Sixteen and sent: Teen revives Mission Friends at FBC Mayfield

By MARINA SHELTON
Kentucky Today

Under the glow of stadium lights and the roar of a spirited crowd, Marshall County High School in Draffenville, Kentucky, celebrated its annual Football Homecoming on Friday night. Students, families, and alumni filled the stands in a show of school pride, as the Marshals hosted their much-anticipated halftime coronation ceremony.

The evening’s highlight came as senior Ava Moore was crowned the 2025 Football Homecoming Queen, joined by Ethan Webber, who received the honor of Homecoming King. Moore, widely admired for her leadership, volunteerism, and dedication to her classmates, accepted the crown to a standing ovation. Webber, a key player on the football team and active participant in school clubs, stood proudly by her side at midfield as cameras flashed and the crowd erupted in applause. The coronation marked the culmination of a week packed with spirit-filled events. Students embraced themed dress-up days and rallied together during pep assemblies, building excitement throughout the community. Teachers and staff also joined in the festivities, making the week a memorable one for everyone involved.

As the new Homecoming royalty waved to fans and classmates, the celebration transitioned back to the game at hand. With renewed energy and a sense of unity, the Marshals looked to channel their school spirit into a strong finish for the rest of their season.

For Draffenville and the Marshall County community, Homecoming 2025 was more than just a game — it was a celebration of tradition, pride, and the enduring bond between students, school, and town. “This year I approached our new nursery director, Kristin Hays, about incorporating Mission Friends into our children’s program. She was overjoyed. She stated that our pastor has just challenged church staff to keep their eyes focused on missions,” said Samples. But who could lead such a program? Samples wondered. Hays felt led to approach Wilkerson. Despite the church’s physical displacement over the past three years, the spiritual lives of many young people, including Wilkerson, continued to grow. “I’ve always had a big heart for helping others, but my heart for missions has just grown more. Through my Bible reading, sermons and conferences, Matthew 28 (the Great Commission) has constantly been surfacing,” said Wilkerson. “We are called to share the gospel. I am called to share the gospel.” Wilkerson’s passion was also shaped by her experiences at Crossings Camps and on international mission trips. “I’ve been to Crossing kids and youth camp seven summers. Going to Crossings I always looked up to the staff. They were who I wanted to be like, people who tell others about Jesus.”

When the opportunity came for Wilkerson to teach Mission Friends to preschoolers, she eagerly accepted.

Every week she has a lesson about missionaries and creative activities to help the children understand how God is working in different places throughout the world.

“Teaching the kids has been one of the best things I’ve done. Even though they are really young, I get the opportunity to teach them about missions across the world,” explained Wilkerson.

She also gets to draw on her own experiences abroad as she teaches since attending the church’s trip to the Middle East last year.

She described that trip as a “firsthand experience at how lost the world truly is.”

“I think living in a very Christian area sometimes it’s hard to see the true magnitude of just how many lost people are in the world. I met so many wonderful people in the Middle East, most of whom were lost. They became not just a statistic but a real soul that I knew.” Wilkerson can see missions in her future, and she is already signed up for the same mission trip back to the Middle East next spring. In her leadership of Mission Friends and her personal heart for the lost, she seems to be defying the odds of her generation. However, Wilkerson said she’s not the only one her age who feels this way.

“Going to a public school, I can see that God is working in so many ways. My generation is hungry for God. We have student-led organizations that lead Bible studies, worship nights and monthly meetings. Attendance continues to grow at each of these,” she said.

Wilkerson has a strong word of challenge for others who feel God’s call to go:

“I definitely encourage others to go on a mission trip if the opportunity arises! Even in less-than-ideal circumstances, we can share the word of God. Being obedient to the call, telling others about God and showing the way of Jesus may be the only chance they get to hear about Him. It is easy to think we can’t make a difference, but the truth is each of us can! We all have a part in sharing the gospel.”

Benton City Council Approves Water & Gas Tap On Amendments

By Kelsey Edwards
Marshall Times Editor

The Benton City Council met on October 20, 2025 to discuss surplus property, along with adjusting the gas and water tap on fee process. The meeting opened with the council approving a resolution to surplus a 2018 Ford Fusion and a 1993 International firetruck.

The Ford Fusion was purchased to transport city employees to and from training. Both of the items were surplused through the online auction platform GovDeals.

The council went on to have a second reading of an amendment for both the water tap on ordinance and gas tap on ordinance. The amendment stated that if a tap on is not completed within 30 days of the tap on fee being paid, and the city then increases the fee, the tap on would be completed at the amended rate and same goes for the gas tap on ordinance as well. Both amendments were passed unanimously by the Benton City Council. Stephen Sanderson, the Benton Police Chief shared with the council during his report that the department hired Deputy Blake Maness, who had begun duty on October 6, bringing the department back to full staff. The police department is also in the process of ordering one new vehicle, which is part of the department’s regular annual upgrades.

Mayor Rita Dotson then went on to read a report on behalf of the gas department stating that the department had laid over 8,800 feet of gas main pipe in the area of Vanzora Road, Houser Road, and Wadesboro Road. There is approximately 8,000 feet of main that still needs to be laid for this project. However, the customers throughout the area are able to tap onto the main that has been laid. After Dotson was finished with the gas department report, the meeting shifted to mayor/council items.

Kevin Farley asked if any new information was available about the First Responder Park project to which Dotson stated that she was set to meet with the architect at the end of October.

Farley continued on by sharing that he had been approached by a citizen interested in using the parking lot of the recently acquired city property at 1206 Main Street to host food trucks. Dotson stated that she had no issue with that and to have the interested party contact her. With no other council member items, Dotson went on to share several items of her own. She stated that she had spoken with employees of Benton Electric System, who are interested in converting city lights to LED and that the department would prefer to handle the transition themselves rather than contracting it out to another agency. The transition of lights would take around two years to be fully complete.

Further details could be determined at the Electric System board meeting. Dotson told the council that the city has been working to update the former First Missionary Baptist Church at 1206 Main Street, as well as working with the local tourism agency to potentially attract a new business to the facility. Dotson went on to suggest that the city reconsider how it handles leaves in the fall.

Currently, the city has a ban on burning leaves, but Dotson noted that many people are unable to rake and bag leaves themselves. She explained that Calvert City rents a large machine to bag leaves for people, as long as the leaves have been blown within five feet of the road.

The council expressed interest in implementing a similar program, and Dotson agreed to look at pricing.

The Benton City Council has their next meeting scheduled for November 17, 2025 at 5 pm.

New Marshall County High School Principal Selected

By Kelsey Edwards
Marshall Times Editor

Evan Merrick, the current Assistant Principal of Marshall County High School, has been selected as the new principal. Evan Merrick will be taking over starting January 1, 2026. This selection comes after Shannon Solomon, the current Marshall County High School Principal announced that she will be retiring in December. Merrick began his career in 2006 as a Social Studies teacher at Marshall County High School, serving in that role until 2020. During that time, he also led the school’s football program as Head Coach from 2014 to 2019. From 2020 to 2022, Merrick served as a School Counselor at Marshall County High School before moving to South Marshall Middle School as Assistant Principal for the 2022-2023 school year. He returned to Marshall County High School in 2023 to serve as Assistant Principal. He is currently in his 20th year in Education with the Marshall County School District. Merrick has certifications in Secondary Education–Social Sciences, Instructional Leadership–School Principal, and School Counseling. His career reflects a strong commitment to student achievement, leadership development, and the continued success of Marshall County High School.

Marshall County Hospital CEO to Retire

By Kelsey Edwards
Marshall Times Editor

David Fuqua, the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of the Marshall County Hospital in Benton, Ky has announced that he will be retiring effective March 31, 2026. His retirement comes after more than 12 years of service as CEO and a total of 17 years across two tenures. Fuqua earned his Bachelor of Science in Nursing from the University of Tennessee and his Masters in Health Administration from the Medical College of Virginia.

During his career, Fuqua spent more than 30 years in hospital leadership, serving as CEO at several health care organizations. During his tenure, Fuqua led initiatives that have strengthened the hospital and expanded access to care, including the Mercy Health MRI joint venture, Rural Health Clinic development, 340B program, new Medical Office Building, expanded physician recruitment and the new urgent care clinic in Draffenville.

Kentucky agriculture celebrates Pork Month in October

FRANKFORT, Ky. – Pork producers, pork industry representatives, and state legislators joined Commissioner of Agriculture Jonathan Shell Friday as he proclaimed October as Pork Month in Kentucky during a Legislative Pig Showmanship Competition at the Franklin County Fairgrounds hosted by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture.

“This month we celebrate our agriculture producers who work hard to raise pork, a healthy, lean, and, without a doubt, delicious protein for our family dinner tables,” Commissioner Shell said. “Pork plays an important role in our state and this month we celebrate that importance and the work of our producers across the state.”

During the event, legislators joined Commissioner Jonathan Shell in the show ring to learn the basics of swine showmanship from local youth and experience firsthand the skill and care that goes into raising livestock. Deputy Commissioner Warren Beeler served as judge, adding his expertise and humor to the friendly competition. The event highlighted the importance of Kentucky’s pork industry and celebrated the farm families who help feed and strengthen communities across the Commonwealth.

With more than 860,000 swine produced annually in Kentucky, pork is an important product for the state’s agriculture community. Kentucky pork sales make up 2.2 percent of total cash receipts for Kentucky agriculture. The sale of market hogs and pigs brought in $170.2 million in 2024 for Kentucky farmers.

“This October, we celebrate more than pork — we honor the farm families who bring it to the table,” said Annie Tolle, Kentucky Pork Producers Association board member. “Kentucky pork producers are making a real impact by strengthening rural economies, feeding families, and upholding the highest standards of animal care and sustainability. Events like the Kentucky Legislature Showdown not only highlight the importance of agriculture in our state but also connect farming and policy while showcasing the next generation of agriculture’s brightest leaders. As a board member, I’m proud to celebrate the hard work, innovation, and care that define Kentucky’s pork industry.”

Pork is an important product to the national diet with the average American consuming more than 50 pounds of pork per year. Packed with important nutrients and minerals, pork provides protein, thiamin, niacin, riboflavin, vitamin B6, phosphorus, zinc, and potassium.

Although the size and structure of the Kentucky pork industry have changed over time, increased levels of production have supported jobs and generated earnings in the state economy. The $170.2 million of gross cash receipts from hog markets in 2024 represent only a portion of the total economic activity supported by the industry. Overall, an estimated $459 million of personal income and $646 million of gross national product are supported by the Kentucky pork industry based on 2023 levels of production.

With more than 1,800 swine operations across the Commonwealth, Kentucky ranks in the top 20 states in the nation for total swine production. Though they can be found throughout the state, most of Kentucky’s hogs are raised in western Kentucky, near production of their primary food source of corn and soybeans.

At the end of 2024, Kentucky had approximately 465,000 total head of market hogs on feed, representing only a portion of the more than 860,000 hogs and pigs Kentucky farmers sold at market last year.

OCTC’s TechX Program to Host Info Session

by Katie Powers

OWENSBORO, KY Need a new career path, or a boost to get that promotion? Owensboro Community & Technical College’s (OCTC) TechX initiative is a multi-craft technologist program offering hands-on training in a real-world, industrial environment. Learn more about this innovative program by attending the upcoming FREE information session on November 20. The session begins at 5:30 p.m. in OCTC’s Industry Innovation Center (IIC)

Lobby located at 4800 New Hartford Road. At the information session, there will be opportunities to listen to an engaging presentation, tour our facility and labs, participate in a Q&A panel with program instructors, and meet one-on-one with program instructors. TechX offers hands-on training in welding, fabrication, forklift operation, rigging, and manufacturing in a real-world, self-paced, industrial environment. Through project-based learning, students will solve real-world challenges, and learn to think like a technician - analyzing, building, fixing and improving. Participants will have opportunities to work independently and in teams with problem-based scenarios related to the manufacturing processes. Scholarship opportunities are available. TechX also works with employers for possible job placement upon skill mastery. OCTC is currently taking applications for the spring and summer cohorts. Classes are held Monday - Thursday, 5:30 -

9:30 p.m. For more information about OCTC’s TechX Program, contact Jada Cansler at 270-686-3786 or jada.cansler@kctcs.edu. Owensboro Community & Technical College is one of the sixteen community and technical colleges that make up the Kentucky Community & Technical College System. OCTC serves the KY counties of Daviess, Hancock, Ohio and McLean. OCTC has three campuses in Daviess County and a Center and Annex in Hancock County. OCTC strives to serve the communities in the service area by providing associate degree education for transfer, state of the art technical education for students focusing on entering the workforce, customized business and industry solutions through the Workforce Solutions division, and adult education and business and industry testing through the SkillTrain unit. The Kentucky Community and Technical College System is the Commonwealth’s largest postsecondary institution with 16 colleges and more than 70 campuses. We also are Kentucky’s largest provider of workforce training and online education. Through partnerships with business and industry, we align our programs to meet the needs of local employers. We help students fulfill their dreams of creating a better life through programs that lead directly to jobs or help them transfer to one of our four-year partners.

St. Henry Church to Host Annual Christmas Bazaar

(HARDIN, Ky.) — St. Henry Church will hold its annual Christmas Bazaar on Saturday, November 8, 2025, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 16097 US Highway 68 East in Hardin. The community event promises a full day of holiday shopping, food, and entertainment for all ages. Attendees can browse handmade crafts and unique gifts, purchase delicious baked goods, and explore a variety of holiday decorations. The bazaar will feature raffle prizes and a silent auction, with proceeds benefiting the church. Lunch and snacks will be available for purchase throughout the day. Organizers invite the public to join them for the festive occasion.

