A&B BBQ Steps Up to Help Trooper's Family

Community encouraged to come together as local business turns compassion into action

Graves County has faced its share of heartbreak and difficult times, but one thing continues to stand out: When someone is hurting, this community finds a way to help.

A&B BBQ in Mayfield is once again demonstrating that spirit of generosity by organizing a fundraiser for the family of Kentucky State Police Trooper Hayden Phillips, who recently lost his life in the line of duty, leaving behind his wife and three young children.

On Thursday, Nov. 19, A&B BBQ will donate 50 percent of all sales to Phillips' family. The fundraiser will take place from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the restaurant, located at 1102 Paducah Road in Mayfield.

The restaurant also announced that tips collected during the fundraising period will go toward helping the family.

For a small business, donating half of a day's sales is no small gesture, especially when operating expenses continue to rise. Yet A&B BBQ is choosing to put the needs of a grieving family first.

The restaurant has also announced plans to support Gracie Adams and an upcoming benefit for her after completing its fundraising efforts for the Phillips family.

These efforts are another reminder of what makes Graves County special. Through tragedy, hardship and uncertainty, neighbors continue showing up for neighbors.

Not everyone can afford to make a large donation, but supporting this fundraiser can be as simple as purchasing lunch or dinner. Every meal purchased helps A&B BBQ turn an ordinary business day into an opportunity to make a difference.

Times are difficult for many families, and no one knows when they might find themselves needing that same kindness and compassion.

A&B BBQ has stepped forward to do what it can. Now the community has an opportunity to stand behind a local business that is standing behind others.

Sometimes helping someone in need begins with something as simple as sharing a meal.

Graves County Schools Honor Veterans with Touching Tributes Throughout the Day

By: Laurna Pruett

Veterans Day was filled with touching moments across Graves County Schools on Nov. 11, as students, teachers and families came together to honor the men and women who have served our country. From the raising of the American flag to heartfelt songs, parades and special assemblies, each school found a meaningful way to express its gratitude.

At Farmington Elementary, Air Force veteran Josh Bowlin shared a special moment with his son, Elijah, and Garrett Ellison as they raised the American flag. Central Elementary students sang the National Anthem, while Sedalia Elementary students created handmade signs of appreciation to welcome veterans during a special parade.

American flags filled the gymnasium at Wingo Elementary, creating a patriotic setting for its Veterans Day program. At Fancy Farm Elementary, veterans were treated to breakfast before joining students for an assembly honoring their service.

At Symsonia Elementary, fourth-grade students expressed their appreciation in a special way by writing acrostic poems using the word "Veteran." During the assembly, a student identified as Mr. Weston shared his heartfelt tribute, reminding veterans that their sacrifices have not gone unnoticed. His poem included the words, "Veterans, you are brave," and "Realize veterans that you are loved." He ended with a powerful message: "Not all people could do what you did for this country." His simple, sincere words captured the importance of teaching children to recognize the courage and sacrifices of those who served.

At Graves County High School, middle and high school students gathered to honor veterans. One of the most emotional moments came as the band played Taps in the gymnasium, a solemn tribute to those who made the ultimate sacrifice for our nation.

While each program was different, the message throughout the day was the same. Veterans deserve to be remembered, respected and thanked for the sacrifices they and their families have made.

For many veterans, these ceremonies bring back memories, pride and emotions that words cannot always express. For students, they provide something equally important: an opportunity to understand that the freedoms they enjoy came at a price.

These programs are more than annual school traditions. They are lessons in gratitude and respect that children and adults alike need to experience. Sometimes, a simple handshake, a child's handwritten message or the sound of Taps can say more than a thousand words.

Free E-Scrap Recycling Event Set for Nov. 19 in Mayfield

By: Laurna Pruett
KPI Writer

Have an old computer collecting dust, a broken printer taking up space or a drawer full of outdated cellphones and chargers? Instead of throwing them in the trash, residents will have an opportunity to dispose of unwanted electronics responsibly and at no cost.

KeeFORCE, in partnership with OK E-Scrap, will host a free E-Scrap Recycling Event on Thursday, Nov. 19, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Mayfield/Graves County Chamber of Commerce, located at 201 E. College St. in Mayfield.

The event is open to everyone, including individuals, families and businesses looking to clear out old electronics while helping keep electronic waste out of landfills.

Accepted items include computers, laptops, printers, hard drives, tablets, cellphones, keyboards, routers, cables, flat-screen televisions, video game systems, DVD players and other electronic equipment.

For those concerned about personal information stored on old computers, OK E-Scrap will provide free on-site hard drive shredding. Participants may watch their hard drives being destroyed, and a certificate of destruction will be available for $25.

Some items cannot be accepted, including box-style televisions, CRT monitors, household batteries, ink and toner cartridges, glass bulbs, paint and varnish.

Electronic devices often contain materials that should not end up in regular household trash. Recycling them properly helps reduce waste while providing a convenient way to clean out homes and offices.

Whether it is one outdated cellphone or a collection of unused electronics, residents are encouraged to take advantage of this free community service.

Mayfield Announces December Leaf Pickup Schedule

By: Laurna Pruett
KPI Writer

The City of Mayfield has announced its December leaf pickup schedule, giving residents an opportunity to clear fallen leaves from their yards before winter arrives.

City crews will make a sweep through Mayfield during two designated weeks in December, collecting bagged leaves placed along the curb.

Residents living south of Broadway will have their leaves collected Dec. 7-11, while those living north of Broadwayare scheduled for Dec. 14-18.

City officials remind residents that only bagged leaves will be accepted. Bags containing trash or other debris are prohibited, and residents could receive a citation if trash is mixed with the leaves.

Residents are also asked not to place bags at the curb more than 48 hours before their scheduled pickup week to help keep streets and neighborhoods clear ahead of collection.

Housing reform needed to strengthen state economy, report says

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – A new report from the Kentucky Chamber Center for Policy and Research finds that bold housing reform is essential to strengthening Kentucky's economy and solving workforce challenges.

Let Kentucky Build, a joint report from the Kentucky Chamber, the Home Builders Association of Kentucky, and Kentucky REALTORS®, outlines the challenges limiting housing development across the Commonwealth and recommends12 policy reforms for state lawmakers to consider.

"Kentucky has worked hard to attract new jobs and investment, but that progress depends on having enough homes for the people who fill those jobs," said Ashli Watts, president and CEO of the Kentucky Chamber. "These reforms offer practical solutions to help communities grow, and the 2027 legislative session is an opportunity to take action."

The report shows that home building in Kentucky plummeted 46 percent in the decade following the Great Recession of 2007-2009, resulting in a housing supply shortfall. Government regulations, bureaucratic delays, and infrastructure have since made home building more difficult and expensive.

As a result, in certain areas of the state, median home sale prices are now 4 times median household incomes, up from 2-3 times median incomes 30 years ago.

Proposed reforms include:

--Modernizing parking requirements so that the free market determines how many parking spots are needed for new homes instead of the government

--Making sure that rules for builders are consistent and predictable.

--Reducing costly delays by allowing builders to partner with qualified private parties for mandated inspections.

--Encouraging public-private partnerships between builders and governments to help reduce the financial impacts of infrastructure on homebuyers.

--Ensuring that governments fully consider the impacts of regulations on housing and the economy when they create new rules for home building .

--Making it more practical for builders to develop infill housing and convert existing structures – like office buildings – into new housing.

Let Kentucky Build can be read in full at kychamber.com/housing. Also available are an executive summary, a housing reforms brief, and a slide deck featuring the report's key data points.

UK CCTS receives $33.9 million in grant award

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

LEXINGTON, Ky. (KT) – The University of Kentucky Center for Clinical and Translational Science (CCTS) has been awarded a Clinical and Translational Science Award (CTSA) totaling $33.9 million.

The award is for work by CCTS to innovate research methods, foster upcoming generations of researchers, and measurably improve health in Kentucky and beyond.

Since 2011, UK CCTS has received four consecutive CTSA awards totaling $97.2 million from the National Center for Advancing Translational Sciences (NCATS) at the National Institutes of Health (NIH). Only 65 institutions in the country currently hold the award, which aims to speed the translation of research discoveries into improved patient care and public health — a process that typically takes years or decades.

UK is also one of only 34 institutions to hold a trifecta of federal NIH research designations in translational science, cancer (Markey Cancer Center), and Alzheimer's disease (Sanders-Brown Center on Aging).

