 2025 (Protecting the American People Against Invasion) to coordinate and advance the objectives of this order.

Sec. 7. General Provisions. (a) Nothing in this order shall be construed to impair or otherwise affect:

- i. the authority granted by law to an executive department or agency, or the head thereof; or
- ii. the functions of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget relating to budgetary, administrative, or legislative proposals.

(b) This order shall be implemented consistent with applicable law and subject to the availability of appropriations.

(c) This order is not intended to, and does not, create any right or benefit, substantive or procedural, enforceable at law or in equity by any party against the United States, its departments, agencies, or entities, its officers, employees, or agents, or any other person.

(d) The Department of Justice shall provide funding for this order’s publication in the Federal Register.

Does your community have a neighborhood watch group? If so, join your neighbors to talk about safety. If your neighborhood doesn’t have a group, consider starting one. Talk to your local law enforcement agency to find out how.

“Honoring Those Who Protect and Serve — Today and Every Day.”

What is the biggest issue in law enforcement?

The biggest challenges facing police officers today are staffing shortages, driven by difficulties in recruitment and retention, and the subsequent increased workload and officer burnout. Other significant challenges include building trust and community relations, adapting to evolving crime trends and technology, and managing officer morale and mental health amid high stress and negative public sentiment.

Recruitment and Retention Challenges

High Attrition: A significant number of officers are leaving the profession due to retirement, burnout, and changing generational preferences for work-life balance.

Declining Interest: Law enforcement careers are becoming less appealing to younger generations who may prioritize different work conditions, compensation, and a desire for more flexibility.

Increased Workload: The shortage of officers leads to higher workloads, fatigue, and decreased efficiency for the remaining officers, impacting their well-being and the quality of community service.

Community Relations and Trust

Eroded Trust: High-profile incidents and negative public perception have strained relationships between police and the communities they serve.

Lack of Engagement: Staffing shortages limit opportunities for officers to engage in proactive community programs and build positive relationships, making it harder to foster trust.

Operational and Evolving Demands

Complex

Crimes: Police are increasingly tasked with handling complex crimes like cybercrime and cross-border criminal activities, which require specialized knowledge and coordination.

Technological Demands: Keeping pace with rapid technological advancements and effectively using new tools is a constant challenge, with tight budgets sometimes hindering necessary training and equipment.

Broadening Responsibilities: Officers are expected to handle a wider range of issues, including mental health crises and school security, in addition to traditional policing duties.

Officer Well-being

Burnout and Stress: High workloads, stress from complex situations, and the pressures of community relations contribute to significant rates of burnout and mental health issues among officers.

Morale and Support: Chiefs face the difficult task of maintaining high morale and creating supportive environments for officers who are experiencing high levels of stress and fatigue.

To all of the police officers out there...

We see you.
We support you.
We pray for you.
We thank you for your service.

“Proud to support our law enforcement families — your dedication keeps us safe.”

The National Police Association endorses the Keep Violent Criminals Off Our Streets Act

Releasing criminal suspects pre-trial without the safeguards provided by cash bail serves no valid purpose, and in fact only rewards lawlessness. These cashless bail policies have driven a violent crime surge that is claiming innocent victims and destroying communities. The Keep Violent Criminals Off Our Streets Act (S. 2705 / H.R. 5213), introduced in the U.S. Senate by Sen. Marsha Blackburn (TN) and in the House by Rep. Elise Stefanik (NY-21), would help put an end to this madness. This bill, endorsed by the National Police Association (NPA), prohibits funds from the Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant (JAG) Program from being distributed to state and local governments that limit or prohibit cash bail. The text for the Senate bill is here, and the House bill is here.

Specifically, the Attorney General would be prohibited from awarding JAG grants to jurisdictions that restrict cash bail for suspects charged with offenses that place the citizenry in imminent danger. Violent offenses like murder, rape, and carjacking would be covered under this bill, as would public disorder offenses like looting and rioting. The Keep Violent Criminals Off Our Streets Act codifies two Executive Orders that President Trump signed to protect law-abiding citizens from the devastation of cashless bail policies. “Police officers are fulfilling their constitutional obligations. They’re conducting investigations, making arrests, and placing their own lives at risk to remove the worst offenders from our streets. Cashless bail policies undermine this lifesaving work while emboldening criminal offenders and placing all of us at risk,” said Paula Fitzsimmons, Legislative Director, National Police Association. “By risking the loss of coveted JAG grant funding, the Keep Violent Criminals Off Our Streets Act would compel prosecutors and judges to use cash bail to keep violent offenders off our streets,” Fitzsimmons added.

The NPA extends its gratitude to Sen. Blackburn and Rep. Stefanik for introducing the Keep Violent Criminals Off Our Streets Act. We believe this bill will save lives, help restore trust in the justice system, and enable police agencies to utilize their resources more effectively. We encourage Congress to prioritize this bill. To support this and future anti-crime, pro-police legislation, join the NPA’s Call to Action team. Receive email alerts on bills, including which lawmakers to contact. About: The National Police Association (NPA) is a nonprofit organization dedicated to supporting law enforcement through advocacy, education, and the courts.