On October 23, members of the First District Kentucky Education Association Retired Teachers and Retired Teachers Association celebrated Retired Teachers Week with a pizza lunch and snacks from Pizza Inn. The week, designated by Kentucky’s General Assembly during the third week of October, honors retired educators. A proclamation was read, and legislative topics were discussed by Representative Kim Holloway and Austin Wetherington from Representative James Comer’s office, followed by a Q&A session with members. (Submitted by Charlotte Benton)

During the event, First District Retired Teachers president Charlotte Benton recognized Mary Bryant Skinner as the First District Grandparent Essay Winner, sponsored by AARP and KRTA. Mary Bryant, a fifth grader at Lyon County Elementary, wrote a 496-word essay titled “Why My Papa is the Best.” In her heartfelt essay about her grandfather, Mike Crocker, she shared the valuable life lessons and experiences that have shaped who she is. Her teacher is Beth Davis, and her parents are Kyle and Elizabeth Skinner. Benton presented Mary Bryant with a plaque and a $100 check from AARP. (Submitted by Charlotte Benton)

Murray State University Department of Art & Design hosts senior exhibitions

MURRAY, Ky. – The Murray State University Department of Art & Design and University Galleries are pleased to announce the capstone exhibitions of work by Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA) students for Fall 2025. The exhibitions will be on view until Nov. 7 in the Mary Ed Mecoy Hall Gallery and the Clara M. Eagle Galleries, located on the sixth and seventh floors of the Price Doyle Fine Arts Building on Murray State’s campus. Glisson Earns All State 1st Team Honors

By Tim Taylor
KPI Writer

Ballard Memorial senior golfer Madison Glisson recently earned 1st Team All State honors in her final year of high school competition. For the 2nd consecutive year, she finished 2nd in All A State Points finishing with 3 tournament wins and 6 runner up finishes. She was the 1st Region All A Champion for the 4th consecutive season and finished the All A State Tournament runner up following 3 All A Championships in the prior 3 seasons. She was the 2025 1st Region runner up and finished a career best 3rd in the 2025 KHSAA State Tournament. She also earned 1st Team honors for the 1st Region. She was a great ambassador for golf and for Ballard Memorial on and off the course earning the Leachman Buick GMC golf scholarship at the KHSAA State Tournament earlier this month. She is expected to have her official college signing ceremony in the coming weeks.

Kentucky, Georgetown Renew Historic Meeting in Exhibition at Rupp Arena

LEXINGTON, Ky. — For the first time since their legendary 1984 Final Four clash, Kentucky and Georgetown will share the court again — but this time, the outcome will not affect the record books. The Wildcats will host the Hoyas in an exhibition matchup at Rupp Arena, closing out their preseason slate after a 78-65 exhibition win over top-ranked Purdue last week. Kentucky has faced Georgetown only twice in program history, most memorably in the 1984 national semifinals, where the Wildcats fell 53-40 after scoring just 11 points in the second half. Despite leading at halftime, Kentucky went a full 10 minutes without a basket in the loss.

First-year Kentucky coach Mark Pope expressed respect for Georgetown and head coach Ed Cooley as his team prepares for another significant tune-up test. “They’re one of the storied programs in college basketball,” Pope said. “It’s going to be a big-time game.”

Pope praised his team’s toughness against Purdue, noting they held their own against a veteran frontline. Injured guard Jaland Lowe remains limited as the Wildcats prioritize long-term health ahead of Tuesday’s season opener versus Nicholls State.

With one of the deepest rosters of his career, Pope believes Kentucky’s blend of speed, mobility, and grit can carry them far this season.

New law takes effect restricting drone use when hunting and fishing

FRANKFORT, Ky. — New measures are now in place to help protect Kentucky’s fish and wildlife resources from the increasing use of aircraft technologies by hunters and anglers in the field.

Following adjournment of the Kentucky Interim Joint Committee on Natural Resources and Energy on Oct. 16, 2025, a new administrative regulation (301 KAR 3:140) went into effect making it unlawful to use aircraft or unmanned aircraft in the take of fish or wildlife.

“This regulation

will provide guidance regarding the use of aircraft, including drones, while hunting, fishing or participating in other outdoor activities,” said Maj. David Marques with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Law Enforcement Division. “It will also provide a framework for our wardens to work within when investigating and enforcing potential violations. This regulation has been needed for some time, and we are happy to finally have it in place.”

Under the authority granted to Kentucky

Fish and Wildlife by KRS 150.010(46), “take” includes pursue, shoot, hunt, wound, catch, kill, trap, snare or capture wildlife in any way and any lesser act designed to lure, attract or entice for these purposes; and to place, set, aim, or use any device, animal, substance or agency which may reasonably be expected to accomplish these acts; or to attempt to do these acts or to assist any other person in the doing of or the attempt to do these acts.

Regulations Now in Effect:

A person shall not use an aircraft or unmanned aircraft system:

To fish, hunt or take wildlife or to drive or herd any wildlife for the purpose of fishing, hunting or taking; or

To harass any wildlife.

Aircraft or unmanned aircraft systems may be used by:

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife employees and contractors or agents acting on behalf of the agency when addressing human safety, law enforcement, research, management or other needs approved by the department;

Authorized landowners or their agents to engage in lawful wildlife damage control activities; and

Commercial fishers for use in locating or removing invasive carp.

For questions, the public may contact their local Kentucky Game Warden or the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Information Center at 800-858-1549 or atinfo.center@ky.gov, weekdays 8 a.m. – 4:30 p.m. (Eastern), except holidays.

National lung cancer screening day set for saturday, november 8

Murray, KY — This year, MCCH will be participating in the National Lung Cancer Screening Day will be opening appointments on Saturday, November 8, with a shared mission to reduce disparities, promote access to care, and save lives through early detection. A provider order is required to receive a lung cancer screening. Lung cancer screenings are covered by most insurance carriers, based on your benefits. MCCH will be offering a cash price of $384.00 for a lung cancer screening, for patients who do not have health insurance. When speaking with your provider, request Saturday, November 8 as your appointment date. Appointment times are limited and are based on a first come, first served basis, with appointments beginning at 8:00 a.m., Saturday, November 8. Registration for National Lung Screening Day will be in the South Tower Front Lobby, inside Main Entrance 1, located on Vine Street.

Lung cancer remains one of the deadliest forms of cancer, claiming the lives of more than 125,000 Americans each year. However, survival rates can improve dramatically when lung cancer is detected early through proper screening. Despite this, only a small percentage of eligible individuals currently undergo screening.

“Our goal for National Lung Cancer Screening Day is to make it easier for people to get screened—especially those who can’t take time off during the week,” said Heidi Hordyk, MCCH Director of Radiology. “By increasing access and awareness, we can help detect more cases early and save more lives.”

MCCH joins the national effort to spread awareness about the importance of screening and to encourage eligible community members to take advantage of available lung cancer screening programs.

Everyone can help by sharing the message about National Lung Cancer Screening Day with family, friends, and colleagues. Raising awareness helps increase screening rates, reduce barriers to access, and ultimately create more lung cancer survivors.

Together, we can increase lung cancer screenings and save lives through early detection.

For more information, and to schedule your lung cancer screening, contact the MCCH Scheduling Department at (270) 762-1919.

Fall is the time to plant garlic

AG UPDATE

for Ag and Natural Resources

Tom Miller,
Ballard County Ext. Agent

Don't turn your back on your garden just yet. Fall is the perfect time of year to plant garlic. Garlic takes fall and winter to develop its roots. They will start to produce foliage in early spring, and you'll harvest in summer.

Garlic is part of the Allium genus (amaryllis family), which includes onions. Garlic cultivars are categorized as either hardneck or softneck. Hardneck varieties tend to be more "garlicky" in flavor, with a hotter or spicier profile. They produce a flower stalk, called a scape, in the late spring. Cut off the scapes to encourage the plants to grow bigger bulbs, but don't throw them away. Scapes are delicious and add a delicate garlic taste to salads, side dishes or pesto.

Softneck varieties lack a center stalk and are usually milder in flavor. The garlic you'll find in grocery stores are generally softneck varieties. They often have more and larger cloves than the hardneck varieties. Other traits that can differ between cultivars include clove arrangement, color and skin tightness.

Hardneck varieties require a long, cold winter for their dormancy period, so it's a good idea to plant both hardneck and softneck varieties. This will not only give you a range of flavor profiles, but you'll be sure to have at least one variety succeed, if the winter isn't cold enough.

The largest cloves produce the best plants. Get your seed bulbs from a seed company or local nursery. Planting cloves from bulbs you've bought at the grocery may produce garlic plants but usually won't produce as well as nursery stock. They may not be a good variety for this area, plus they are often harder to grow, because they are often treated to produce a longer shelf life.

While garlic is relatively easy to grow, the goal is to plant it before the soil freezes, but not so far out that it has time to put out top growth before the ground freezes. In this area, that usually means October and early November planting. Soil preparation is crucial for success. Garlic needs well-drained, slightly acidic soil that's rich in organic matter. Heavily compacted soils make bulb production difficult. Planting in raised beds promotes good soil drainage, reduces soil compaction and increases the ease of harvest. Mix compost and aged or composted (never raw) manure into the soil to provide the nutrients the plants need. A soil pH of 6.5-7 is best.

Plant cloves 2 to 4 inches apart and 2 inches deep, with the pointed end facing up. Rows should be 10 to 14 inches apart.

Mulch immediately after planting.

Next July and August, dig plants and hang in a dry area for several weeks, then store them as you would potatoes or onions—cool but not refrigerated, dark and dry. Your bountiful harvest of cloves will be available through the rest of the year.

For more information about home and commercial production of garlic, check out the Center for Crop Diversification's publication, CCD-CP-99, <https://www.uky.edu/ccd/sites/www.uky.edu.ccd/files/garlic.pdf>

Murray State University's Fall 2025 enrollment indicates growth in numerous categories

MURRAY, Ky. – Murray State University's Fall 2025 enrollment report indicates continued momentum and increases in multiple categories.

Murray State's total enrollment of 9,932 students (8,217 undergraduate students and 1,715 graduate students) is its second-largest student body over the past eight years and includes students from 116 Kentucky counties, 49 states and 60 countries.

Over the past seven years, Murray State has grown exponentially in categories including first-time freshman students (13.3% increase), first-time graduate students (a nearly 20% increase), international students (165% increase) and total enrollment (5% increase) in that timeframe.

An important marker of student progression toward graduation, Murray State's first-to-second year retention rate of 78% is its highest in five years, with continual increases in that timeframe.

This year's freshman class of 1,493 students includes the most students from the University's 18-county primary service region that it has had in the past six years. Thirteen percent of this year's freshman class were high school valedictorians, the highest percentage in the past seven years.

More and more freshmen (70% of this year's freshman class) are carrying earned college credit hours when enrolling at Murray State — the highest percentage recorded at the University.

"Our Fall 2025 enrollment report indicates strong growth in numerous facets. This momentum is not accidental in nature. We are very appreciative of countless individuals both within the University and beyond who are leaders in student recruitment and retention, and help advocate for the transformative experience that Murray State offers," Murray State President Dr. Ron Patterson said. "Enrolling, preparing and graduating students who will be leaders in our service region, the Commonwealth and beyond — coupled with access, affordability and quality — are nationally-recognized strengths of Murray State University. Student learning and success will continue to be at the heart of everything we do. This is a great time to be a Racer!"

Murray State has again been recognized by U.S. News & World Report as one of the top universities in the country in multiple categories, marking the institution's 35th consecutive year of top-tier rankings by the national college guide.

Noted as one of America's best college values, Murray State has been recognized nationally for both quality and value by the following publications:

- Washington Monthly - "Best Bang for the Buck"
- Wall Street Journal - "Best Colleges in the United States"
- Niche - "Best Colleges in Kentucky"
- Colleges of Distinction - "Best Colleges"

Murray State has also been recognized as a member of the FirstGen Forward Network (44% of its students are first generation) and has been noted by Military Friendly as a Military Friendly school.

Admission for the fall 2026 semester and 2026-27 academic year at Murray State University is open as future Racers should apply today at admissions.murraystate.edu. Students interested in joining the Racer family can also learn more as well as schedule a campus visit by calling the office of recruitment at 270-809-2896 or emailing msu.recruitment@murraystate.edu. Based on the University's most recent data, a record $136 million is awarded annually to students in financial aid and scholarships, and among its freshman class, 99% received a scholarship or financial aid.

About Murray State University: Since 1922, Murray State University has provided a collaborative, opportunity-rich living and learning community that fosters personal growth and professional success through a high-quality college experience. Students receive support from inspiring faculty and staff and will join a distinctive campus community — the Racer Family. With more than 10,000 students, Murray State prepares the next generation of leaders to join more than 80,000 successful alumni who make a difference in their community, across the country and around the world. We are Racers. The University's main campus is located in Murray, Kentucky, and includes five regional campuses in Ft. Campbell, Henderson, Hopkinsville, Madisonville and Paducah.

Shifting Priorities and Rising Costs Reshape College Enrollment Trends

College enrollment in the United States continues to evolve as students, institutions, and the labor market adapt to new realities. After several years of pandemic-driven disruption, enrollment numbers have begun to stabilize, though not evenly across all sectors. Community colleges, which experienced steep declines earlier in the decade, are seeing renewed interest as students seek affordable pathways, flexible schedules, and career-focused programs. Meanwhile, four-year universities continue to attract students, but many are expanding online and hybrid options to meet changing expectations.

A major driver of enrollment trends is the shifting perception of higher education's value. While a bachelor's degree remains a key route to long-term economic opportunity, rising tuition costs and student debt concerns have pushed many young people to consider alternatives such as apprenticeships, trade programs, and short-term credentials. Colleges are responding by strengthening partnerships with employers, emphasizing hands-on learning, and offering clearer career outcomes.

Demographic changes also play a role. Declining birth rates mean fewer traditional college-age students, prompting institutions to recruit adult learners, veterans, and international students. As competition increases, colleges are investing more in student support services, mental health resources, and financial aid programs. Ultimately, the future of college enrollment will depend on accessibility, affordability, and the ability to connect education to meaningful careers.

Sudoku Puzzle

How it Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle! Good Luck! ANSWERS ON CLASSIFIED PAGE IN B SECTION.

Addison Howell Awarded MVC Freshman of the Week

By Sam Rhodes
- Murray State University Athletics

Addison Howell earned her second MVC Freshman of the Week award following her performances in the Racers’ wins over UIC and Valparaiso. Howell recorded her first collegiate assist, setting up Mary Hardy’s game-winning goal to take down Valparaiso, and took five shots on the week. Her performances earned the third MVC Freshman of the Week honor for a Racer this season, alongside Ava Wilson’s Freshman of the Week she earned Oct. 20. Howell and the Racers will compete for a chance at the MVC regular season title this Thursday when they take on Indiana State in Terre Haute, Ind. For more information on the Murray State women’s soccer program, visit GoRacers.com or follow @RacersSoccer on X and Instagram.

MARSHALL COUNTY WEEK IN REVIEW

Becky Travelstead, a Benton resident, completed training and is now partnered with her new service dog, Sherman, who is a 2-year-old Labrador Retriever from the NEADS Service Dog program. Sherman is a specially-trained Hearing Dog who will provide vital assistance to Becky in her daily life. His primary role will be to alert Becky to important sounds she cannot hear — such as a ringing doorbell, a smoke alarm, or an emergency siren — by making physical contact with her and leading her to the source of the sound.