"Research is fundamental to the university's mission to advance and serve Kentucky," said UK President Eli Capilouto. "Securing these major research designations not only places us in elite company but ensures we are at the forefront of discovery and patient care."

Since its founding 20 years ago, the CCTS has made a transformative impact on UK's research enterprise and the careers of hundreds of researchers. It uses a unique partnership across UK's 18 colleges — one of only eight institutions in the nation with such co-locations — to bridge the health needs of Kentucky with national research priorities.

The center does not focus on a particular disease or condition but serves as a multifaceted infrastructure to speed up the process of research across the spectrum of human health. It provides pilot funding, education and training programs, and an array of essential research services ranging from study design to inpatient and outpatient research clinics to biomedical informatics.

"Complex diseases cannot be solved in isolation," said Katherine Hartmann, M.D., CCTS director. "They require high-performing, interdisciplinary teams supported by robust infrastructure. CCTS exists to accelerate that process — moving promising discoveries from UK researchers into clinical practice and public health. By innovating translational methods and providing the resources and services our investigators need, we help deliver results that measurably improve health and preventive care across the Commonwealth, the region and the nation."

She adds, "Our goal over the next seven years of our funding is to use translation science to make our research more rigorous, more efficient and faster."

The Bill Gatton Foundation commits $30 million to transform The Arboretum

By DERRICK MEADS
derrick.meads@uky.edu

LEXINGTON, Ky.— The Bill Gatton Foundation has committed $30 million to the University of Kentucky – Lexington-Fayette County Arboretum, State Botanical Garden of Kentucky, supporting new and renovated facilities and landscape improvements that will expand learning opportunities and enrich one of Lexington's most beloved public spaces.

UK President Eli Capilouto announced the gift during an Oct. 29 celebration at The Arboretum, joined by The Bill Gatton Foundation trustees, university and city leaders, donors, volunteers and community members.

"The Arboretum reflects what is possible when a university and its community work together with a shared purpose," Capilouto said. "The Bill Gatton Foundation's extraordinary generosity will strengthen that connection for generations. This gift invests in a place where people learn, find renewal and build relationships — and where the beauty of Kentucky is preserved and shared with everyone."

Managed through the UK Martin-Gatton College of Agriculture, Food and Environment (CAFE), The Arboretum is a 100-acre public garden that connects university teaching and research with opportunities for people of all ages to explore Kentucky's natural world.

"This gift will strengthen The Arboretum's role as a place where university learning and community life come together," said Laura Stephenson, vice president for land-grant engagement and dean of Martin-Gatton CAFE. "It will allow us to expand educational programs and better serve our visitors while caring for a place that means so much to so many people."

The planned improvements include a new education building, renovations to the existing Dorotha Smith Oatts Visitor Center for expanded event use and enhancements to the Walk Across Kentucky, a living museum and native plant collection. Together, the projects will provide dedicated spaces for instruction, exhibits, community programs and gatherings while strengthening The Arboretum's mission of environmental and horticultural education, research and conservation.

The new education building will include dedicated classrooms and an immersive exhibit experience, allowing indoor instruction to connect directly with hands-on learning throughout The Arboretum. Last year, more than 75 UK classes representing more than 1,300 students used the grounds, despite not having dedicated classroom space.

The renovated visitor center will create additional opportunities for conservation programs, Extension training, student presentations, arts programming and community events. Improvements to the Walk Across Kentucky will add gathering areas for outdoor instruction and quiet reflection.

An integrated landscape will connect the two new facilities, with educational features along pathways designed to enhance the visitor experience. Additional improvements will include a reconfigured main entrance and improved parking and accessibility. The investment will also support the relocation of operational facilities off-site, allowing more of The Arboretum's grounds to be dedicated to its public mission while maintaining the infrastructure needed to support the property.

Danny Dunn, trustee of The Bill Gatton Foundation, said these improvements will position The Arboretum to serve the university and broader community for the next 100 years and beyond.

"I've never known anyone who loved their home state more than Mr. Gatton loved the Commonwealth," Dunn said. "Parks are places that allow children and adults alike to play and enjoy nature. The added great benefit of The Arboretum is the educational aspect, the opportunity to learn."

Dunn also announced that the new education building will be named in honor of Scott Smith, former dean of Martin-Gatton CAFE, whose connections to The Arboretum spans more than four decades. During his tenure as dean from 2001 to 2013, Smith helped lead significant growth at The Arboretum, including the opening of the Kentucky Children's Garden. He has remained a dedicated advocate, volunteer and supporter of The Arboretum.

The announcement comes as UK and the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government mark 40 years since their 1986 agreement establishing The Arboretum partnership. Over the four decades, The Arboretum has become part of everyday life for generations of visitors. Its gardens, trails and collections provide settings for education, recreation, reflection and celebration.

"Many people who know and love this place want to know that for a very long time, and for generations to come it will still be the Arboretum," said Lexington Mayor Linda Gorton. "This awesome gift from the Gatton Foundation has given our community that assurance."

For Michael Wall, director of The Arboretum, the investment builds on the land's history while giving The Arboretum greater capacity to fulfill its educational mission and serve the people who have made it part of their lives.

"Forty years ago, visionary leaders planted the seeds for a place dedicated to research, education, and outreach," Wall said. "Over those four decades, the people of Kentucky turned it into something even bigger: a sanctuary of human connection, community building and celebration."

Design is underway, with project completion anticipated in the third quarter of 2028.

University of Kentucky launches Coffee, Science and Culture Certificate

By Grace Sowards
grace.sowards@uky.edu

LEXINGTON, Ky.— A cup of coffee has many lives before it ends up in the mug. At the University of Kentucky Martin-Gatton College of Agriculture, Food and Environment, a new undergraduate certificate examines the science, production, trade, history and cultural significance of coffee.

David Gonthier, associate professor in the UK Department of Entomology, one of The Bill Gatton Foundation Distinguished Professors and director of the UK Coffee Lab, has led the development and launch of the Coffee Science and Culture Certificate. Through coursework, students will develop practical skills in coffee like roasting, brewing and sensory evaluation, while exploring the international value chain that connects the entire workforce. Further, courses will explore issues that face the industry, like the environmental and social impacts of coffee production and trade.

"Coffee is something that many of us drink every day, but behind every cup is an extraordinary story of far-off places, cultures, trades and human livelihoods," Gonthier said. "We want students to leave with an ability to think critically and communicate across disciplines, cultures and industries to ultimately contribute to a more sustainable and prosperous global coffee community, from production to consumption."

The certificate is 12 credit hours, with two required courses and two open electives. COF 301, Not Just Coffee, is a required course taught by Gonthier, focuses on the history, culture and general global impact of the beverage. The other required course is Coffee Sensory Science, designed to appreciate the characters that add value to coffee and the science behind how to evaluate them.

"The certificate program will have something for everyone," Gonthier said. "Learning how to taste and appreciate foods and beverages totally improves the quality of life — you'll start to think more about not only coffee, but everything you're eating and drinking and where it comes from."

Undergraduate students can register for the Coffee Science and Culture Certificate and courses that begin in Spring 2027. The certificate is also available for nontraditional students and community members, as there are several asynchronous class options.

"This certificate gives students from any major an opportunity to connect their interests with agriculture, science and global trade," said Carmen Agouridis, senior associate dean of the Martin-Gatton CAFE. "Students will gain practical skills while learning how the decisions made throughout coffee production affect people, communities and the environment."

Coffee is also available to purchase on campus. UK students, faculty and staff can purchase bags of UK coffee online for pickup on campus. UK coffee is also available at Bluegrass Beans, the café inside of the Martin-Gatton Agricultural Sciences Building.

This winter, the UK Coffee Lab is creating a coffee advent calendar. It will include 24 whole-bean coffee samples from all over the world to celebrate the diversity of coffee. Each sample will be enough for roughly one pot of coffee.

"The Coffee Lab advent calendar will be a global adventure through the world of coffee and highlight the unique flavor profiles of different origins, varieties and processing techniques," Gonthier said. "In addition, there will be coffees with impact on producer prosperity, conservation and other sustainability objectives. Roast level will generally be between light and medium for all coffees, to best express the unique attributes of each coffee."

Preorders are available on the Coffee Lab website now.