The Board of Directors of Community Financial Services Inc., the holding company for Community Financial Services Bank(CFSB), has declared a cash dividend of $1.25 per share, payable on Nov. 3 to shareholders of record as of Oct. 1. This represents a 25% increase from the $1.00 per share dividend declared in 2024.

The Kentucky Department of Education has named the new class of ambassadors for the GoTeachKY initiative. The mission of GoTeachKY is to ensure that all students across the commonwealth have equitable access to effective educators. GoTeachKY seeks to recruit and inspire the next generation of teachers in Kentucky, helping address the critical teacher shortage that affects every state in the nation. Ambassadors were selected from a pool of applicants across the state who answered the call for teachers interested in supporting the initiative and promoting the teaching profession. The 2025-2026 cohort represents a diverse mix of grade levels, subject areas and geographic regions across Kentucky. There was one person from the Marshall County School District to be selected and that was Paul Lamb from Sharpe and Calvert City Elementary School.

MURRAY / CALLOWAY COUNTY WEEK IN REVIEW

The Murray State University Department of Art & Design and University Galleries announced the capstone exhibitions of work by Bachelor of Fine Arts students for Fall 2025. The exhibitions will be on view until Nov. 7 in the Mary Ed McCoy Hall Gallery and the Clara M. Eagle Galleries, located on the sixth and seventh floors of the Price Doyle Fine Arts Building on Murray State’s campus.

Murray State University officials, friends and community members joined alumna Melissa Easley to dedicate the 55-acre Easley Conservation Stewardship Area, which is a new outdoor science learning laboratory for Murray State students. Easley recently donated the property to the Murray State University Foundation for the use of Murray State students for conservation-related research and study.

Local Students Shine at Governor's School for Entrepreneurs

By Laurna Todd
KPI Writer

Several local high school students recently represented our region among Kentucky's most talented young innovators at the 2025 Governor's School for Entrepreneurs (GSE) Summer Startup Program, held June 22–July 13 at the University of Kentucky's Gatton College of Business and Economics.

Being selected for GSE is a prestigious honor, as the program accepts students from across the Commonwealth through a competitive application process. Each year, participants spend three weeks immersed in an entrepreneurial boot camp, developing real-world business ideas, learning teamwork and leadership, and pitching their projects before a panel of industry professionals.

This year's session was the largest in GSE history, with 159 students participating. Among them were several from our local area who made outstanding contributions:

- Lacey Burnley, Ballard Memorial High School (Ballard County) — Team Ever-Safe, which developed a safety bracelet designed to help prevent exploitation and violence against teenage girls. The team earned First Place in the Hollers League, receiving a $1,000 cash prize.
- Kady Boaz, Hickman County High School (Hickman County) — Team Knot a Problem, creators of a magnetic jewelry box that prevents tangled jewelry while traveling. The team placed Third in the Hollers League, earning a $500 prize.

- Panida Chetawatee and Nate Johnston, Murray High School (Calloway County) — participated in standout teams Knot a Problem and Li-ON, which focused on jewelry storage and lithium-ion battery recycling solutions.
- Noah Bailey, Caldwell County High School (Caldwell County) — a member of Team Good Gear, which earned Second Place in the Hollers League with a customized AI-powered survey designed to reduce buyer's regret in sports goods, winning a $750 cash prize.

Participants described the experience as transformative and inspiring, noting that the program helped them build confidence, leadership skills, and a deeper understanding of what it takes to turn an idea into a real business.

Through hands-on learning and mentorship, GSE empowers high school students to think creatively, solve problems, and gain confidence as future business leaders. Many alumni have gone on to start their own companies or pursue business-related careers across Kentucky.

The Governor's School for Entrepreneurs is open to all

Kentucky students in grades 9 through 11, regardless of GPA or test scores, and is free of charge for those selected thanks to state funding and generous private sponsors.

100,000 Kentuckians face insurance premium spike Saturday

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – Gov. Andy Beshear and U.S. Rep. Morgan McGarvey, D-Louisville, issued a dire warning on Tuesday about what will happen to everyone if Congress does not extend the Affordable Care Act tax credits beyond the end of the year.

During a joint virtual press conference, Beshear said, “These tax credits help lower the cost of health insurance premiums. For millions of Americans these subsidies are the only reason health insurance is within reach, as the cost of living keeps going up. If these credits aren’t extended, nearly 100,000 Kentuckians with insurance plans through our state marketplace called ‘Kynect,’ could see up to 37 percent higher premiums for 2026 coverage.”

Beshear said, “American families should never have to choose between affording groceries, paying the rent and being able to afford health care coverage. Not extending the tax credits will force many of our neighbors to make hard choices.”

He added those who have their health insurance through their employer will also see their premiums skyrocket.

McGarvey said this all began when Congressional Republicans made the largest cut to the Medicaid program in our nation’s history. “A move that in just a year’s time will kick hundreds of thousands of Kentuckians off of their health insurance. The Kentucky Hospital Association is predicting that if this continues to be the policy, you could see as many as 35 rural hospitals in Kentucky close.”

McGarvey also noted that the Affordable Care Act helped 440,000 Kentuckians get health insurance for the first time. “If you look at who is on the Affordable Care Act, it’s easy to see why. Over half of the adults using the Affordable Care Act for their insurance own a small business. They work in a small business. It has provided eople the ability to have health insurance and be able to afford it.”

Gov. Beshear said with federal SNAP benefits being cut off on Saturday, his hands are tied. “The USDA sent every state a letter saying the states cannot work” with vendors that provide those SNAP benefits. So, this isn’t just the Trump Administration saying they are not going to fund it, they are actually prohibiting us from doing things as well. This is about a $100 million hit to Kentuckians.”

According to Beshear, the Trump administration has emergency funds that are available for situations like this.

The Best Christmas Movies to Watch This Holiday Season

As the festive season approaches, few things capture the spirit of Christmas like curling up with a classic holiday movie. Whether you're drawn to nostalgic favorites, heartwarming tales, or laugh-out-loud comedies, there's a Christmas film for everyone. Here's a look at some of the best Christmas movies to enjoy this year.

1. It's a Wonderful Life (1946)

Frank Capra's timeless masterpiece remains a must-watch every Christmas. Starring James Stewart as George Bailey, the film tells the story of a man who learns how deeply his life has touched others. With its heartfelt message about gratitude, kindness, and the value of community, It's a Wonderful Life continues to inspire generations.

2. Home Alone (1990)

No holiday season is complete without Kevin McCallister's ingenious booby traps. Macaulay Culkin's unforgettable performance as the mischievous boy left behind by his family delivers both laughter and nostalgia. The mix of slapstick comedy and genuine family warmth has made Home Alone a Christmas tradition for over three decades.

3. Elf (2003)

Will Ferrell's portrayal of Buddy the Elf is pure holiday magic. This modern classic blends humor, heart, and holiday cheer as Buddy leaves the North Pole to find his real father in New York City. With its quotable lines, infectious energy, and joyful soundtrack, Elf captures the childlike wonder of Christmas.

4. Love Actually (2003)

For those who enjoy romance and emotion during the holidays, Love Actually offers an ensemble cast and multiple intertwining love stories. Set in London at Christmas, the film explores love in all its forms — funny, awkward, and deeply moving. It's a festive favorite that balances humor and heartache beautifully.

5. The Polar Express (2004)

This animated adventure, based on Chris Van Allsburg's beloved children's book, reminds viewers to "believe." With Tom Hanks voicing multiple characters, The Polar Express captures the magic and mystery of Christmas Eve through dazzling visuals and a sense of wonder perfect for families.

6. A Christmas Carol (Various versions)

Charles Dickens' classic tale of redemption has inspired countless adaptations, from Alastair Sim's 1951 version to The Muppet Christmas Carol (1992). The story of Ebenezer Scrooge's transformation remains one of the most powerful depictions of Christmas spirit and compassion ever told.

Whether you prefer heartfelt classics or modern comedies, these films remind us what the holiday season is truly about: love, generosity, and the joy of being together. So grab some cocoa, dim the lights, and let the Christmas magic begin.

VICTORIOUS Living ...in a troubled world

One moment changes everything

By Teresa LeNeave
Leneave2@comcast.net

There are countless Bible stories that could have been written just yesterday. They are still as relevant as the 5:00 news. One such individual emerges from the pages in the Bible: the woman at the well. She lived a life of passion. Since she had already been married and divorced five times, she was not a young woman when she met Jesus, but she still had not changed her sinful lifestyle.

Obviously, she was the type that needed a man. Had she been abused? Had she been an orphan without a father in her life? Or, had she been a rebellious child? The Bible doesn't tell us much about her past, but a few things were pretty obvious, one being that she was co-dependent. She needed a man to feel secure. Being alone was not something she could face. After five husbands, she now was in a live-in relationship.

I imagine her dealing with feelings of rejection. Normally, women went to the well early in the morning before the dessert sun was miserably hot, but not this woman. She went at noon, at meal time when very few, if anyone, would be there. Perhaps she was coming at noon to avoid the sneers and whispers of the other women who were so quick to judge her.

Five husbands, in any generation or culture, is not something a woman is proud of. There were periods of history when men could have all the wives he wanted, but never a time when women had that luxury. From the beginning of time women were expect to be chaste, to love her husband and her family. If you wonder how an unchaste woman was thought of, you have only to read Proverbs chapter two. Solomon said her ways lead to death and total destruction. In Proverbs 5:3,4 he says, "For the lips of an immoral woman drip honey, and her mouth is smoother than oil; but in the end she is bitter as worm wood" (which is poison).

That's the kind of culture she had to face, daily. She was the "immoral woman". The one people whispered about. She knew what public rejection felt like. Life had not been good to her. Her life was empty, but she continued to search.

And that is where Jesus finds her.

To her, He is a "Jew" which was not good news and when she saw Him sitting on the well something in her stomach probably began to sink. "Oh, no" she must have thought. Because Jews did not associate with Samaritans, she was surprised that He spoke much less ask her for a drink of water! Her immediate response came from a life of rejection when she spit out words of pain. "How is it that You, being a Jew, ask a drink from me, a Samaritan woman? For Jews have no dealings with Samaritans" (John 4:9 KJV).

Jesus said, "I'll give you water that you will never thirst again". Her entire life she had been searching for something to satisfy and now Jesus was offering to end the search.

Sometimes in deer hunting, the tree stand becomes the seat of discontentment.

Early in my hunting life, I was notorious for giving up on one spot for the hopes of another. My logic was always based upon the deer that I was not seeing. It didn't matter that I had spent weeks or even months scouting that particular area. I was willing to give up after only a few days of inactivity.

And since these were the days before trail cameras, my roaming always seemed justified. Sometimes I would get out of the tree stand and just start wandering around. I called it spotting and stalking, but it was really my inability to be patient with where I was. My cry was, "If I could only see deer! I don't have to shoot one; I just want to see movement." So, after a couple of non-productive days,

I was ready to move on. The problem was that many times the new place I found was no better than the last. So, I moved again. Now, as you can see, I began forming a pattern of constantly moving; and worse, a pattern of impatience. Thankfully, as I grew older, I overcame the urge to move. I began to trust my pre-season scouting and realized that my constant moving was not caused by the lack of deer movement but by something lacking within me. What was lacking was problems, or as the Bible says, tribulation. Here's what it says. "We also glory in tribulations, knowing that tribulation produces perseverance." In deer terms this means that when I realized that deer was showing up at the place I had just moved from; I understood that I had moved too soon. My tribulation of the past produced in me the patience I need today.

Right now, you may be getting a little antsy as well. The urge to move may be welling up inside you. It may be coming from unrealized expectations or delayed activity. But don't be so quick to leave. You may only be moving toward a pattern of impatience while someone else is

Knowing God through His word

By William F Holland Jr.

Even with something as simple as praying and reading the Bible every day, it's a challenge even to those who are determined and sincerely seeking God's divine guidance. As a Christian writer and teacher, I encourage everyone to make time and find the secret place of God's presence where they can spend quality moments alone with Him. I've noticed a huge difference between reading non-religious books and reading the Bible. There is no resistance when reading novels and ordinary books, but when we read and study the Bible, alarms sound, and the atmosphere changes as it draws the attention of dark spiritual forces.

I realize some believe this is silly and there is no such thing as invisible entities trying to hinder us, but when we make a vow to obey Christ, we not only face hostility from our carnal nature, but also aggressive attacks from demonic enemies who oppose God. I'm not condemning those who read secular books, watch movies, or play video games, etc., but would you be surprised if I told you that I know church members who have confessed they never read the Bible? How can a Christian know God personally or understand what He requires if we refuse to read or study His word? What about passages such as Matthew 4:4? "But Jesus answered and said, it is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God."

Are there individuals who can spend significant amounts of time entertaining themselves while also being devoted to daily prayer and Bible study? The concern comes when the hours people spend on their phones, internet, and television add up to be significantly more than the time they spend in prayer and absorbing God's instructions. There was a time when statements like this were respected as truth and brought conviction to the listener. However, as compromising is more popular today than ever, lame excuses are now justified as legitimate reasons. As the religious continue to fall into the snare traps of rebellion, denial, and deception, we now commonly hear people declare how they do not want anyone meddling in their personal business.

Lately, we've been talking about our responsibility to engage in intercessory prayer and spiritual warfare, and we cannot overemphasize how critical this is to those who have a passion to be an overcomer for Christ. Since God has explained the symbolism of our spiritual armor mentioned in Ephesians chapter six, we are left to ponder why a person who says they are a servant of God would ignore it. Why is it that some church-goers assume the pastor and elders do the work of the ministry while the average pew sitter is exempt? Many believe that if they contribute money to the church, this is all they need to do. However, if a person is truly saved and filled with the Holy Spirit, they also have ears to hear what God's Spirit is telling them to do. Every Christian has been given the gifts, talents, anointing, authority, and the fruits of the Holy Spirit, which means we are commanded to walk, work, and obey His voice. We read in I Corinthians 12:4-6, Matthew 28:15-20, Acts 1:8, and II Corinthians 3:5-6, that as the Lord's disciples, we are responsible for doing the work of ministry, and be constantly aware of His presence.