For more information about the certificate, visit the program site or reach out to CoffeeLab@uky.edu.

Cats still have a lot to play for down stretch starting with Gators

By Keith Taylor
Kentucky Today

LEXINGTON, Ky. (KT) — Kentucky, ranked 11th in the latest College Football Playoff rankings Tuesday night, still controls its own destiny with three weeks remaining in the regular season.

Coach Will Stein wants the Wildcats to seize the opportunities starting with Saturday's contest against Florida.

Coming off a 34-6 loss to No. 9 Tennessee, which slipped Kentucky (7-2, 5-2) into a second-place tie with Alabama in the Southeastern Conference standings and dropped the Wildcats five spots from 8th to No. 13 in the Associated Press Top 25 poll, Stein said there is still a lot to play for to close out the remainder of this month. The CFP ranking reveal proved as much.

"I think everything that we want is still right out in front of our face, which is exciting," Stein said. "But we know that every week in the SEC presents different challenges, and you have a Florida Gators team who has shown a lot of life early in the year, has hit some tough spots, just like we have, and I'm expecting their absolute best on Saturday. ... It's also a one-game season every single week in the SEC, and specifically in November."

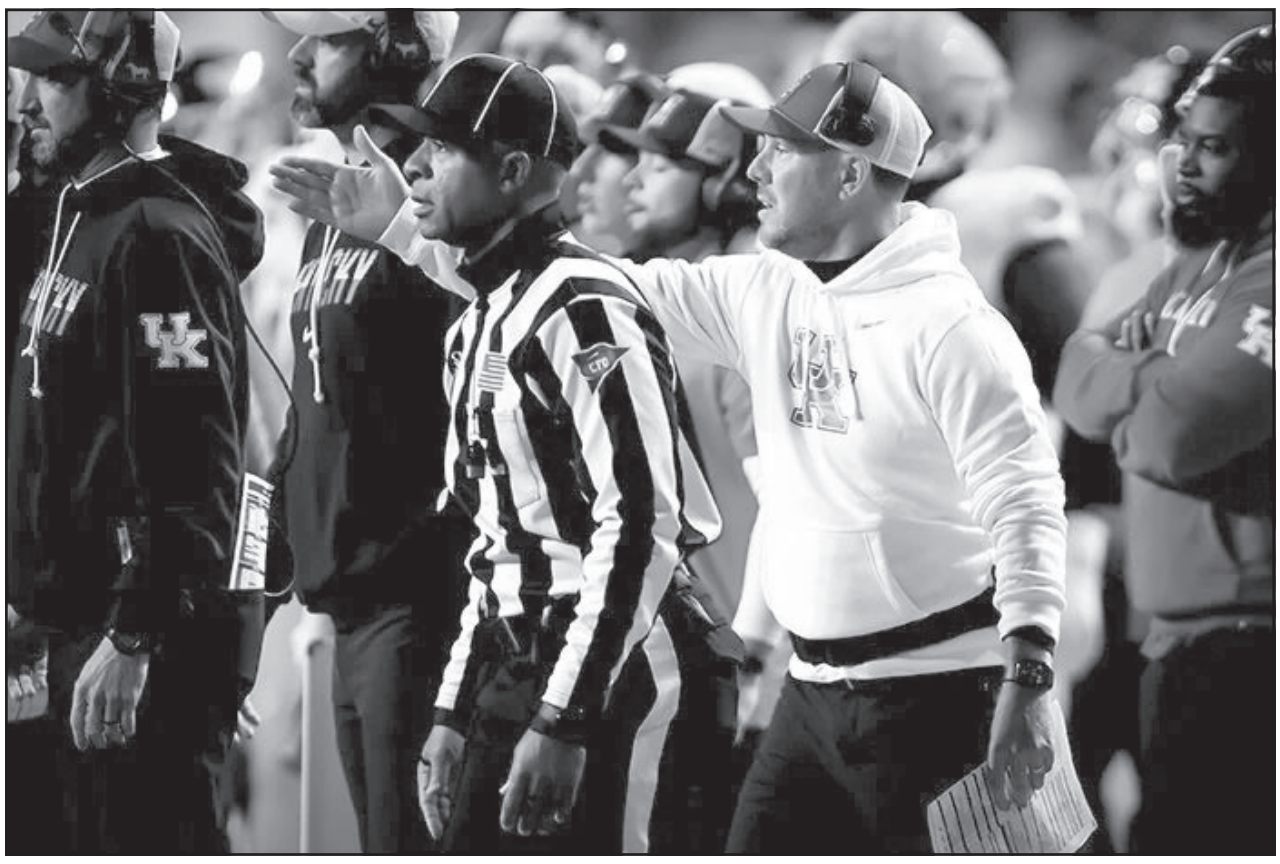

After reviewing the Tennessee film, Stein said they failed to overcome too many mistakes, which included two lost fumbles, an interception and penalties that stalled promising drives, especially during the first three quarters.

Stein said there were "opportunities all over the film to change the game in our favor and go get a win on the road and we didn't."

"There were too many critical mistakes and crunch-time moments for us to overcome and win — three turnovers on offense were very costly," Stein said. "Obviously, six penalties, no touchdowns. It's the first game maybe ever that I haven't been a part of an offensive touchdown and we were 0-2 on fourth downs."

Stein did find an array of positives in the team's second loss of the season.

"We had 20 first downs against a really good defense," he said. "We outgained them, or we outgaining them most of the game. I think we put more yards up on them than any other team this year. We had 15 plays over 10 yards compared to their eight that their offense created against us over 10 yards. We're improving each game on third downs as well, which is a positive."

Kentucky coach Will Stein appears to be giving this official an earful. Kentucky was called for six penalties and committed three turnovers in a 34-6 loss to Tennessee. (Photo by Les Nicholson)

Florida (5-4, 3-4) have lost four of five and back-to-back defeats under first-year Gators coach Jon Sumrall, who played and later served as an assistant coach at Kentucky. Florida dropped a 23-7 loss to Oklahoma last week and has been outscored 50-15 in the past two weeks. Top-ranked Georgia dealt Sumrall's squad a 27-8 loss two weeks ago in Atlanta.

"I think everybody knows his history here as an alum, former player here at Kentucky, much respect to him and his program," Stein said. "They have really good players and they're a really talented team."

The contest will also be a reunion for Florida defensive coordinator Brad White, who served under former Kentucky coach Mark Stoops for eight seasons, including the last seven as the top defensive boss.

"Both (of) those guys I don't know personally very well, but I have a ton of respect for what they've done as coaches, clearly a defensive background, and coach Sumrall and Brad White have done a great job over his career with defenses," Stein said.

Sumrall is looking forward to returning to the Bluegrass but is focused on getting his team back on track.

"I'm a Florida Gator, but I wouldn't be where I'm at without maybe some of the things that Kentucky's done for me individually," he said. "I have a lot of respect for the place and tons of great friends and relationships that have been forged over the years in my time there but this is not a reflection week. This game's got very little to do about my ties to the place. It's about how do I get our team ready to play better and match really how they're playing. ... . I've got my full focus on how to help our guys get better and help our team get better, but there is that component to it."

NEXT GAME: Florida at Kentucky, 6:15 p.m., Saturday. TV/Radio: ESPN, UK Radio Network.

Cats fail first major test, fall to Kansas in Champions Classic

By Keith Taylor
Kentucky Today

Kentucky couldn't stop Kansas on Tuesday night at the United Center in Chicago.

The No. 24 Wildcats (2-1) suffered their first setback with an 89-69 loss to 15th-ranked Jayhawks in the State Farm Champions Classic. It marked Kentucky's third straight loss to Kansas and they fell to 6-10 overall in the Champions Classic.

"It was a frustrating night for us, for sure," Kentucky coach Mark Pope said on his postgame radio show. "There's so much for us to grow and learn. This is a learning group, and we will. But man, there's a lot of frustration tonight. Some things that definitely did not go our way."

Kansas freshman Tyran Stokes, who chose the Jayhawks over Kentucky last summer, scored 23 points and tallied 13 of those in the first half. Stokes, who connected on four 3-pointers, was a sparkplug for the undefeated Jayhawks (3-0), who have won 10 of 16 games, including four victories over the Wildcats, in the early-season showcase.