Every thought and deed should be a reflection of God's love and grace, and if it is not, we are guilty of the sins of omission. I Peter 4:10 is not a suggestion. "Each of you should use whatever gift you have received to serve others, as faithful stewards of God's grace in its various forms." Choosing to live in denial and only think happy thoughts does not mean the spiritual war between light and darkness is not raging all around us. Thomas Gray, an eighteenth-century poet, declared, "What you don't know can't hurt you," but we know this reveals the immaturity and deception of those who take comfort in false security. It's probable the devil would not need to waste his time hindering lukewarm religious individuals, as they are no real threat to his agenda. In fact, they are helping promote Satan's twisted and distorted philosophies. It's the devoted and obedient follower of Jesus who reads their Bibles and intercedes, and are engaged on the front-lines of spiritual combat. The dark side fears the children of God as demons know that greater is He that lives in us than he that is in the world.

THE BITTER CUP OF LEGALISM

Bro. Brandon G. Bramlett
Bandana Baptist Church

Coffee was once considered the devil's drink of choice. Because coffee was popular among Muslims who drank it to stay awake during their evening worship services, Roman Catholic Church leaders during the 16th century claimed that it was a demonic concoction "of Islamic infidels." That is, until Pope Clement VIII gave it a taste—and it didn't take long for him to bless the bean. "This Satan's drink is so delicious," he remarked, "it would be a pity to let the infidels have exclusive use of it. We shall fool Satan by baptizing it." And immediately, coffee conquered the continent and flowed all the way to the mugs we fill every morning.

Coffee-hating legalists nearly missed out on one of God's greatest gifts to mankind, and legalism continues to rob believers of God's gifts of joy, grace, peace, and Christian liberty. Legalism, if you didn't know, is when we add man-made rules and religious traditions to God's word, grading our holiness and that of others based on restrictions God never gave us in the Scripture. Legalism turns us into spiritual hall monitors who police piety based on personal preferences. And legalism rears its ugly head when we measure spirituality by clothing choices, denominational traditions, worship music styles, and strict abstinence from activities not explicitly prohibited in the Bible—things like watching secular movies, wearing blue jeans to church, or enjoying classic rock music. The Pharisees of Jesus' time were steeped in legalism, demonstrated by their indignant insinuation that His disciples were heathen-like sinners because they didn't ceremonially wash their hands before eating (Mark 7:1-5).

The apostle Paul warned believers about the danger of legalism in Colossians 2:20-23, "You have died with Christ, and he has set you free from the spiritual powers of this world. So why do you keep on following the rules of the world, such as, "Don't handle! Don't taste! Don't touch!"? Such rules are mere human teachings about things that deteriorate as we use them. These rules may seem wise because they require strong devotion, pious self-denial, and severe bodily discipline. But they provide no help in conquering a person's evil desires" (NLT). Simply put, legalism may appear holy, but it does not make you holy. It may keep your hands clean, but it cannot keep your heart pure.

However, the remedy for legalism is not swerving to the opposite extreme and indulging in unrestrained and careless conduct.

The solution is also not more rules—the answer is more Jesus (Col. 2:6). And we must obey the Lord out of gratitude for His saving grace (cf. 2 Cor. 5:14-15; Titus 2:11-12), and carefully assess our obedience according to what God has clearly written in His word. Additionally, we ought to enjoy and embrace the good gifts of God's creation without guilt, and exercise wisdom while doing so. Otherwise, we will dilute the sweet cup of God's grace and drink the bitter cup of legalism.

Safe trick-or-treating tips

Halloween is enjoyed by people of all ages, but few get a bigger kick out of the holiday than children. There are costumes to be worn, time spent with friends and the opportunity to collect free candy and other treats.

Although Halloween can be a fun time, the Children’s Safety Network warns that it’s also a time when accidents can happen. According to the CSN, the most dangerous day for child pedestrians is Halloween, with two times as many child pedestrians dying on Halloween compared to other days. It is essential to prioritize safety on Halloween, and following these guidelines can help.

- Make sure costumes are short. Costumes that drag on the floor are tripping hazards, which can lead to injury. Be sure that costumes do not cover the feet or drag on the ground.

- Trick-or-treat in groups. Children are safer in numbers due to the increased visibility of a crowd and because, if something happens, others can call for help. Parents can use their discretion on what age they feel is mature enough to let children go out alone. Until then, children should be accompanied by adults.
- Improve visibility. It’s important to be seen while trick-or-treating, and that can be achieved by making sure costumes and trick-or-treat bags feature reflective tape. Trick-or-treaters also can carry flashlights or glow sticks to improve visibility, and stick to areas with streetlights if going out after dark.
- Stay on sidewalks. Whenever possible, trick-or-treaters should stick to the sidewalks and avoid walking on the roads. This may not always be possible in neighborhoods without sidewalks, where parents and youngsters must be especially careful.
- Eat before trick-or-treating. A meal or snack before trick-or-treating can reduce the tendency to fill up on candy while out and about. All candy and other treats should be inspected by an adult before it is eaten.
- Keep pets locked away. Animals can become skittish when there are many people loitering outside of homes or ringing doorbells. Keep pets in a quiet room away from the action to prevent them from getting loose, injured or scared enough to bite or scratch someone.
- Avoid masks that obstruct vision. It can be hard to see peripherally with a mask on, so avoid costumes with masks that compromise vision.
- Test out makeup beforehand. All makeup used for costumes should be tested for allergic reactions prior to use. Heed the warnings on packaging and avoid putting makeup too close to the eyes or lips.

These are some safety strategies designed to keep Halloween fun and incident-free this year.

2 lawmakers consider bill to remove state mandate for fluoride in drinking water

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – Two Kentucky lawmakers are hoping 2026 will be the year that a bill to remove the state mandate for fluoride in Kentucky’s drinking water finally crosses the finish line.

Rep. Mark Hart, R-Falmouth, has filed legislation similar to House Bill 16 from the 2025 legislative session nine times, he said. The bill did not become law this year but did receive House approval, 68-29. The measure was then assigned to the Senate Health Services Committee, but was never called before that panel.

Hart plans to carry the bill in the House, while Sen. Greg Elkins, R-Winchester, said he would file companion legislation in the Senate next year.

“The legislation simply undoes the unfunded mandate in the state of Kentucky that requires water producers to add fluoride to the water,” Hart said.

The newer version of the legislation from Hart would protect local water districts from civil and criminal liability, he said. The decision to add this provision to the bill is the result of conversations with water districts.

“One of the biggest concerns we heard was they were worried about possible litigation,” Hart said. “Doesn’t matter whether they keep fluoride in water or take it out, they are afraid they’re going to be sued with whatever decision is made.”

“We’re not promoting fluoride one way or another – good or bad,” Hart added. “We’re trying to steer away from that conversation, because that’s not what the legislation does. However, with some of the stuff in the media today, we thought it was necessary to give you a little bit of an education on the risks and benefits for it.”

Elkins said he considers the proposed legislation to be “permissive” rather than a requirement. “It’s more of a local control bill to me than anything else.”

The Kentucky General Assembly cannot take action on new bills until the 2026 legislative session begins on Jan. 6.

U of L paralysis program aiding children

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (KT) – Children with complete paralysis due to spinal cord injuries have gained the ability to take steps, thanks to an innovative, external electrical stimulation technique at the University of Louisville.

Researchers in UofL’s Kosair for Kids Center for Pediatric NeuroRecovery provided a combination therapy to five children with complete paralysis. The children, ages 7-12, took part in a clinical study in which they received external electrical stimulation over the spine, combined with activity-based therapy and encouragement to consciously intend to step. During the study, the children all gained the ability to take steps and experienced unexpected improvements in sensation, bladder function, transferring and other abilities. The study was published in the September 2025 issue of the journal Brain.

“We have found that electrical stimulation can ‘charge’ the spinal cord, making it possible for a paralyzed individual to step voluntarily,” said Andrea Behrman, professor in the UofL Department of Neurological Surgery and director of the Center for Pediatric NeuroRecovery, who led the study. “This ability increases over time when the stimulation is combined with locomotor training and mental intent to step.”

In the study, children who were completely paralyzed for more than a year, unable to move below their level of spinal injury, participated in a series of 60 sessions that included noninvasive, transcutaneous (through the skin) electrical stimulation of the sensory nerves to the spinal cord and specialized physical therapy.

The electrical stimulation was applied with a specially designed technique for external electrical stimulation developed by Yury Gerashimenko, now gratis professor of the UofL Department of Physiology. The technique consisted of several small stimulators, about the size of a quarter, placed on the child’s skin over the sensory nerves of the spinal cord. During the sessions, electrical stimulation was applied through the pads while the children took part in physical therapy known as activity-based locomotor training.

This therapy consists of researchers and therapy technicians manually facilitating the child’s legs in stepping motions as they lay on their side on a table with their legs suspended and also during assisted walking with part of their body weight supported over a treadmill. In addition, the children were encouraged to consciously attempt to step.

The Growing Importance of Food Pantries in Communities

Food insecurity remains a pressing issue across the United States, affecting millions of individuals and families who struggle to afford enough nutritious food. In response, food pantries have become essential lifelines, providing immediate relief and helping communities bridge the gap between hunger and stability.

A food pantry is a community-based organization that distributes groceries and household essentials to those in need, often free of charge. Unlike large food banks, which primarily store and supply food to smaller organizations, food pantries operate at the local level — directly serving families, seniors, and individuals facing food shortages. They are often supported by donations from individuals, local businesses, grocery stores, and regional food banks.

The role of food pantries has grown significantly in recent years. Rising food costs, inflation, and the economic effects of the COVID-19 pandemic have led to an increase in demand. According to Feeding America, more than 44 million Americans, including 13 million children, lived in food-insecure households in 2023. For many of these families, food pantries have become a consistent source of fresh produce, proteins, canned goods, and other staples.

Beyond simply distributing food, many pantries now offer additional services aimed at long-term stability. These may include nutrition education, cooking demonstrations, job placement assistance, and connections to public benefits such as SNAP or WIC. Some even provide personal care items, pet food, or diapers to meet broader household needs. The goal is not only to address immediate hunger but also to support overall well-being.

Community involvement plays a crucial role in keeping food pantries running. Volunteers are the backbone of these organizations — sorting donations, stocking shelves, and assisting guests with respect and dignity. Local schools, faith-based organizations, and civic groups often organize food drives to keep pantries stocked throughout the year, especially during the holiday season when demand surges.

Modern food pantries are also embracing innovation. Many have adopted online ordering systems or mobile distribution models to reach those with limited transportation. Some collaborate with local farms and grocery stores to rescue surplus food that would otherwise go to waste, promoting both sustainability and food equity.

Ultimately, food pantries represent more than just a place to pick up groceries — they embody the power of community compassion and cooperation. By supporting food pantries through donations, volunteering, or advocacy, we help ensure that no one in our neighborhoods has to face hunger alone.

Noah still living out his dream playing for Wildcats

By KEITH TAYLOR
Kentucky Today

LEXINGTON, Ky. (KT) — Trent Noah wasn’t surprised by the size of the crowd in last Friday’s exhibition game against top-ranked Purdue.

Although the Wildcats’ 78-65 win over Purdue didn’t count, Noah, a sophomore, made his first start against the Boilermakers, another dream come true for the Harlan County native, also known as the “Mountain Mamba.”

“It’s every little boy’s dream in Kentucky growing up,” he said. “It really was super surreal. But there is nothing like [Big Blue Nation] either. You come in - in October - and play in front of a sold-out crowd with Rupp Arena jumping — it is incredible. There is nothing like the fans that we have here. It is a real honor to be able to play for the state of Kentucky.”

Noah finished with 10 points and made two 3-pointers on four attempts. Noah also collected a pair of defensive rebounds and dished out one assist in the double-digit victory.

As a team, Noah said the Wildcats can be “really, really good” this season, considering the team has a lot of weapons at all positions.

“We are super deep, and we just have to all buy into that and come together and play together,” he said. “Some nights it will not be our night, some nights it will. That is the beauty of it. That is what it’s all about.”

Noah said Kentucky’s post players - Malachi Moreno, Brandon Garrison, Mouhamed Diobate and Adrija Jelovic - help their own in the post and praised the team’s preparation before the first dress rehearsal of the season.

“I thought they handled it great, and I was expecting that because of the way that I watched them go about this whole week and go about the scout (report),” he said. “It goes all the way to our 16th man, and then our GAs because they gave us great looks.

“Whenever we get out there, we know what is coming. Malachi - they did an exceptional job against a really good team.”

PROMISING FUTURE

Purdue coach Matt Painter recruited Moreno and was impressed with Moreno’s showing against his squad. Moreno finished with eight points, grabbed defensive rebounds, and added a block.

“Malachi [Moreno] is a guy that we recruited, put a lot of time into,” Painter said. “He’s got a promising future.”

Kentucky coach Mark Pope was also pleased with Moreno’s performance.

“Malachi had a really important play for him as they were really trying to press and get out of the wings, and we were encouraging our bigs to go attack the no-gap pressure, and he did,” Pope recalled. “I was really proud of him because he got all the way down and was bullied all the way down to the rim and finished with a

Moreno celebrated his birthday on Friday, and his wish came true in his first collegiate game at Rupp Arena.

“I asked for a win for my birthday, and I got it,” he said. “My wish came true.”

Little Bitty Donuts

A Family-Ran, Madisonville Food Truck

By Kelsey Edwards
KPI Editor

Micha Purdue, a 41 year old family man, works for Patriot Chevrolet & Toyota of Hopkinsville where he is an internet manager, does marketing, and the business development center where he follows up with customers, online questions answered, etc. He has been with the company since 2018 but prior to that he was in retail. He originally is from Madisonville Kentucky and then moved to Clarksville Tennessee for a bit while he was in retail and then moved back to Madisonville.

When Micah is not working at Patriot

Chevrolet & Toyota, he and his family are running their food trunk business, known as Little Bitty Donuts. They have been in business for a little over a year and it started out as them just setting up under tents and some donut equipment. However, Micah and his father in law, Steve Hickman, gutted an enclosed trailer and converted it to a food truck. Little Bitty Donuts is run by his entire family which consist of him, his wife, their three children, along with his mother-in-law and father-in-law. They had the idea from a little random place/grocery store that they had stumbled upon while on a vacation in Siesta Key and thought it would not only be a great way to make a little extra money to take vacations but also as a way to have the entire family included on something while teaching their children about work ethic, getting them out of the house and into the community, and just being together as a family.

Their oldest, Annsley Purdue, is 14 years old and runs the register and the window, takes orders, tickets, etc. Kylee Litchfield, their middle child who is 12 will make the drinks which have been lemonade shakeups but they have decided to shift away from that as so many other businesses have that as a product. They will continue serving drinks but it will be things such as hot chocolate, coffee, butter beers, flavored sweet teas etc. Their son, Oakley, who is four also participates in the business as the family taste tester while being watched by Micah's mother-in-law. Ashley, Micah's wife also works the window and makes

VICTORIOUS Living ...in a troubled world

One moment changes everything

By Teresa LeNeave
Leneave2@comcast.net

There are countless Bible stories that could have been written just yesterday. They are still as relevant as the 5:00 news. One such individual emerges from the pages in the Bible: the woman at the well. She lived a life of passion. Since she had already been married and divorced five times, she was not a young woman when she met Jesus, but she still had not changed her sinful lifestyle. Obviously, she was the type that needed a man. Had she been abused? Had she been an orphan without a father in her life? Or, had she been a rebellious child? The Bible doesn't tell us much about her past, but a few things were pretty obvious, one being that she was co-dependent. She needed a man to feel secure. Being alone was not something she could face. After five husbands, she now was in a live-in relationship. I imagine her dealing with feelings of rejection. Normally, women went to the well early in the morning before the dessert sun was miserably hot, but not this woman. She went at noon, at meal time when very few, if anyone, would be there. Perhaps she was coming at noon to avoid the sneers and whispers of the other women who were so quick to judge her. Five husbands, in any generation or culture, is not something a woman is proud of. There were periods of history when men could have all the wives he wanted, but never a time when women had that luxury. From the beginning of time women were expect to be chaste, to love her husband and her family. If you wonder how an unchaste

woman was thought of, you have only to read Proverbs chapter two. Solomon said her ways lead to death and total destruction. In Proverbs 5:3,4 he says, "For the lips of an immoral woman drip honey, and her mouth is smoother than oil; but in the end she is bitter as worm wood" (which is poison). That's the kind of culture she had to face, daily. She was the "immoral woman". The one people whispered about. She knew what public rejection felt like. Life had not been good to her. Her life was empty, but she continued to search. And that is where Jesus finds her. To her, He is a "Jew" which was not good news and when she saw Him sitting on the well something in her stomach probably began to sink. "Oh, no" she must have thought. Because Jews did not associate with Samaritans, she was surprised that He spoke much less ask her for a drink of water! Her immediate response came from a life of rejection when she spit out words of pain. "How is it that You, being a Jew, ask a drink from me, a Samaritan woman? For Jews have no dealings with Samaritans" (John 4:9 KJV). Jesus said, "I'll give you water that you will never thirst again". Her entire life she had been searching for something to satisfy and now Jesus was offering to end the search.

Sometimes in deer hunting, the tree stand becomes the seat of discontentment. Early in my hunting life, I was notorious for giving up on one spot for the hopes of another. My logic was always based upon the deer that I was not seeing. It didn't matter that I had spent weeks or even months scouting that particular area. I was willing to give up after only a few days of inactivity.

And since these were the days before trail cameras, my roaming always seemed justified. Sometimes I would get out of the tree stand and just start wandering around. I called it spotting and stalking, but it was really my inability to be patient with where I was. My cry was, "If I could only see deer! I don't have to shoot one; I just want to see movement." So, after a couple of non-productive days,

I was ready to move on. The problem was that many times the new place I found was no better than the last. So, I moved again. Now, as you can see, I began forming a pattern of constantly moving; and worse, a pattern of impatience. Thankfully, as I grew older, I overcame the urge to move. I began to trust my pre-season scouting and realized that my constant moving was not caused by the lack of deer movement but by something lacking within me. What was lacking was problems, or as the Bible says, tribulation. Here's what it says. "We also glory in tribulations, knowing that tribulation produces perseverance." In deer terms this means that when I realized that deer was showing up at the place I had just moved from; I understood that I had moved too soon. My tribulation of the past produced in me the patience I need today. Right now, you may be getting a little antsy as well. The urge to move may be welling up inside you. It may be coming from unrealized expectations or delayed activity. But don't be so quick to leave. You may only be moving toward a pattern of impatience while someone else is

Even with something as simple as praying and reading the Bible every day, it’s a challenge even to those who are determined and sincerely seeking God’s divine guidance. As a Christian writer and teacher, I encourage everyone to make time and find the secret place of God’s presence where they can spend quality moments alone with Him. I’ve noticed a huge difference between reading non-religious books and reading the Bible. There is no resistance when reading novels and ordinary books, but when we read and study the Bible, alarms sound, and the atmosphere changes as it draws the attention of dark spiritual forces.

I realize some believe this is silly and there is no such thing as invisible entities trying to hinder us, but when we make a vow to obey Christ, we not only face hostility from our carnal nature, but also aggressive attacks from demonic enemies who oppose God. I’m not condemning those who read secular books, watch movies, or play video games, etc., but would you be surprised if I told you that I know church members who have confessed they never read the Bible? How can a Christian know God personally or understand what He requires if we refuse to read or study His word? What about passages such as Matthew 4:4? “But Jesus answered and said, it is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God.”

Are there individuals who can spend significant amounts of time entertaining themselves while also being devoted to daily prayer and Bible study? The concern comes when the hours people spend on their phones, internet, and television add up to be significantly more than the time they spend in prayer and absorbing God’s instructions. There was a time when statements like this were respected as truth and brought conviction to the listener. However, as compromising is more popular today than ever, lame excuses are now justified as legitimate reasons. As the religious continue to fall into the snare traps of rebellion, denial, and deception, we now commonly hear people declare how they do not want anyone meddling in their personal business.

Lately, we’ve been talking about our responsibility to engage in intercessory prayer and spiritual warfare, and we cannot overemphasize how critical this is to those who have a passion to be an overcomer for Christ. Since God has explained the symbolism of our spiritual armor mentioned in Ephesians chapter six, we are left to ponder why a person who says they are a servant of God would ignore it. Why is it that some church-goers assume the pastor and elders do the work of the ministry while the average pew sitter is exempt? Many believe that if they contribute money to the church, this is all they need to do. However, if a person is truly saved and filled with the Holy Spirit, they also have ears to hear what God’s Spirit is telling them to do. Every Christian has been given the gifts, talents, anointing, authority, and the fruits of the Holy Spirit, which means we are commanded to walk, work, and obey His voice. We read in I Corinthians 12:4-6, Matthew 28:15-20, Acts 1:8, and II Corinthians 3:5-6, that as the Lord’s disciples, we are responsible for doing the work of ministry, and be constantly aware of His presence.

Every thought and deed should be a reflection of God’s love and grace, and if it is not, we are guilty of the sins of omission. I Peter 4:10 is not a suggestion. “Each of you should use whatever gift you have received to serve others, as faithful stewards of God’s grace in its various forms.” Choosing to live in denial and only think happy thoughts does not mean the spiritual war between light and darkness is not raging all around us. Thomas Gray, an eighteenth-century poet, declared, “What you don’t know can’t hurt you,” but we know this reveals the immaturity and deception of those who take comfort in false security. It’s probable the devil would not need to waste his time hindering lukewarm religious individuals, as they are no real threat to his agenda. In fact, they are helping promote Satan’s twisted and distorted philosophies. It’s the devoted and obedient follower of Jesus who reads their Bibles and intercedes, and are engaged on the front-lines of spiritual combat. The dark side fears the children of God as demons know that greater is He that lives in us than he that is in the world.

THE BITTER CUP OF LEGALISM

Bro. Brandon G. Bramlett
Bandana Baptist Church

Coffee was once considered the devil’s drink of choice. Because coffee was popular among Muslims who drank it to stay awake during their evening worship services, Roman Catholic Church leaders during the 16th century claimed that it was a demonic concoction “of Islamic infidels.” That is, until Pope Clement VIII gave it a taste—and it didn’t take long for him to bless the bean. “This Satan’s drink is so delicious,” he remarked, “it would be a pity to let the infidels have exclusive use of it. We shall fool Satan by baptizing it.” And immediately, coffee conquered the continent and flowed all the way to the mugs we fill every morning.

Coffee-hating legalists nearly missed out on one of God’s greatest gifts to mankind, and legalism continues to rob believers of God’s gifts of joy, grace, peace, and Christian liberty. Legalism, if you didn’t know, is when we add man-made rules and religious traditions to God’s word, grading our holiness and that of others

based on restrictions God never gave us in the Scripture. Legalism turns us into spiritual hall monitors who police piety based on personal preferences. And legalism rears its ugly head when we measure spirituality by clothing choices, denominational traditions, worship music styles, and strict abstinence from activities not explicitly prohibited in the Bible—things like watching secular movies, wearing blue jeans to church, or enjoying classic rock music. The Pharisees of Jesus’ time were steeped in legalism, demonstrated by their indignant insinuation that His disciples were heathen-like sinners because they didn’t ceremonially wash their hands before eating (Mark 7:1-5).

The apostle Paul warned believers about the danger of legalism in Colossians 2:20-23, “You have died with Christ, and he has set you free from the spiritual powers of this world. So why do you keep on following the rules of the world, such as, “Don’t handle! Don’t taste! Don’t touch!”? Such rules are mere human teachings about things that deteriorate as we use them. These rules may seem wise because they require strong devotion, pious self-denial, and severe bodily discipline. But they provide no help in conquering a person’s evil desires” (NLT). Simply put, legalism may appear holy, but it does not make you holy. It may keep your hands clean, but it cannot keep your heart pure.

However, the remedy for legalism is not swerving to the opposite extreme and indulging in unrestrained and careless conduct.

The solution is also not more rules—the answer is more Jesus (Col. 2:6). And we must obey the Lord out of gratitude for His saving grace (cf. 2 Cor. 5:14-15; Titus 2:11-12), and carefully assess our obedience according to what God has clearly written in His word. Additionally, we ought to enjoy and embrace the good gifts of God’s creation without guilt, and exercise wisdom while doing so. Otherwise, we will dilute the sweet cup of God’s grace and drink the bitter cup of legalism.

Business Briefs

KENTUCKY

Paducah

An American uranium enrichment company, General Matter, signed a lease with the U.S. Department of Energy, in order to develop a commercial uranium facility. This will take place at the former Paducah Gaseous Diffusion Plant and will revive the site where America’s uranium enrichment industry was born. The project has a proposed budget of $1.5 billion and will create roughly 140 high paying full-time jobs. It is estimated to generate $71 million in recurring annual economic benefit for the Paducah area. The company, General Matter, evaluated more than 1,000 potential locations across 11 total states before choosing Paducah. This proposed facility will produce the fuel needed for the next generation of nuclear energy. The project will also help reshore domestic nuclear fuel production that will potentially save the U.S. 500 million dollars annually by reducing the reliance on foreign imports. The company is the first privately funded American company to develop uranium enrichment technology. General Matter, aims to begin its operations at the Paducah facility by the end of the decade.

Madisonville

A Canadian manufacturer, known as, E. Hofmann Packaging, will be opening up its first United States facility in Hopkins County. The facility has a 43 million dollar investment that will bring a little over 160 jobs to the Madisonville area and will be a 100,000 square feet production facility. The company produces rigid plastic containers that are primarily for the food and beverage industry. The production plant is expected to be complete and operational sometime in 2026. The company was founded in 1984 and has expanded in recent years with a stronger emphasis on food customers. Starting back in 2010, the company has doubled its sales every five years with the food and beverage industry representing over half of its sales.

Muhlenberg County

Ground has officially been broken in Muhlenberg County for a new 20 million dollar manufacturing facility. The company that the facility will belong to is Biomass Engineering and Equipment (BE&E) which is an Indiana-based producer of equipment for the agriculture, forest products and biomass sectors. The new facility will create around 250 full-time jobs. Some of the product that the company designs and builds includes conveyors, log decks, debarkers, chippers, and storage silos, along with live-floor bins, trailer load-out systems, and many other industrial machinery. BE&E is currently operating a plant in Greenville that employees 50 people. This facility will be the first facility in the Paradise Regional Industrial Park. It will house updated equipment as well as provide increased operational space and allow for more in-house manufacturing which will reduce the need for outsourcing. The project is supported by state funding through the Kentucky Product Development Initiative with a total of $745,000. The company was founded in 2011 and has its headquarters located in Indianapolis along with a production plant in Boise, Idaho.

Harrodsburg

Two companies, known as Apple and Corning, have announced the expansion of their partnership that totals up to $2.5 billion and results in making Corning’s Harrodsburg plant the exclusive producer of all iPhone and Apple Watch cover glass worldwide. With this expansion decision, it means that 100% of Apple’s cover glass will be made in the United States for the first time ever. Corning will dedicate its entire Harrodsburg facility to manufacturing for Apple and will increase its manufacturing and engineering workforce in Ky by half. The plant will also house a new Apple-Corning Innovation Center that is focused on advanced materials and next generation manufacturing for all future Apple products. This is part of Apple’s newly launched American Manufacturing program. Apple and Corning have partnered together since 2007 which is when the original iPhone first came out. Apple has invested approximately $500 million in Corning’s Kentucky operation since 2017.

Bowling Green

The company, ValorFlex Packaging of Kentucky is investing a total of $23.4 million in order to build an advanced flexible packaging facility in Bowling Green, Ky. It is a veteran owned company and is a wholly owned subsidiary of Nashville’s ValorFlex Holdings. The company specializes in custom pouching, along with lamination and flexographic printing. This facility will generate 82 full-time jobs and puts the average wage to around $39 per hour.

Lexington

A multimedia rights partnership has been extended by the University of Kentucky and JMI Sports. The partnership was extended to 2040 in a deal that is valued at more than 465 million dollars, which happens to be one of the largest in college athletics. The agreement adds strategic support for NIL operations as well as facility development and fan engagement. The company, JMI Sports, has served as the University of Kentucky’s multimedia rights partner since 2014. With this deal, it introduces a new revenue-sharing model that allocates around 80% of net revenue from advertising and sponsorships to UK and Champion Blue. Champion Blue is a recently formed nonprofit LLC that serves as the holding company for the Athletics department. There are also upcoming opportunities that include new signage at the Kroger Field and Kentucky Proud Park, plus the potential of venue naming rights. The University of Kentucky is investing up to $10 million in athletic facilities that include upgrades at Kroger Field, as well as the soccer and softball venues, and exploring an on-campus entertainment district.

Beaver Dam

Morgantown Bank & Trust expanded their business into Ohio County by opening up a temporary branch until the permanent facility is constructed. The business is located in Beaver Dam at 1150 N. Main Street and offers full banking services while plans more forward the facility that will be built on the same site by sometime next year. They currently have two locations in Morgantown as well as three in Bowling green with a loan office in Nashville, Tn.