"I am pretty sure everyone obviously knows for me it was up to Kansas and Kentucky for my last two schools," Stokes said. "I'm from Louisville. I had a long recruiting process with Kentucky. Obviously when I chose Kansas and I knew that game was going to be here, it was personal for sure. But we got the dub, created a team, and that's all that matters."

Zoom Diallo led the Wildcats with 24 points. Diallo had 15 points and connected on six field goals on seven attempts and made a pair of 3-pointers to keep Kentucky close in the first half. Alex Wilkins added eight points in the opening half for the Cats.

"I thought you know Zoom was really functional for us tonight," Pope said. "I thought he did some really good things. The ball got sticky. You know it's complicated to only have 13 assists and for us to be underwater in assist-to-turnover percentage. That's a problem. That's a that's something that we need to address. There are some things that Zoom did tonight well that we can really use to grow on."

Kentucky forward Malachi Moreno played just seven minutes in the first half because of foul trouble and finished with 19 points and 10 rebounds. Moreno made 8-of-11 field goals and tallied 17 points in the second half.

"I'm excited about what he showed tonight," Pope said. "It was really the first time that he's shown us in his young career that we kind of work him in the post, and he would produce and give us two or three or four possessions in a row. I thought he was really good there. That's something for us to grow on for sure."

Milan Momciovic had just five points and scored just two points in the opening half and didn't attempt a 3-pointer in the first 20 minutes for Kentucky, which made its first five field goals early but couldn't keep pace with the Jayhawks, who scored 10 points off nine turnovers and limited the Wildcats to just three offensive rebounds in the opening frame.

Tre White led the Jayhawks with a career-high 30 points, while Trey Kaufman-Renn added 12. Kansas scored 22 points on 15 Kentucky turnovers and limited the Wildcats to just eight offensive rebounds.

Kentucky had 13 assists and made just four 3-pointers on 21 attempts.

"They back cut us to death," Pope said. "It was disappointing with that. We kind of came in with a focus on that, and we just couldn't as a team respond. They cut so hard, but their back cutting really hurt us throughout the night."

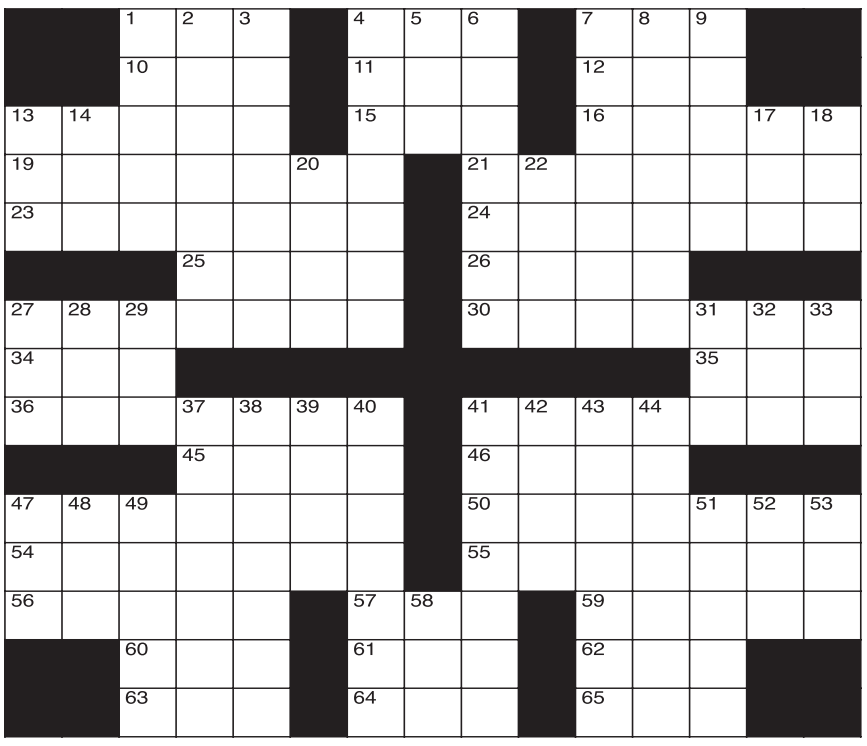

Pope added that he's optimistic the Cats will recover from the first setback of the season.

"This is a great group because this is an incredibly disappointing night, but this group has a huge upside," he said.

In the opening game of the blockbuster doubleheader at the United Center, No. 5 Michigan State defeated second-ranked Duke 79-73.

NEXT GAME: Northern Arizona at Kentucky, 7 p.m., Friday. TV/Radio: SECN+, UK Radio Network.

Sudoku Puzzle

How it Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle! Good Luck!

Driver who flipped car in downtown Hopkinsville arrested for DUI

By Christian County Now

HOPKINSVILLE, KY (CHRISTIAN COUNTY NOW) – Early Tuesday morning, emergency responders were on the scene of an accident in downtown Hopkinsville that resulted in an arrest.

On Nov. 10 just after 7 a.m., a Franklin, Tennessee woman was attempting to turn right onto East Ninth Street from South Virgina Street, striking a tree and flipping her vehicle in front of the museum.

According to an arrest report from HPD, the driver exhibited signs of being under the influence of alcohol. She told officers that she had four shots of vodka on an empty stomach prior to operating the vehicle and additional field testing was done to test her sobriety.

The woman was placed under arrest by HPD and was charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of a substance as well as driving on a DUI suspended license.

Floats wanted for Night Christmas Parade in Hopkinsville, grand marshal announced

By Christian County Now

HOPKINSVILLE, KY – Downtown Hopkinsville will celebrate the holiday season with the HES/EnergyNet Night Christmas Parade on Saturday, Dec. 12 at 5:15 p.m. This year's theme, "A Snowman's Winter Wonderland," will bring Main Street to life with illuminated floats, marching bands, community groups, and plenty of Christmas spirit.

The holiday tradition will once again light up Main Street with dazzling floats, marching bands, community groups, and local organizations bringing their creative spin on the theme. Families are encouraged to line the streets early to secure the best viewing spots as downtown Hopkinsville transforms into "A Snowman's Winter Wonderland."

"The Night Christmas Parade is one of Hopkinsville's most cherished traditions," said Hopkinsville Parks and Recreation Superintendent Toby Hudson. "We look forward to seeing our community come together and showcase their holiday spirit with this year's fun and family-friendly theme. We are excited to see how our parade participants bring 'A Snowman's Winter Wonderland' to life throughout downtown Hopkinsville."

Floats, vehicles, bands, golf carts, businesses, churches, schools, and community groups are encouraged to participate. The entry fee is $20 plus a new toy donation. Entry forms may be picked up and submitted at the Thomas Street Recreation Center.

Grand Marshal and route info

The Grand Marshal of this year's parade is Mr. Jeff Hurd, General Manager of Hopkinsville Electric System & EnergyNet. Hurd has served as General Manager since 2017 and has spent 36 years working in the electric utility industry serving the City of Hopkinsville and Christian County. A graduate of the University of Kentucky with a Bachelor of Science degree in Electrical Engineering, Hurd also holds a Professional Engineering license in Kentucky. He is a past Chairman of the Christian County Chamber of Commerce and currently serves on numerous nonprofit boards. Hurd is married to Lana (Fentress) Hurd, and they have two sons and two grandsons.

"We are privileged and honored to have Mr. Hurd serve as our Grand Marshal for the 2026 HES/EnergyNet Night Christmas Parade," said Hopkinsville Parks and Recreation Superintendent Toby Hudson. "His many years of service and commitment to Hopkinsville and Christian County make him a wonderful choice to lead this year's parade."

The parade will begin at Glass Avenue and travel south along Main Street toward 14th Street, stepping off promptly at 5:15 p.m. Immediately following the conclusion of the parade, the Community Tree Lighting will take place at Little River Park, continuing the evening's holiday celebration.

For additional information, contact Hopkinsville Parks and Recreation at 270-887-4290, follow Hopkinsville Parks and Recreation on Facebook, or visit www.hoptownrec.com.

Deer Hunting Safety: Make Every Hunt a Safe Hunt

Practical habits for the field, the firearm, and the tree stand

A successful deer hunt ends with everyone returning home safely. Make equipment checks, careful weapon handling, visibility, tree-stand protection, and trip planning part of every outing.

Prepare Before You Head Out

Inspect your firearm, stand, ladders, steps, harness, and haul lines for damage or wear. Follow the manufacturers' instructions and practice using your stand before hunting.