Louisville

A nearly 2 million dollar investment is being done by Ford Motor Co. in order to modernize its Louisville Assembly Plant (LAP) for the production of an all new electric mid-size pickup. This will be for both the U.S. and export markets and will be the third largest economic development project in Kentucky history. The upgrade of the facility will introduce an innovative “assembly tree” manufacturing platform that will boost efficiency, as well as ergonomics and affordability. The completion of the upgrades is estimated to be done by the second quarter of 2027. It will also generate over 2,000 full time jobs. Ford Motor Co. has been in operation in the state of Kentucky since 1913 when the Model T first rolled off the production line in Louisville. There are around 12,000 employees that work for Ford, statewide, and they also partner with 165 local suppliers.

Mayfield

Back in July, the Kentucky medical cannabis program reached a milestone as the Armory Kentucky LLC began the state’s first legal cannabis cultivation in Mayfield, Ky. Kentucky has licensed 81 businesses and has registered over 400 medical cannabis practitioners. There will be additional licensees including processors and testing labs that are expected to begin operations soon with the state’s first medical dispensary opening this fall in Beaver Dam.

INDIANA

A Jasper, Indiana Based company, known as Kimball Electronics, will be expanding its presence in Indianapolis with a new contract manufacturing facility that will be approximately 307,000 square feet. The contract manufacturing facility is focused on the medical industry and they are expected to create around 345 jobs over the next six years. The average wages of the employees will be around $29 per hour. The company also plans to retain a little over 160 existing jobs at other locations. It is expected to begin in March of 2026.

TENNESSEE

The company, Vibrant Health Products Inc. is investing around $48.5 million over a five year period to open up its first United States baking facility. It will be located in Rossville, Tennessee and will create almost 400 new jobs. Vibrant Health Products Inc. is a Canadian company that operates as Silver Hills and they will be revitalizing the former Kellogg’s Eggo facility that closed last year and is located just 30 miles East of downtown Memphis. The facility operations main focus will be on bread production for U.S. customers and has future plans of expanding into additional products as the demands grow. The company was founded in 1989 and its headquarters is located in Abbotsford, British Columbia. They specialize in sprouted, organic, gluten-free, grain-free, and plant-based baked goods. All of the products for Silver Hills feature sprouted grains which are supposed to improve digestibility, bioavailability of nutrients, and also to help stabilize blood sugar levels. Some of the products the company offers include breads of course, as well as tortillas, bagels, and buns.

A Company by the name of Summertown Metals will be investing $22.6 million in order to expand their business into Morristown, Tennessee. This will mark the company’s first location outside of southern Middle Tennessee and will create roughly 170 new jobs in Hamblen County and bring the company’s total employment to nearly 600 across its three areas. The company was founded in 2006 and has grown into a custom building/materials distributor. This new facility will be able to support the demand with added capacity for metal roll forming, along with truss manufacturing, and distribution.

Little Leaf Farms has made the decision to invest around $75 million to establish a greenhouse operation in Manchester, Tennessee. The company uses advanced greenhouse technologies which include rainwater capture, solar power, and hydroponic farming in order to produce fresh, pesticide-free greens all year long. A total of 318 jobs will be created over a five year period. The Tennessee site joins existing operations in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

Skyler Kanipe

Project Manager at Community Financial Services Bank

Skyler Kanipe, is the Project Manager at Community Financial Services Bank (CFSB). According to Kanipe, “as a project manager I get to wear a lot of hats! I manage all kinds of projects across the bank, launching new software, improving internal processes, and making sure everything runs a little smoother day to day. I also work closely with our vendors and handle contracts. In short, I connect the dots, keep things moving, and make processes run more smoothly for both our team and our clients.”

Kanipe graduated from Webster County High School in 2015 and went on to attend Murray State University and graduated in 2019. When asked how she got into this business she stated, “ It was totally by accident, but it was a happy accident! I started working at the bank part time while still in college, when CFSB was launching its Interactive Teller Machines (Live Teller Machines). The extended hours were perfect for a student and I’d never considered a career in banking before, but from day one, I knew this was where I wanted to build my career and where I want to retire.”

Kanipe has been at her job for a total of 8.5 going on nine years and when asked what she likes best about her job she responded and said, “Honestly, It’s never boring. Every day brings something new — different people, different problems to solve, different wins to celebrate. It’s rewarding to see how the work we do behind the scenes can make life easier for both our team and our clients. When she is not working, she is taking care of her plants and has a calendar full of weekend plans. She said, “In the summer, you’ll usually find me on the lake or in the garden. I love learning new things, whether it’s through books, podcasts, or by asking one too many questions. I’m usually planning my next adventure before I’ve even unpacked from the last one!”

Hannah Lewis, of Marshall County is the Co-owner of Puckett’s Jewelry. As a jewelry store owner, Hannah stated that she wears many hats. “Outside of clerical tasks and inventory procurement, I get to assist our customers. Whether that be finding the perfect piece of jewelry or diagnosing repair work with our jeweler. I also have the privilege of working with our customers on custom pieces and engagement rings - which are my favorite part of what we do”! Hannah graduated high school from Marshall County High School and went on to attend and graduate from Murray State University.

Hannah said how she got into this business was working part-time there, “I started working part time at Puckett’s Jewelry while I was a student at Murray State. I enjoyed working in this industry because it was very fulfilling and fun! I get to play with diamonds every day!” Hannah worked for the previous owners, Dave and Martha Puckett, for 4 years before her and her husband bought the jewelry store and took over for the past 2 years.

When asked what do you like best about what you do, Hannah responded and said, “Jewelry can be so special. We celebrate some of life’s biggest moments with our customers. It is very rewarding to take a precious piece, maybe left by a family member, and remake it into something new that can continue to be cherished. Or to hand off the finished engagement ring that a customer

Operator/Franchisee of Culver's Restaurant in Paducah

Aaron Clayton is an operator/franchisee of Culver's Restaurant in Paducah, Kentucky. Him and his wife Julie (owner/franchisee/co-operator) manage the day-to-day operations of a quick-service/fast food restaurant. The duties in which they prefer include working on the floor during the week in either the kitchen or front-of-house. Aaron said, "We are open seven days a week from 10:00 am to 10:00 pm, so there are always plenty of opportunities to help our team keep the flow of food moving, while still maintaining great customer service and building a personal relationship with our guests. Additionally, we have roughly 60 team members that we manage along with some fantastic leadership we could not do without. From hiring, scheduling, payroll, inventory and everyday logistics of keeping the lights on, it's a 24/7/365 job that can sometimes feel overwhelming, but with the support of our team, we would not have it any other way!" Aaron graduated from Calloway County High School in 2007 and then graduated with a bachelor's degree in Journalism and Political Science from Murray State University in 2011. Aaron stated, "My original occupation out of high school, and something I still thoroughly enjoy doing, is working for a locally owned group of radio stations out of Marshall County, WCBL and WCKK. I worked full-time in the radio business from April 2007 to October 2021. In that time period, I did everything from being an on-air personality, writing and recording news stories, producing commercials, programming the daily logs for the radio stations as well as doing play-by-play broadcasts for high school sports at both Marshall County High School and Lyon County High School." He continued on saying, "After marrying my wife Julie in May of 2021, I decided to step away from the full-time business of radio (while still broadcasting the high school games) to help her run Culver's. She and her father, Dr. David Cassity, purchased the land and the right to be franchisees of a Culver's quick-service restaurant in 2016. In January 2017, Culver's opened on the west side of Paducah where it still stands today serving fresh, never-frozen ButterBurgers and delicious frozen custard". "While this was a very new venture for myself, it was an easy transition thanks to Julie and the great teammates we have. I enjoy not only getting to work daily with my wife and best friend, but I get to work with people of all ages and help individuals progress through this business as they move into leadership and continue the cycle of helping others." Aaron said one thing that he also loves is his wife helping him with broadcasts, "I also love that my wife Julie has now joined in on helping me on my radio broadcasts for Marshall County soccer, football, baseball and softball, along with Lyon County basketball. She has become a part of those communities alongside me, while also getting to see the youth of those programs grow into great young men and women outside of the field and classroom." He continued on saying, "Something we both put an emphasis on at Culver's is hiring area high-schoolers that may be applying for their first job to help them get the experience and tools they need to succeed when they graduate and decide what they want to do in adulthood." Aaron and Julie have recently moved into their new home that they built in Benton right on her family's farm. They also welcomed their first child into the world about four months ago. Aaron said, "A beautiful, healthy baby girl named Chesney Ann Clayton who is the light of our life who takes up all our time and we couldn't be happier!"

LAIRD,

into this business?
A: My journey began as a real estate agent. I enjoy helping individuals and families find a home to call their own or sell their home as their lives move in different directions. Becoming Executive Director for Carlisle County Chamber of Commerce just kinda happened as I began looking for ways to become active in my community. I began talking with other local, regional and state directors for guidance to start a chamber from the ground up.

Q: How long have you been at your job?
A: In 2024, I began my real estate classes and received my license in August 2024. I signed with Barger Realty this year and love working with the Barger team. I began pursuing the Chamber in November 2024, finalized our local board and was appointed as Executive Director in April 2025. I may be new, but I have found my passion and career.

Q: Where did you go to school?
A: For me, school is a long story. I grew up in the generation that had the opportunity to achieve college credits in high school. During this time of my life, all I wanted was a job as a nurse so I attended WKCTC, completed my general courses, and obtained a phlebotomy certification and pharmacy technician certification then covid hit and I began my quest for a new career.

Q: Did you intend to do this while you were seeking a degree?
A: Absolutely not. My plans were to be a nurse, but I am so thankful that I found what I enjoy doing.

Q: Did your college experience prepare you for what you are doing today?
A: The experience of college helps develop many skills, not just a career. Learning valuable communication and organization skills taught me how to work with patients, now clients, which is necessary for customer service skills.

Q: What do you like best about what you do?
A: As a realtor, I love working directly with clients to help meet their needs. I remember the feeling of purchasing my first home at 21 years old. I enjoy helping others find their dream home and supporting them through the process of selling their home. Working to start Carlisle County Chamber has been a rewarding experience to set out to achieve. I'm excited about planning activities, which I love to do.

Q: What are the challenges you face as you perform your job?
A: Coming out of my comfort zone. Networking for both real estate and chamber has been a huge learning curve for me. I have always been known as the introvert. The one quote that has stuck with me since the beginning is "You get out of it what you put into it" and that has proven to be true everyday. Changing careers at the age of 26 has not been easy but there has been so many rewarding days.

Q: Are you married? Have Kids, Dogs count?
A: I have been married to my husband, Nathanael, for 5 years. We have 3 spoiled rotten dogs Remi, Sadie and Moxie.

Q: What are your hobbies?
A: I love decorating for any celebration. Whether it's a holiday, birthday, or anniversary party, I'm ready to help anyone make a memory. Traveling is a favorite pastime for me and my husband. It's a blessing to see and learn about all the things God has made.

Q: What are your plans for the future?
A: My passion for my community is developing in ways I hadn't imagined. I'm looking forward to growing my real estate business and working in my community. I want to be known as an honest, helpful and trustworthy real estate agent and leader. I love living in a small community and want to concentrate on the four river counties as I grow my clientele and I can't wait to kick off the Carlisle County Chamber of Commerce to the community.

Biggest challenges of your professional career Navigating an uncertain and volatile Real Estate market has been really tough lately, for a lot of Agents, everywhere. Anytime there is a shift in the market or buying trends, it can feel like you have to re-invent the wheel and adjust. It definitely keeps you on your toes, but provides a lot of growth in your adaptability.
Being a Realtor also requires you to show houses while people are off work from their jobs. It can become tricky with your personal and family responsibilities to feel “on call” at any time. It can also make for some very long days while being away from your family at night. I have to be very mindful of setting appropriate boundaries to avoid burnout, while also fulfilling my due diligence to clients.

What’s the best business advice you’ve been given, and who gave it to you?
When I started Real Estate, my Broker told me, “Just follow the golden rule and you’ll always be fine.” I’ve never been a fan of someone saying, “it’s not personal, it’s just business,” because the way that I run my business IS personal. It’s shelter, a basic human need. So, “Treat others as you want to be treated,” serves as a reminder to give my clients the type of customer service that I would want and need if I were buying, selling or renting a property.

What career achievements are you most proud of?
Honestly, at the end of every year, I am proud of what I was able to successfully accomplish and survive in a career as a mother with two very active kids. The flexibility in Real Estate allows me to be present for so many of their daytime school events and numerous extracurricular activities. After ending each year being a daily afternoon “taxi service” and fulfilling my roles as Dance Mom, Theatre Mom, School Mom, personal shopper, friend, and wife, it all feels like a blessing to celebrate and be proud of. The years that I am able to beat my previous highest sales production year while also doing all of the above, are a bonus!

What do you actually do in your job?
There are no two

Mallory Johnson

days that are the same in Real Estate.
In short, as a Realtor I help clients buy, sell or rent properties by providing professional expert guidance and support through the transaction all the way to the closing table. In between, we provide knowledge of the local market, run CMA reports, schedule showings, set up measurement and photography services, navigate the inspection process, submit offers, lead negotiations, file paperwork, collaborate with loan officers and title companies, coordinate repairs and even serve as a listening ear to each client’s individual circumstance and housing need. My job requires that I wear a lot of different hats, still within our scope of business!

Entrepreneurs Under 40

Erica Rambo

Owner of RPS Liquidation

Q: What are some of the things that you do?

A: As a bargain store business owner, I search out and find various items at a bulk and or discount rate, have them delivered to my location, unload, sort and check the items and then provide customers with great prices. Which is usually, 50 to 75% off the retail price. The store is open on Thursday through Saturday and the other days we are usually restocking merchandise. We work hard to provide great deals for our community.

Q: How did you get into this business?

A: I began buying and selling online. I love to shop, so it does not feel like work. I do not like to pay full price, so I am always finding the best deals possible. This eventually led to renting a store to put more items in and be able to offer a huge inventory to the customers.

Q: How long have you been at your job?

A: My husband and I have had a store in LaCenter for about 3 years.

Q: Where did you go to school?

A: I have always attended Ballard County Schools. No College.

Q: Did you intend to do this while you were seeking Education?

A: No, I never dreamed I would be doing this. It came about by chance.

Q: What do you like best about what you do?

A: I enjoy shopping, buying, management and being able to provide the community with great deals on goods they would have to go further to purchase. I also enjoy working with the public.

Q: What are the challenges you face as you perform your job?

A: This business is physically challenging because of the work of unloading and sorting as well as mentally challenging because of the shopping, purchasing and focusing that goes in to owning a business, but I love doing it, so the joy outweighs the challenges.

Q: Are you married? Have Kids, Dogs count?

A: I am married to my high school sweetheart, Lucas . We just celebrated 15 years this year. We have 2 boys, Kolton and Linkoln.

Q: What are your hobbies?

A: Our family is very active in our church. Both of our boys play several sports, and we all love to go fishing in any spare time we can find.

Erica Rambo

Q: What are your plans for the future?

A: I would love to expand the store and open a bigger store with an even wider variety of items in the near future. – Update: Erica and Lucas just reopened the newly remodeled and restocked RPS Liquidation store on August 9, 2025, after a huge sale out event.

Drones banned while fishing, hunting in Kentucky

By Tom Latek
Kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – New measures are now in place to help protect Kentucky’s fish and wildlife resources from the increasing use of aircraft technologies by hunters and anglers in the field.

Following adjournment of the Kentucky Interim Joint Committee on Natural Resources and Energy on Oct. 16, 2025, a new administrative regulation (301 KAR 3:140) went into effect making it unlawful to use aircraft or unmanned aircraft in the take of fish or wildlife.

“This regulation will provide guidance regarding the use of aircraft, including drones, while hunting, fishing or participating in other outdoor activities,” said Maj. David Marques with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Law Enforcement Division. “It will also provide a framework for our wardens to work within when investigating and enforcing potential violations. This regulation has been needed for some time, and we are happy to finally have it in place.”

Under the authority granted to Kentucky Fish and Wildlife under state law, “take” includes pursue, shoot, hunt, wound, catch, kill, trap, snare or capture wildlife in any way and any lesser act designed to lure, attract or entice for these purposes; and to place, set, aim, or use any device, animal, substance or agency which may reasonably be expected to accomplish these acts; or to attempt to do these acts or to assist any other person in the doing of or the attempt to do these acts.

Specifically, under the new regulation, a person shall not use an aircraft or unmanned aircraft system to fish, hunt or take wildlife or to drive or herd any wildlife for the purpose of fishing, hunting or taking; or to harass any wildlife.

However, aircraft or unmanned aircraft systems may be used by:

--Kentucky Fish and Wildlife employees and contractors or agents acting on behalf of the agency when addressing human safety, law enforcement, research, management or other needs approved by the department.

--Authorized landowners or their agents to engage in lawful wildlife damage control activities.

--Commercial fishers for use in locating or removing invasive carp.

For questions, the public may contact their local Kentucky Game Warden or the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Information Center at 800-858-1549 or atinfo.center@ky.gov, weekdays 8 a.m. – 4:30 p.m. (Eastern), except holidays.

Versatility.

UK Animal and Food Sciences researcher earns national Emerging Investigator to stury PCOS

By Jordan Strickler

Lexington, Ky.—
Katherine Halloran, an assistant professor in the University of Kentucky Martin-Gatton College of Agriculture, Food and Environment’s Department of Animal and Food Sciences, has received a $10,000 Emerging Investigator Grant from the Society for the Study of Reproduction (SSR). The competitive award, announced at SSR’s July meeting, supports early-career scientists as they build their research programs.
Halloran will use the funds to study polycystic ovary syndrome (PCOS) with a focus on how postnatal obesity may change ovarian function. PCOS is among the most common hormone disorders in women, affecting an estimated 10–13% worldwide. Additionally, obesity worsens the symptoms and prevalence in those with PCOS.

“I had no idea this was coming,” Halloran said when she learned she was one of four people to win the grant. “I’m grateful for the support, and I’m ready to put it to work.”
Her project uses a well-established sheep model of PCOS to examine how excess weight after birth can worsen the condition.

The team has already collected ovaries from research animals and will use laser capture microdissection to isolate specific cell types in the ovary that are critical for ovarian function. They will then sequence those cells to examine gene expression related to oxidative stress, inflammation, metabolic dysfunction and other pathways linked to PCOS and obesity.
“Sheep offer key advantages for this work,” Halloran said. “They usually have one or two offspring, their organ development timelines mirror humans, and their offspring are born more fully developed compared to rodent laboratory animals. That helps us ask human-relevant questions at the right time points.”

The work builds on samples Halloran collected during her postdoctoral training. She said the grant will generate data that can power larger proposals and next-step studies.
“These funds let us explore focused questions now, so we can pursue bigger questions next,” Halloran said.
From here, Halloran’s team plans to look at oocyte quality — how markers for epigenetic changes and oxidative stress might change in the face of PCOS and obesity, something that has direct implications for embryo development and future fertility.

“Our goal is clear,” Halloran said. “We want to understand the origins of PCOS well enough to help point to prevention or early intervention strategies. Even a small step forward can make a difference for individuals with PCOS and their reproductive-metabolic health.”
The Emerging Investigator Grant was created to provide new faculty members with targeted support for experiments that advance their research labs.

“It may be a small award, but it removes key hurdles,” Halloran said. “It gets us the sequencing we need now, and it helps us make the case for the next round of funding opportunities.”

Katherine Halloran was a recent winner of the Emerging Investigator Grant from the Society for the Study of Reproduction.

Safe trick-or-treating tips

Halloween is enjoyed by people of all ages, but few get a bigger kick out of the holiday than children. There are costumes to be worn, time spent with friends and the opportunity to collect free candy and other treats.

Although Halloween can be a fun time, the Children's Safety Network warns that it's also a time when accidents can happen. According to the CSN, the most dangerous day for child pedestrians is Halloween, with two times as many child pedestrians dying on Halloween compared to other days. It is essential to prioritize safety on Halloween, and following these guidelines can help.

• Make sure costumes are short. Costumes that drag on the floor are tripping hazards, which can lead to injury. Be sure that costumes do not cover the feet or drag on the ground.

• Trick-or-treat in groups. Children are safer in numbers due to the increased visibility of a crowd and because, if something happens, others can call for help. Parents can use their discretion on what age they feel is mature enough to let children go out alone. Until then, children should be accompanied by adults.

• Improve visibility. It's important to be seen while trick-or-treating, and that can be achieved by making sure costumes and trick-or-treat bags feature reflective tape. Trick-or-treaters also can carry flashlights or glow sticks to improve visibility, and stick to areas with streetlights if going out after dark.

• Stay on sidewalks. Whenever possible, trick-or-treaters should stick to the sidewalks and avoid walking on the roads. This may not always be possible in neighborhoods without sidewalks, where parents and youngsters must be especially careful.

• Eat before trick-or-treating. A meal or snack before trick-or-treating can reduce the tendency to fill up on candy while out and about. All candy and other treats should be inspected by an adult before it is eaten.

• Keep pets locked away. Animals can become skittish when there are many people loitering outside of homes or ringing doorbells. Keep pets in a quiet room away from the action to prevent them from getting loose, injured or scared enough to bite or scratch someone.

• Avoid masks that obstruct vision. It can be hard to see peripherally with a mask on, so avoid costumes with masks that compromise vision.

• Test out makeup beforehand. All makeup used for costumes should be tested for allergic reactions prior to use. Heed the warnings on packaging and avoid putting makeup too close to the eyes or lips.

These are some safety strategies designed to keep Halloween fun and incident-free this year.

2 lawmakers consider bill to remove state mandate for fluoride in drinking water

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – Two Kentucky lawmakers are hoping 2026 will be the year that a bill to remove the state mandate for fluoride in Kentucky’s drinking water finally crosses the finish line.

Rep. Mark Hart, R-Falmouth, has filed legislation similar to House Bill 16 from the 2025 legislative session nine times, he said. The bill did not become law this year but did receive House approval, 68-29. The measure was then assigned to the Senate Health Services Committee, but was never called before that panel.

Hart plans to carry the bill in the House, while Sen. Greg Elkins, R-Winchester, said he would file companion legislation in the Senate next year.

“The legislation simply undoes the unfunded mandate in the state of Kentucky that requires water producers to add fluoride to the water,” Hart said.

The newer version of the legislation from Hart would protect local water districts from civil and criminal liability, he said.

The decision to add this provision to the bill is the result of conversations with water districts.

“One of the biggest concerns we heard was they were worried about possible litigation,” Hart said. “Doesn’t matter whether they keep fluoride in water or take it out, they are afraid they’re going to be sued with whatever decision is made.”

“We’re not promoting fluoride one way or another – good or bad,” Hart added. “We’re trying to steer away from that conversation, because that’s not what the legislation does. However, with some of the stuff in the media today, we thought it was necessary to give you a little bit of an education on the risks and benefits for it.”

Elkins said he considers the proposed legislation to be “permissive” rather than a requirement. “It’s more of a local control bill to me than anything else.”

The Kentucky General Assembly cannot take action on new bills until the 2026 legislative session begins on Jan. 6.

SNAP benefits set to run out Saturday amid federal shutdown

By MELISSA PATRICK
Kentucky Health News

Because of the government shutdown, a benefit that helps more than 600,000 Kentucky families put food on the table is set to run out Saturday.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture website says, “At this time, there will be no benefits issued November 01.”

The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, or SNAP, is a federal program that helps roughly one in eight Kentuckians buy groceries each month with prepaid electronic benefit transfer (EBT) cards.

At an Oct. 20 news conference, Gov. Andy Beshear said the state will not be able to pay for the November SNAP benefits.

“My hope is that either the federal government will find a way to fund SNAP, which I think there is an argument they can even with the government shutdown, or the government will reopen in time for us to process those payments,” he said.

Beshear encouraged Kentuckians to seek out their local food banks for help, but LEX18 reports that the state’s food banks don’t have the inventory to handle the need that will result from the loss of these food benefits.

“For every meal a food bank distributes, SNAP provides approximately nine meals to households receiving benefits,” LEX18 reports.

Not only will this impact families, it will also impact local grocery stores and more, according to a Your Local Epidemiologist newsletter.

“The impact will go far beyond food, too. A 2015 study found that SNAP benefits create ripple effects across the economy, allowing families to pay rent, keep their cars, and cover other essentials — often the very things people sacrifice when food runs short. SNAP helps people move out of poverty,” according to the YLE newsletter.

Here are some ways to help your community, as outlined by Dr. Liz Marnik for YLE:

Donate money to your local food pantry. Every bit adds up.

Organize a food drive at your work, school or other community location. Be sure to connect to your local pantry to find out what food items they actually need and can accept.

Make a meal and deliver it to a family you know is in need.

Ask your child’s school if you can drop off extra snacks (if they don’t already provide free breakfasts and lunches).

Volunteer to cook for/at a local community meal.

Call your representatives and urge them to act on health care and food access.

SNAP benefit updates can be found on the state’s Department for Community-Based Services webpage.

U of L paralysis program aiding children

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (KT) – Children with complete paralysis due to spinal cord injuries have gained the ability to take steps, thanks to an innovative, external electrical stimulation technique at the University of Louisville.

Researchers in UofL’s Kosair for Kids Center for Pediatric NeuroRecovery provided a combination therapy to five children with complete paralysis. The children, ages 7-12, took part in a clinical study in which they received external electrical stimulation over the spine, combined with activity-based therapy and encouragement to consciously intend to step. During the study, the children all gained the ability to take steps and experienced unexpected improvements in sensation, bladder function, transferring and other abilities. The study was published in the September 2025 issue of the journal Brain.

“We have found that electrical stimulation can ‘charge’ the spinal cord, making it possible for a paralyzed individual to step voluntarily,” said Andrea Behrman, professor in the UofL Department of Neurological Surgery and director of the Center for Pediatric NeuroRecovery, who led the study. “This ability increases over time when the stimulation is combined with locomotor training and mental intent to step.”

In the study, children who were completely paralyzed for more than a year, unable to move below their level of spinal injury, participated in a series of 60 sessions that included noninvasive, transcutaneous (through the skin) electrical stimulation of the sensory nerves to the spinal cord and specialized physical therapy.

The electrical stimulation was applied with a specially designed technique for external electrical stimulation developed by Yury Gerasimenko, now gratis professor of the UofL Department of Physiology. The technique consisted of several small stimulators, about the size of a quarter, placed on the child’s skin over the sensory nerves of the spinal cord. During the sessions, electrical stimulation was applied through the pads while the children took part in physical therapy known as activity-based locomotor training.

This therapy consists of researchers and therapy technicians manually facilitating the child’s legs in stepping motions as they lay on their side on a table with their legs suspended and also during assisted walking with part of their body weight supported over a treadmill. In addition, the children were encouraged to consciously attempt to step.

The Ingram Distillery proudly introduces 2025 Flagship Bourbon

Highly Coveted Annual Release Comprised of Just Eight Barrels This Year

COLUMBUS, KY — The Ingram Distillery today announced the arrival of its 2025 Flagship Bourbon. Released just once a year, Ingram’s Flagship Bourbon is a highly coveted, ultra-premium expression that is meant to showcase River Aging at its best.

Traditionally, flagship is a term reserved for the most impressive vessel in a fleet. The Ingram Distillery’s Flagship Bourbon is no exception. Every vintage of Flagship is a unique blend of its finest barrels of the year and is personally crafted by Ingram’s Master Blender Scott Beyer.

This year marks the fifth Flagship Bourbon release. Batch 5 is more than a small batch, it is a micro batch. With a proof of 116.5, it is a blend of only eight high-rye bourbon barrels with a mashbill of 36% Rye, 60% Corn, and 4% Malted Barley.

“Every Flagship release is unique, with its own character and flavor produced by our river aging process,” said Founder and Proprietor Hank Ingram. “This year, we selected and blended from just eight barrels to produce what we believe is a truly extraordinary bourbon. We’ve accomplished much in 2025 and the release of our Flagship is the perfect way to celebrate as we turn to the fall. I would tell any bourbon lover to act quickly before these bottles are gone.”

The release of the 2025 Flagship Bourbon continues a year of heavy activity and continued positive momentum for The Ingram Distillery. It added to its fleet a new Kentucky wheated bourbon, Uncharted, that is packaged in 100% recycled glass. The Ingram Distillery also came to market in Alaska and Texas recently, meaning its award-winning whiskies are now available in eight states.

2025 Flagship Bourbon tasting notes:

Nose: Aromatic, reminiscent of apple pie, brown sugar, cake frosting and clove Palate: Oily and heavy mouthfeel. Notes of milk chocolate, sweet buttercream and chai spices.