Check local hunter-education requirements, legal shooting hours, safety-clothing rules, and access restrictions. Obtain permission before entering private land, including to track a wounded deer.

Make Firearm Safety Nonnegotiable

Treat every firearm as loaded. Point the muzzle in a safe direction, keep your finger outside the trigger guard until ready to fire, and know your target and what is in front of and beyond it.

Positively identify a legal deer; never shoot at sounds, brush movement, or uncertain shapes. Pass up any shot you cannot confirm is safe. Never climb with a loaded firearm; raise and lower it unloaded with a haul line.

Stay Visible to Other Hunters

Wear hunter orange as required for your location and season, keeping it visible on the way to and from your hunting spot. Check official rules: some firearm-season clothing requirements also apply to bowhunters.

Use a Tree Stand Without Cutting Corners

Use a properly rated full-body fall-arrest harness and stay connected to the tree whenever your feet are off the ground. Follow manufacturers' instructions and weight limits, including your gear.

Climb slowly with three points of contact. Raise and lower gear—including unloaded firearms, bows, and arrows—with a haul line. Practice at ground level, and never use damaged or unsafe equipment.

Apply the Same Discipline to Archery

Inspect bow limbs and strings for damage or wear. Point the bow and arrow toward the ground while nocking. Never draw when someone is in front of or behind the target, and never release the string without an arrow. Follow your equipment's instructions.

Leave a Plan With Someone You Trust

Tell someone your exact hunting or stand location and expected return time before each outing. Include eye and ear protection in your firearm-hunting preparations.

Bring the Right Mindset

No deer is worth an unsafe decision. Stay visible, control your firearm or bow, and pass up uncertain shots. Complete required hunter education and consult official regulations for your location and season.

McCraken County Pet of the Week

Meet this week's pet of the week, Shelby. Shelby is a little over 5 years old and she is a pit/rottweiler mix. She originally came to the shelter in December of 2021 as part of an animal control seizure. She was brought in with both of her parents and she was starving and having to fight for food. Shelby was very weary of people at first, but has grown to be the sweetest dog ever. She is dog particular however so she will require a meet and greet with any potential roommates. Shelby was adopted in April of 2023 after being at the shelter for over a year. She was just returned to Animal Control in the last month because her owner could no longer care for her. Shelby is spayed, up to date on vaccinations and microchipped.

Mayfield Organizations Come Together to Spread Christmas Cheer

By: Laurna Pruett
KPI Writer

The holiday season is a time for giving, and two efforts underway in Mayfield are offering residents an opportunity to make Christmas a little brighter for local children and families who need an extra helping hand.

Cash Express and the Mayfield Fire Department are organizing separate holiday donation drives, both with the goal of helping those in need. While the organizations are taking the lead, they are counting on the generosity of the community to make their efforts successful.

Cash Express will host its "Fill the Ambulance" event on Nov. 27, collecting gently used coats, toys and nonperishable food items for local children and families.

Donations will benefit the Mayfield Resource Center, helping provide needed items just in time for Christmas. Residents wishing to contribute can drop off donations at Cash Express, located at 1207 Paris Road in Mayfield, before Nov. 30. For additional information, call 270-247-2012.

The Mayfield Fire Department is also working to bring Christmas cheer to local children through its annual toy drive, accepting new, unwrapped toys through Dec. 10.

Donations will benefit two local organizations based on the intended age group. Toys for children from birth through age 4 will go to The Hope Center, while gifts for children ages 5 through 18 will benefit the Mayfield Independent Schools FACE Center.

Residents can drop off toys at Station 1, located at 115 Kings Drive, between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. Donations may be placed beneath the Christmas tree in the station lobby, and fire department personnel will handle delivery to the appropriate organizations.

Although the drives are separate, both share a common purpose: helping local families experience a brighter Christmas.

For families already struggling with everyday expenses, the holidays can bring additional financial pressure. Something as simple as a warm coat, a few groceries or a toy beneath the Christmas tree can make a meaningful difference.

It does not take a large donation to help. One toy, one coat or a few nonperishable food items can bring comfort and joy to someone who might otherwise go without.

Both organizations are doing their part to give back, but they cannot do it alone. They need the community's support to turn their efforts into something truly special.

As Christmas approaches, residents are encouraged to remember that giving does not have to be expensive to be meaningful. Sometimes, the smallest gesture can make the biggest difference in a child's Christmas.

Graves County Cheer Claims Regional Championship

The Graves County Coed Cheer Team captured first place at the KHSAA Regional Competition Saturday in Owensboro. For senior Emerson Binkley, the victory fulfilled a five-year goal of winning a regional title. The Eagles will compete at the state competition Dec. 12 in Winchester. Fans can catch the team's next performance Nov. 17 at Big Blue Madness in the FNB Bank Eagles Nest.

Graves County Sheriff Warns Drivers of Increased Deer-Related Crashes

By: Wilbur Jackson
KPI Writer

GRAVES COUNTY, Ky. — Graves County Sheriff Jon Hayden is urging motorists to use extra caution while traveling county roads following a sharp increase in deer-related vehicle crashes.

With deer activity increasing during the fall season, drivers are being reminded to remain alert, particularly during early morning and evening hours when deer are most active. The seasonal increase in movement, combined with reduced visibility, can create hazardous conditions for motorists.

Sheriff Hayden encourages drivers to watch roadways and surrounding areas carefully, especially in rural locations, wooded areas and stretches of highway where deer crossings are common.

Motorists should reduce their speed, remain alert and avoid distractions while driving. If a deer is spotted near the roadway, drivers should slow down and be prepared for the possibility of additional deer following behind it.

Officials also caution drivers against swerving suddenly to avoid hitting a deer, as losing control of a vehicle or crossing into oncoming traffic can result in more serious accidents. Instead, motorists should brake firmly while maintaining control of their vehicles.

If a collision occurs, drivers should move to a safe location, contact law enforcement when necessary and avoid approaching an injured deer.

The sheriff's office reminds residents that deer-related crashes can happen quickly and urges everyone to take extra precautions. Staying alert and slowing down can help prevent accidents, protect motorists and make county roadways safer for everyone.

Three Restaurant Closures Bring Change and Opportunity to Mayfield

The former Poeyes building shown after it's closure

By: Laurna Pruett
KPI Writer

The closing of Wendy's in Mayfield, following the earlier closures of KFC and Popeyes Louisiana Kitchen, has left residents wondering what is happening along one of the city's busiest commercial corridors.

All three restaurants operated along Paris Road, serving local families, workers and travelers. While losing familiar national chains is disappointing, restaurant closures are often influenced by factors extending beyond the communities they serve.

Popeyes closed in early 2025, followed by KFC and the more recently reported closure of Wendy's. Although the specific reasons behind each closing have not been officially confirmed, restaurants nationwide continue to face challenges involving operating expenses, labor costs, changing consumer habits and corporate restructuring.

National chains and franchise operators regularly evaluate locations based on profitability and long-term business strategies. A decision to close one restaurant does not necessarily reflect the overall strength of a community's economy.

Wendy's building shown after closing

For Mayfield, these closures also raise an important question: What comes next?

Each vacant restaurant building represents a potential opportunity for another business to establish itself. Existing commercial locations could attract new restaurants, locally owned businesses or other investors interested in serving the community.

The closures also highlight the importance of supporting businesses already operating in Mayfield. Restaurants provide employment, contribute to the local economy and help keep customers shopping close to home.

Mayfield has faced challenges before and continues working toward growth and rebuilding. While seeing three familiar restaurants close is concerning, it does not mean additional closures are inevitable.

Rather than focusing solely on what has been lost, the community can look toward what might come next.

Empty buildings may represent the end of one business, but they can also become the beginning of another.

State receipts show growth in General Fund over first four months

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – Kentucky's General Fund receipts has continued to see significant growth through the first four months of the 2027 Fiscal Year (FY 27), however, the same cannot be said for the state's Road Fund.

The Office of State Budget Director reported Wednesday that October's General Fund receipts rose 10.5 percent, or $123.7 million, compared to last year's total. Revenues for the month were $1,305.3 million compared to $1,181.6 million collected in October 2025.

Receipts have grown 12.2 percent in the first four months of the fiscal year and must increase 2.9 percent over the final eight months of FY27 to reach the official revenue estimate of $16,894.0 million. To meet the original budgeted estimate of $15,896.1 million, revenues could decline by 6.2 percent during the remaining eight months of the fiscal year.

Five of the eight major tax accounts posted October increases. The same five accounts have grown year-to-date. October was a continuation of recent General Fund trends plus an especially large monthly gain of $100.3 million in the major business taxes, a combination of the corporation income tax and the limited liability entity tax.

State Budget Director John Hicks said, "General Fund revenue growth has been strong this fiscal year with double-digit increases in three of the first four months. The major business taxes and the sales and use tax accounted for most of the monthly revenue increase in October with growth of $132.0 million. Year-to-date collections in the General Fund are consistent with the revenue flows contemplated by the Consensus Forecasting Group when formulating the September 2026 revised official estimates."

Meanwhile, Road Fund revenues fell 3.1 percent in October. Year-to-date collections are down 4.8 percent compared to the previous year. Based on year-to-date collections, Road Fund receipts must increase 3.8 percent over the next eight months to meet the official FY27 revenue estimate.

AG Coleman continues fight against robocalls

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – Kentucky Attorney General Russell Coleman and a bipartisan coalition of 49 attorneys general are pushing the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to make improvements to its Robocall Mitigation Database that would help curb illegal robocalls.

According to Coleman's office, this action is the fourth letter the coalition has sent to the FCC regarding the protection of consumers.

Phone service providers must register with the Robocall Mitigation Database before they can send calls through U.S. phone networks. As part of that process, they're required to provide information about their business and detail action taken to prevent robocalls. Other providers are only supposed to accept calls from companies listed in that database. Currently, scammers and other bad actors can get into the database and remain listed without much difficulty.

The attorneys general are pushing for stronger oversight and guidelines. The group is urging the FCC to improve the effectiveness of the Robocall Mitigation Database by strengthening filing obligations and deterring bad actors and non-compliant providers from appearing in the database.

In addition to what the FCC is already doing, the attorneys general urge additional action including:

--Ensure that all information in the database is accurate and complete. The FCC should thoroughly vet all information submitted to the database before allowing a provider to appear in the database and to start sending call traffic through the network.

--Require additional disclosures. The FCC should require providers to disclose their use of third parties, related entities, the legitimacy of claims of a domestic presence, and access to numbering resources.

--Make it more difficult for bad actors to enter or re-enter the database. The attorneys general support the FCC's proposed methods to suspend or remove bad actors from the database, strengthen the filing format and content of robocall mitigation plans, and require that database filers provide evidence of solvency.

Coleman is part of the Anti-Robocall Multistate Litigation Task Force, which launched Operation Robocall Roundup in 2025.

Kentucky Senate majority caucus leaders secure roles again

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – The five Republicans who make up the Kentucky Senate Majority Caucus leadership will continue serving in their current roles for the 2027-28 biennium after drawing no challengers.

"I'm grateful for the opportunity to serve not only my district but all of Kentucky as Senate President," said Sen. Robert Stivers of Manchester. "I think about the people back home, the colleagues who've entrusted me with this gavel and the generations who will live with our decisions. Leading this chamber is an extraordinary privilege. I don't take it for granted, and I intend to bring the same commitment to these next two years that I've brought to every year as Senate president."

Senate President Pro Tem David Givens of Greensburg said, "This Senate means a great deal to me. Colleagues have become dear friends, and their trust means more than I can adequately express. I value being able to sit down with people I respect and work through a difficult question together. I'm grateful to keep serving alongside them and to help give Kentucky's children more opportunity."

"When I first took this job, I said I wanted to make it my own," said Majority Leader Max Wise of Campbellsville. "I want our members to know they can bring me an idea, a problem or a tough fight and I'll stand with them. The best part of this job is helping a colleague get something done for the people back home. Their confidence means a lot to me. I'm proud to keep leading this team."

Majority Whip Mike Wilson of Bowling Green pointed out, "My faith calls me to serve others, and that's how I try to approach this job. Sometimes that means a quiet conversation, listening to a concern or helping a colleague work through a difficult decision. I want our members to know they can count on me. It's a blessing to serve Kentucky."

Majority Caucus Chair Robby Mills of Henderson offered his reaction on being re-elected: "Working in local government and running a small business taught me how personal public policy can be. A decision in Frankfort can affect whether a family can afford a home or an employer can hire another worker. Those are the people I think about when our caucus sits down to work. I appreciate my colleagues asking me to keep bringing that experience to our leadership team."

A Veteran's Service Never Ends:

Tex Shockley Continues Serving Fellow Veterans in Western Kentucky

By helping build ramps and handrails for fellow veterans, Tex Shockley is proving that serving his country doesn't end when military service is over.

For many veterans, the end of military service marks the beginning of a new chapter in life. For Tex Shockley, however, one thing has never changed: his commitment to helping others.

A former United States Army serviceman, Shockley has continued answering the call to serve long after his time in uniform. Through his efforts to help build wheelchair ramps and handrails for fellow veterans throughout Western Kentucky, he has demonstrated that dedication, compassion, and a willingness to serve do not disappear when a military career comes to an end.

Shockley has been instrumental in helping construct ramps and handrails for veterans who need assistance making their homes safer and more accessible. While these projects might seem like simple construction jobs to some, their impact on the people receiving the help can be life-changing.

For veterans dealing with mobility challenges, a set of properly constructed steps, a sturdy handrail, or a wheelchair ramp can mean the difference between depending on someone else for everyday activities and regaining a measure of independence.

Something as ordinary as getting in and out of one's home can become a tremendous obstacle for someone living with physical limitations. By lending his time, effort, and skills to these projects, Shockley is helping remove those obstacles for fellow veterans.

His work represents something much bigger than lumber, nails, screws, and construction materials. It represents brotherhood, compassion, and a promise that those who once stood together in service to their country should not be forgotten when they return home.

When asked about his continued service to veterans, Shockley's philosophy is simple: His service is not finished as long as he is still able to help another veteran who needs him.

That attitude speaks volumes about the kind of commitment that continues to drive so many veterans long after they leave the military.

Serving Those Who Served

The bond shared by military veterans is difficult to explain to someone who has never experienced it. Regardless of branch, rank, or the number of years spent in uniform, veterans share an understanding of sacrifice, responsibility, and the importance of looking out for one another.

For Shockley, that bond has translated into action.

Rather than simply talking about supporting veterans, he has chosen to get involved in ways that make a direct difference in their daily lives. Helping construct accessibility ramps and handrails is a practical example of veterans helping veterans, and it demonstrates how much can be accomplished when people are willing to give their time and energy to a worthwhile cause.

These improvements can provide veterans with greater freedom to enter and leave their homes, visit with family, attend appointments, and participate in everyday activities that many people take for granted.

It is also a reminder that the needs of veterans do not end when they leave the battlefield or complete their military obligations. Some face physical injuries, disabilities, age-related mobility issues, and other challenges that require assistance long after their service has ended.

People like Shockley help ensure those veterans have someone willing to stand beside them.

The VFW: A Tradition of Veterans Helping Veterans

Shockley's commitment to helping fellow servicemen and women reflects the very spirit behind one of America's oldest veterans organizations: the Veterans of Foreign Wars, better known as the VFW.

Founded in 1899, the VFW began when veterans returning from the Spanish-American War and the Philippine Insurrection organized themselves to fight for the care, recognition, and benefits they had earned through their military service.

Many of those veterans returned home wounded or ill and found themselves without adequate medical care or financial assistance. They realized that by standing together and speaking with one voice, they could accomplish far more than they could individually.

That original commitment to looking after fellow veterans remains at the heart of the organization today.

The VFW is a nonprofit veterans service organization dedicated to supporting eligible veterans, active-duty service members, military families, and local communities.

Its mission includes advocating for veterans' benefits, assisting with access to earned services, supporting military families, promoting patriotism, and strengthening the relationships between veterans who share the experience of serving their country.

Over the years, the VFW has played an important role in advocating for veterans' rights and benefits, including improvements to veterans' health care, educational opportunities, disability compensation, and support for those exposed to hazardous substances during military service.

The organization also participates in scholarship programs, youth activities, community service projects, military family assistance, and patriotic events.

At its core, the VFW is built around a simple belief: Those who have served our country deserve to know that their country and their fellow Americans have not forgotten them.