Finish: Long with toasted walnuts, warm cinnamon and nutmeg, then caramel and demerara sugar on the end

Inside the original floating barrelhouses, The Ingram Distillery whiskey barrels spend their years exposed to the magic of the Mississippi River. The motion of the river, its high humidity, and natural daily heat cycling ensure that the whiskey never stops working. We call it Mellowed on the Mississippi. You can see full details about the unique aging process here.

About The Ingram

Distillery
The Ingram Distillery was founded in 2015, when Hank Ingram pioneered the first permanent floating rickhouses to age award-winning whiskies in Western Kentucky.

Moored on the banks of the Mississippi River in Columbus, KY, The Ingram Distillery’s barrelhouses were custom built inside former grain barges. They now house a 2-story barrel maturation operation that never leaves the water. While having a similar look to those on land, Ingram’s barrelhouses have a very different feel.

The Ingram Distillery creates the only whiskey in the world that spends its entire life on the Mississippi River – years of exposure to the microclimate and humidity of the river, along with its constant motion, creates complexity through a unique interaction between whiskey and oak.

Presently available on shelves in Alaska, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Minnesota, Tennessee, Texas and Wisconsin, as well as online via Seelbach’s.

100 years of innovation and service: UK Research and Education Center celebrates its impact and resilience

Established to serve Western Kentucky farmers, the University of Kentucky research station at Princeton has transformed global agriculture and continues to meet new challenges.

By Jennifer Elwell

PRINCETON, Ky.— A century of global innovation, education and community partnership was celebrated yesterday as the University of Kentucky Research and Education Center (UKREC) marked its 100th anniversary with a commemorative event at its new facilities in Princeton, Kentucky.

The celebration honored the legacy of the station’s founding in 1925 and its enduring impact on Western Kentucky farming communities and global agricultural practices.

Founded on 400 acres donated by local farmers and community leaders, UKREC has grown into a 1,652-acre hub of scientific advancement and outreach. The centennial event brought together producers, research faculty, Extension agents, alumni and state officials to reflect on the substation’s rich history and look ahead to its future.

“For a century, the Princeton research farm has been advancing Kentucky and the globe. As a leader in agricultural innovation, the farmers and families of Western Kentucky have served as the cornerstone for pioneering resilient agricultural communities, farming methods and Kentucky heritage,” said University of Kentucky President Eli Capilouto. “As we celebrate the 100-year milestone and reflect on the community that has stewarded the UK Research and Education Center at Princeton, I am inspired by what the Princeton research farm has made possible for Kentucky and her people. I look forward to all the ways it will continue to advance our Commonwealth, upholding a promise more than 160 years old.”

“UKREC is a model of land-grant engagement: listening first, co-creating solutions in our Princeton fields, and sharing knowledge so others don’t carry the risk alone,” said Laura Stephenson, vice president for land-grant engagement and dean of the UK Martin-Gatton College of Agriculture, Food and Environment. “That spirit of collaboration is what has made this place so impactful for a century — and will carry it forward for the next.”

A legacy rooted in community

The idea for an agricultural experiment farm in Western Kentucky emerged in the early 1920s, driven by the region’s need for improved farming methods and advanced scientific agricultural research. This was the same time timber baron E.O. Robinson offered a 15,000-acre tract of land in Eastern Kentucky for an experiment station.

While sites in Paducah and Mayfield were suggested, Caldwell County Extension agent H.D. Triplett advocated for Princeton because of its central location and diverse soil types.

In 1924, the Kentucky General Assembly approved funding for the substation, contingent on local citizens purchasing and donating the land. With overwhelming support, families, schools and civic leaders rallied to raise the funds, and the West Kentucky Sub-experiment Station officially opened on Labor Day, Sept. 7, 1925. The dedication ceremony attracted more than 12,000 attendees, and according to newspaper articles written about the event, it was the largest public event recorded in the area.

The UK Research and Education Center opened when horses and mules were more common on farms than tractors. Pictured is a wheat thrasher that was purchased in 1927 to speed up variety trial results.

Transforming Western Kentucky agriculture

From its earliest days, UKREC has been a catalyst for agricultural transformation. Its research has shaped farming practices across the region and beyond, with landmark contributions to no-till farming, double-crop systems, integrated pest management and soil reclamation. The substation’s work in dark-fire tobacco, fruit production, beef cattle nutrition and forage systems has helped Kentucky producers remain competitive and sustainable.

UKREC’s commitment to education has been equally impactful. Through field days, workshops and Cooperative Extension programming, the substation reaches thousands of farmers annually, equipping them with the latest research and practical tools to improve their operations.

Princeton-based farmer Trevor Gilkey has attended many of the UKREC meetings and field days over the last 40 years, beginning as a tag-along with his father. He said he developed strong relationships with the faculty and staff, as they were always happy to answer his questions or test new techniques on his farm. “They were a big help not just to me but to a lot of people,” said Gilkey. “They seem to do a good job of staying up on the latest technology.

It’s just a constant learning cycle for those of us in agriculture, so they have been a blessing for me personally. They’ve always gone the extra mile.”

UKREC has long attracted top-tier agricultural scientists and educators. In the 1960s and 1970s, Dean Charles Barnhart expanded the staff, fostering interdisciplinary collaboration that continues today. The substation currently employs 65 full-time faculty and staff across nine units and houses the UK Grain and Forage Center of Excellence, established in 2019 to position the university as a global leader in addressing modern agricultural challenges.

Resilience and renewal

The 2021 tornado that devastated much of UKREC’s infrastructure was a defining moment in the substation’s history. Despite the destruction, their mission endured. More than 200 research projects continue, and rebuilding efforts have transformed UKREC into a more advanced institution, one that is ready to meet the demands of today’s agricultural climate.

“As Kentucky farmers face increasing pressure to produce more with fewer inputs and navigate complex technologies and weather patterns, UKREC is adapting to address new needs with updated facilities,” said Carrie Knott, Extension grains specialist and UKREC managing director. “The tornado was a setback, but we’re as dedicated as ever to supporting Kentucky agriculture.”

Before the celebration, faculty, staff and UKREC stakeholders toured the farm and viewed the new construction projects. All buildings and structures are expected to be completed by 2026.

“After the devastating 2021 tornado, it’s been inspiring to see the UK Research and Education Center not just rebuild, but rebuild with a plan,” said Murray Sen. Jason Howell, chair of the Senate Agriculture Committee. “The old facility had grown and changed over the years without a real roadmap, but what’s been built back is intentional, more functional and designed for the future. They’ve come back stronger, with cutting-edge research facilities and the same deep commitment to serving Kentucky’s farm families. The legislature was proud to invest $9 million through the SAFE Fund to help make that vision a reality.”

“Since its establishment in 1925, UKREC has been at the forefront of agricultural research, not only serving the farmers of Western Kentucky but also making significant contributions to global agricultural practices. From pioneering no-till farming methods to advancing livestock health and crop management, the impact of UKREC’s work resonates far beyond our borders,” said Owensboro Rep. Suzanne Miles, majority caucus chair.

For more information on UKREC’s history, impact and the centennial celebration, visit <https://ukrec.mgcafe.uky.edu>

Speaking at the UKREC centennial celebration were UK Board Chairman Britt Brockman, President Eli Capilouto, Sen. Jason Howell, Martin-Gatton CAFE Dean Laura Stephenson, Rep. Suzanne Miles and Brandon Reed, executive director of KY Office of Agricultural Policy.

A Better Crimson Clover

Get Majestic, a new crimson clover that widens your fall-planting window for a legume to fix nitrogen for next year’s corn.

Better cold tolerance makes Majestic crimson clover a better choice for a fall-planted cover crop that produces good spring biomass for early nitrogen production.

In Nov. planting stress tests, Majestic crimson clover (on right in above photo) showed 75% winter survival while common Dixie crimson clover only had 15% winter survival.

Agriculture teacher inspires KY FFA State Officer to continue education at University of Kentucky

Jacob Ball hoped that bringing agriculture education to Carter G. Woodson Academy would spark interest from his students. His student Tyren Harris found more than just interest—he saw his future

By Grace Sowards

LEXINGTON, Ky.—Traditionally, high school curricula must cover the core subjects: math, science, history. Now, educators like Jacob Ball are growing the importance and prevalence of agriculture education. Ball, a University of Kentucky Martin-Gatton College of Agriculture, Food and Environment alum and member of the Martin-

Gatton CAFE Alumni Association Board, was a teacher at Carter G. Woodson Academy for 14 years until recently taking a position as executive director of the Bluegrass AgTech Development Corp.

While at Carter G., which serves students grades 6-12, he received the national Milken Educator Award, which honors outstanding teachers across the nation.

When he first started at Carter G. Woodson, if students wanted to learn about agriculture, they would have to go to Locust Trace Agriscience Center for part of the day. Ball found this troublesome, as agriculture is a large part of Kentucky’s economy. According to Ball, leaving school even for just one class can disrupt a student’s routine.

“Thinking about teaching ag at Carter G. made me look at it through a different lens,” said Ball. “How can I make this valuable to them?”

Ball met Tyren Harris as a seventh grader.

“I knew he was interested from the first class. When a student is engaged like that, you want to get them involved as soon as you can,” Ball said. “Giving students opportunities at a young age makes a huge difference.”

Harris, now a Martin-Gatton CAFE freshman in the Department of Community Leadership and Development (CLD), was initially drawn to agriculture because of Ball’s passion for it. He was driven to keep learning when he discovered his own passion for service. Harris’s involvement in FFA and MANRRS at Carter G. Woodson eventually led to his selection as the Kentucky FFA State Treasurer and UK MANRRS Recruitment Chair and Public Relations Co-Chair.

“The theme of our application was ‘Made to Serve,’” Harris said. “When Mr. Ball came to Carter G., there was no ag program. Creating a new program for his students was service in itself.”

Harris seemed overwhelmed when asked what about agriculture interests him most. Traditional farming, like harvesting crops or raising livestock, is just part of the industry. To Harris, this was a shock, but also an inspiration.

“What I learned at Carter G. is that ag applies to everyone,” Harris said. “We are all connected to a mission in agriculture, no matter where you come from.”

Ball remembers seeing Harris’ potential the first day they met.

“Tyren is a student that truly would have been successful with or without me,” Ball said. “As an ag teacher, the biggest joy is seeing them consider ag as a career opportunity.”

In CLD, Harris hopes to learn more about urban agriculture. He described this as all the ways we incorporate agriculture into our communities. Examples include using solar or other sources of energy, community gardens to encourage growing healthy foods or intentional landscaping.

Throughout his freshman year at UK, Harris will continue to serve FFA and MANRRS by sharing his passion for the field. He looks forward to his new relationship with Mr. Ball: first student-teacher, then mentor-mentee, and now peers.

The Power of Delayed Castration

Research has shown that bull calves gain and develop faster and more efficiently than steer calves castrated soon after birth. This approach avoids the use of synthetic hormone implants, qualifying cattle for the premium natural beef programs.

Surgical castration of bull calves and yearlings causes stress from blood loss and physical changes to the body. With Callicrate Banders, stress is reduced.

Castration Made Easy!

The Callicrate Bander is a humane banding system that makes castrating bulls safe, easy, and stress-free for both you and your cattle. You can castrate bulls at any time of year without losing gains.

The bottom line is that high-tension banding is faster, easier, and less traumatic for the animal than surgical castration.”

Kentucky Master Naturalist program accepting applications for Spring 2026 class

Dedicated to improving Kentucky’s green and wildlife spaces, the Kentucky Master Naturalist program is inviting the community to apply. Application deadline for next cohort is Nov. 23.

By Christopher Carney

LEXINGTON, Ky.— At the University of Kentucky Martin-Gatton College of Agriculture, Food and Environment, there’s a program dedicated to the conservation and management of natural resources in the Commonwealth. The Kentucky Master Naturalist (KYMN) program, part of the UK Cooperative Extension Service and housed in the Department of Forestry and Natural Resources, is inviting all to apply for the next cohort, which will begin in January 2026. Application deadline is Nov. 23.

“We are excited to build the next Kentucky Master Naturalist class, advancing our vision of more people across Kentucky connecting with nature on a deeper level,” said Ellen Crocker, KYMN state coordinator and forest health Extension specialist. “Through different education, outreach and research efforts, this cohort will receive the skills and knowledge they need to contribute meaningfully to conservation efforts in their own communities.”

Since the program’s inception, KYMN volunteers have visited community gardens, green spaces, schools, citizen science projects and state/national parks to help restore habitats, remove invasive species, develop communities and more. In 2024, the KYMN program logged more than 7,300 volunteer hours.

For Laurie Thomas, KYMN state coordinator and Extension forester, this program is all about people who want to be a “good steward” of the environment.

“We want to develop a good community of people who are informed and dedicated to improving their communities and contribute more to Kentucky,” Thomas said. “Our graduates leave inspired and with a sense of renewed responsibility in supporting Kentucky’s natural resources and environment.”

One of those graduates, Dan Stone, a retired professor from the UK Gatton College of Business and Economics, believes the program is a “fun, interesting and educational” experience.

“The Kentucky Master Naturalist is a fantastic program,” Stone said. “I learned about conservation and environmental management, importance of soils to environmental health, role of archaeology in conserving Kentucky’s cultural heritage and Kentucky’s rich resources in native freshwater fish. There is nothing more fun than hanging out in the woods, or on a lake, or in the mountains, with people who love the natural world.”

For Barbara Navarra, an active volunteer and environmental educator at Blackacre Nature Preserve and Historic Homestead in Louisville, being a graduate is meaningful.

“I have gained so much about many areas of the natural world and how they interact,” Navarra said. “As a Master Naturalist, I have the knowledge and resources to conduct what I consider to be legacy work at Blackacre — working toward creating beautiful and peaceful woodlands in the middle of an urban sprawl, and passing on my love and care for the natural world to visitors of all ages.”

Application steps and expectations

The program requires 20 class sessions virtually (on Zoom), along with several field training opportunities, covering subjects from soil health, wildlife management and water quality to environmental education and field safety. Additionally, participants must volunteer for 40 hours. To maintain the Kentucky Master Naturalist certification, at least 40 volunteer hours and eight continuing education hours every year are required yearly.

The cost is $200, and scholarships are available. The cohort is limited and typically receives more applicants than space available. Thus, applicants are encouraged to apply early and demonstrate their interest in becoming a Kentucky Master Naturalist.

To date, the Kentucky Master Naturalist program has completed seven cohorts with more than 450 graduates. Each year, the program invites their graduates to stay connected by participating in upcoming trainings and field trips, seeking volunteer opportunities, reporting their service hours and attending the annual conference. To learn more about