VFW Post 1191: A Veterans' Organization with Deep Roots in Paducah

Here in Western Kentucky, that tradition of service and camaraderie continues through local organizations such as VFW Post 1191, also known as the Jackson Harris Post, located in Paducah.

Post 1191 serves as a gathering place for veterans and a connection point for those who believe in supporting the men and women who have worn the uniform of the United States military.

Located at 1727 Washington Street in Paducah, Post 1191 is part of the larger Kentucky VFW organization, which includes posts throughout the Commonwealth.

Like other VFW posts across the country, its purpose extends beyond providing veterans with a place to meet. Local posts help preserve the traditions of military service while encouraging members to remain involved in their communities.

The VFW's work is not limited to formal meetings or ceremonies. It is also about building relationships, providing assistance, supporting military families, recognizing veterans' sacrifices, and finding ways to improve the lives of those who served.

Post 1191 is part of a statewide network of approximately 90 VFW posts in Kentucky, bringing together veterans who share a commitment to service and community involvement.

The post also offers its facility for hall rentals, providing an additional opportunity for community gatherings and events.

For veterans in the Paducah area, organizations such as Post 1191 offer something especially important: the opportunity to remain connected with people who understand the experiences, challenges, and sacrifices associated with military service.

More information about the local post can be found at www.vfw1191.org.

The Meaning of Continued Service

One of the most important aspects of military service is the understanding that individuals are part of something larger than themselves. Soldiers learn the importance of teamwork, responsibility, discipline, and looking out for the people standing beside them.

For many veterans, those lessons become lifelong values.

Shockley's work helping build ramps and handrails for other veterans is a reflection of those values. It is a reminder that service does not always require a uniform, a military installation, or a deployment overseas.

Sometimes service looks like showing up at another veteran's home with tools and materials. Sometimes it means spending hours building a ramp so someone can safely get through their front door. Sometimes it means offering a helping hand to someone who has spent much of their life helping others.

Those acts might not make headlines or receive widespread recognition, but they can have an enormous impact on the lives of the people receiving that assistance.

And perhaps that is what makes Shockley's commitment so meaningful.

He understands that veterans may need help long after their military service has ended. He also understands that someone has to be willing to step forward and provide that help.

His belief that his service is not finished as long as he can still assist another veteran is a powerful reminder of what it means to continue serving.

A Mission That Doesn't End

Across Western Kentucky, veterans have made countless sacrifices in service to their country. They have served in different branches, in different generations, and under different circumstances. When their military careers ended, many returned home and began building new lives.

But the need for support never completely disappears.

There are veterans who need assistance with mobility, transportation, housing, medical care, and everyday challenges. There are also veterans who simply need to know that someone remembers their service and is willing to lend a hand.

The efforts of people like Tex Shockley demonstrate the importance of never turning away from those needs.

His work is an example of the continued commitment that connects veterans across generations. It also reflects the values that organizations like the VFW have worked to preserve for more than a century.

Military service may eventually come to an end, but the friendships, responsibilities, and commitment to fellow servicemen and women can last a lifetime.

For Tex Shockley, the mission is still very much alive.

As long as there is another veteran who needs a ramp, a handrail, or simply someone willing to help, he believes there is still work to be done.

And that may be one of the greatest examples of service there is: A veteran who has already given so much to his country still finding ways to give back to those who served alongside him.

Four Brothers, Four Branches, One Family's Sacrifice for Freedom

By Laurna Pruett
KPI Writer

BALLARD COUNTY, Ky. — When America called upon its young men to defend freedom during World War II, one Ballard County family answered that call four times.

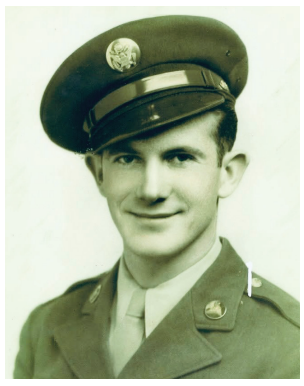

Warren, Howard, Gene and Malcolm Stewart were four brothers who left behind their family, their homes and the lives they knew to serve their country. Each entered a different branch of the military, but all shared the same commitment to something greater than themselves.

For their parents, Malcolm and Laura Stewart, the war brought a sacrifice few could imagine. Having one son serving during wartime was difficult enough. Having four meant living with the uncertainty of whether each would return home.

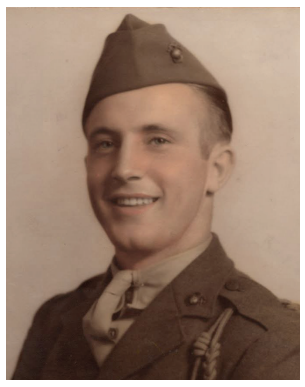

There were no guarantees, only hope, faith and the knowledge that their sons were doing what they believed was right.

Howard, the second oldest, was the first to answer the call, joining the Marine Corps in January 1942, shortly after America entered World War II. Warren, the oldest brother, followed six months later, entering the Army Air Forces.

In June 1943, Gene joined the Army at just 18 years old, shortly after graduating from Barlow High School. Serving in the Army Medical Corps, he helped care for wounded soldiers whose lives had been forever changed by war.

The youngest brother, Malcolm, a graduate of Wickliffe High School, entered the Navy in May 1944, completing an extraordinary chapter in the family's history. Four sons were now serving in four different branches of the military.

While their duties differed, their sacrifices were shared. Each gave up time with loved ones, the comforts of home and the security of everyday life to serve a nation at war.

Back in Ballard County, their parents carried a sacrifice of their own. Every letter brought hope, while every passing day without news meant more uncertainty.

Gene would later make the military his career, serving through the Korean and Vietnam wars. Malcolm's Navy service took him across the United States and overseas, where he also assisted with postwar efforts.

When World War II ended, the Stewart family received a blessing many American families were denied. All four brothers returned home without injury.

Their story is about more than four men wearing different uniforms. It represents the courage of a generation willing to put country before self and the families who quietly carried the burden of their service.

Today, the Stewart brothers remain part of Ballard County's proud military heritage. Their names deserve to be remembered, not simply because four brothers served, but because each answered when his country needed him.

Four brothers served. One family sacrificed. And generations later, their legacy of courage, honor and devotion to country remains worthy of our deepest gratitude.

Six Brothers, One Remarkable Legacy

Carlisle County, KY.- O'Neill family's military history extends beyond six brothers to cousins and relatives who also answered the call to serve

For the O'Neill family, military service is more than a chapter in their family history. It is a legacy of sacrifice, responsibility and commitment that has shaped generations.

Six brothers, all from the same family, answered the call to serve their country. John, Mike and George O'Neill served in the United States Navy, while Owen, Tom and Walter O'Neill served in the United States Army.

Having six brothers serve in the military is remarkable on its own, but the family's history of service does not end there.

Walter's nephews, Jimmy, Larry and Pat O'Neill, who are Brian's cousins, also served in the military, along with Gerald Owens, Walter's brother-in-law, and Tommy Steinbeck, the husband of Walter's niece. Together, the 11 men represent a family whose connections to military service reach well beyond one generation.

For Brian O'Neill, the son of Army veteran Walter O'Neill, that family history is something he carries with tremendous pride.

"Having six men (my dad and his five brothers) in my family serve in the military fills me with pride and gratitude," Brian said. "Their example has taught us the importance of service, sacrifice, responsibility, and looking out for one another."

Those lessons, he explained, were not limited to military service. They became part of the way the family lived, treated others and faced everyday responsibilities.

"Over the years, those values have become part of how our family approaches everyday life: we try to be dependable, support each other, and contribute to something bigger than ourselves," Brian said.

While the family's military history includes several men who wore the uniform, Brian's greatest lessons about service have also come from watching his father, Walter, and the example he continues to set.

"My dad has taught me that integrity shows most clearly in the way you treat people and follow through on your responsibilities," Brian said. "He leads by example—working hard, staying humble, and putting family first."

For Brian, those qualities have carried forward into the next generation, influencing how family members support one another and approach their own responsibilities.

"I see those same qualities reflected in our family today in how we support one another, keep our commitments, and try to do the right thing even when it's difficult," he said.

Although Brian did not serve in the military himself, the example set by his father and other family members helped him understand that service can take many forms.

"Even though I didn't serve myself, I have learned no matter what occupation you choose you can serve others," Brian said.

It is a lesson that speaks to the lasting influence of the family's veterans. Their military service may be what brings their names together, but the values they passed along continue to reach beyond the uniform.

As communities recognize veterans for their service and sacrifice, the O'Neil family offers a reminder that the impact of military service does not end when a uniform is put away. It can be seen in the children raised, the examples set and the values carried into future generations.

Six brothers began an extraordinary chapter in their family's history. With five additional relatives who also served, that chapter grew into a legacy of 11 veterans.

For Brian and the O'Neil family, it is a legacy measured not only by military service, but by the character of the men who served and the lessons they continue to pass along.

NCAA elevates Elite Scholar-Athlete program with year-round recognition, new national awards

INDIANAPOLIS — Celebrating academic and athletic excellence, expanded program will culminate in the selection of 1 man and 1 woman as NCAA Elite Scholar-Athletes of the Year

The NCAA is expanding its Elite Scholar-Athlete program to provide year-round recognition of the nation's most accomplished student-athletes, introducing new seasonal honors and the Elite Scholar-Athlete of the Year Award.

The enhanced program builds on the NCAA Elite Scholar-Athlete Award, presented at each NCAA championship finals site across Divisions I, II and III. The expanded recognition will elevate the achievements of these exceptional student-athletes beyond the championship stage, creating opportunities throughout the year to celebrate their academic success, athletic excellence, leadership and contributions to their communities.

For the first time, the NCAA will choose a man and a woman each season from among the Elite Scholar-Athlete Award fall, winter and spring championship winners. Those six seasonal honorees will then be considered for the NCAA Elite Scholar-Athlete of the Year Award, with one man and one woman announced as the inaugural national winners in summer 2027.

"The Elite Scholar-Athlete program represents the very best of the college sports experience," NCAA President Charlie Baker said. "These remarkable student-athletes are excelling academically, competing at the highest level of their sport and making meaningful contributions to those around them. By expanding this program, we're creating more opportunities to celebrate their success, share their stories and demonstrate how college sports prepare young people for success long after graduation."

The Elite Scholar-Athlete Award recognizes student-athletes with the highest cumulative grade-point average among eligible competitors at each NCAA championship finals site.

Recipients of the seasonal NCAA Fall, Winter and Spring Elite Scholar-Athlete Awards and the annual honors will be selected by a cross-divisional group of student-athletes representing the Division I Student-Athlete Advocacy Committee and Division II and III Student-Athlete Advisory Committees, with support from NCAA staff. This approach ensures student-athlete voices play a central role in recognizing their peers.

A key component of the expanded program is a greater investment in storytelling that extends recognition well beyond the presentation of an award. Through enhanced features, digital content and social media storytelling, the NCAA will spotlight the personal journeys, academic pursuits, leadership experiences and community contributions of Elite Scholar-Athletes throughout the year.

The NCAA will engage additional creative resources to help produce compelling content that brings these stories to life, providing greater national exposure for honorees while creating opportunities for schools and conferences to celebrate at the local level.

This expanded approach reinforces the NCAA's commitment to showcasing the transformative value of college sports.

Modern gun deer season to open Nov. 14

Staff Report

FRANKFORT — Modern gun deer hunting season opens Saturday, Nov. 14 and runs through Sunday, Nov. 29. Deer hunters have been afield since September with the opening of archery and crossbow seasons, but these 16 days comprise Kentucky's biggest hunting season annually.

Boasting strong deer populations across the state, Kentucky offers many hunting opportunities for new and experienced hunters to provide a sustainable source of lean protein for the table or for food banks. Hunters reported harvesting more than 145,000 deer last year, down slightly from nearly 150,000 in 2024-2025, with modern gun season accounting for the most deer harvested annually.

"The opening weekend of modern firearms deer season is one of the most anticipated times of the year for many hunters across Kentucky," said Ben Robinson, director of the Wildlife Division for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "The 2026 calendar has the season opening later than normal but we still anticipate a strong harvest statewide."

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife offers a wealth of resources to assist new and experienced hunters alike. Learn about public lands available for hunting, season dates, licenses needed and more by going online to fw.ky.gov and searching under the keywords, "Deer Hunting." View the 2026-2027 Fall Hunting and Trapping Guide online and download or print the guide as a resource to use in the field.

Following are tips for making the most of a trip afield.

Licenses and Permits

Hunting licenses and permits may be purchased online at Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's website (fw.ky.gov) and at authorized license agents throughout the state. Licenses are available for residents and non-residents, youth and senior/disabled. A statewide or youth deer permit is also required for all license types. For season dates, detailed license requirements and other hunting regulations, visit the Deer Hunting section of the department's website or view and download the 2026-2027 Fall Hunting and Trapping Guide.

Harvest Limits

Kentucky is divided into four deer zones, based predominantly on the deer density of the counties in each region. Each zone has different method of take restrictions and harvest limits for antlerless deer, however a hunter may take only one buck a year in the state, regardless of zone. Consult the 2026-2027 hunting guide for more information on the zone being hunted.

Harvest More Does

Hunters are encouraged to harvest more does this season, particularly in Zone 1 and 2 counties, to help improve overall herd health. A hunter may harvest an unlimited number of antlerless deer in Zone 1 using the statewide permit and additional deer permits. A hunter may harvest up to four antlerless deer in Zone 2.

Adequate doe harvests are critical for maintaining balanced, healthy deer populations. A balanced buck-to-doe ratio means a more intense rut chasing bucks that are more likely to reach their potential. Fawns are born in a more concentrated window improving recruitment. A balanced deer population helps reduce over-browsing, agricultural issues, and keeps roadways safer.

Harvest Reporting

Immediately upon recovery of a harvested deer, a hunter must fill out a harvest log consisting of game species, sex, county and date on the back of the hunting license or elsewhere and kept in their possession. Before midnight, each harvest must be reported to Kentucky Fish and Wildlife, even if the hunter is license exempt. Hunters can report their harvest by calling the department's telecheck number at 1-800-245-4263, or by using the My Profile portal at fw.ky.gov.

Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD)

Special restrictions apply to deer harvested in the CWD Surveillance Zone. Ballard, Breckinridge, Calloway, Carlisle, Casey, Fulton, Graves, Hardin, Henderson, Hickman, Laurel, Lincoln, Marshall, McCracken, McCreary, Meade, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Russell, Union, Wayne, Webster and Whitley counties are under carcass transportation and baiting restrictions in an effort to monitor and contain CWD. Hunters in Henderson, McCreary, Pulaski and Wayne counties also must take their harvested deer to a staffed check station or use a CWD Sample Drop-Off Site the first three days of modern gun season, Nov. 14-16.

Deer hunters outside the CWD Surveillance Zone can aid Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's monitoring efforts by donating the heads of legally harvested and telechecked deer for free testing and aging through the voluntary CWD Sample Drop-Off Sites or CWD Sample Mail-In Kits.

Hunter Education

Valid proof of hunter education certification is required for hunters born in 1975 or later. For new hunters without hunter education certification, a free one-year exemption permit is available. This permit allows a person to hunt as long as they are accompanied in the field by an adult who is hunter education-certified or born before 1975. Learn more on the department's Hunter Education webpage.

Kentucky Deer & Elk App

Introduced to Kentucky's deer and elk hunters last year, the Kentucky Deer & Elk App allows users to see public land property boundaries, locate local processors and taxidermists, keep a digital copy of their license and get more information about the county they are hunting. This app is available for free download from the Apple App and Google Play stores.

Shoot for Samples

Until Jan. 18, 2027, every hunter who submits samples for CWD testing through a CWD Sample Drop-off Site or through a CWD Sample Mail-in Kit will be entered into the Shoot for Samples Giveaway. Hunters can enter the giveaway as many times as the bag limits allow. Prizes range from gift cards to gear thanks to the following sponsors – Copperhead Guns and Range, FirstChoice Firearms, and the Kentucky Chapter of Backcountry Hunters & Anglers.

Venison Donation Services

Kentucky Hunters for the Hungry and Boone Brothers are excellent options for hunters who want to contribute to conservation and harvest additional does, but don't need the meat themselves. Both organizations process and distribute venison to people in need in the communities where the deer were harvested.

Fight Poaching

Suspected illegal activity may be anonymously reported to Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Law Enforcement by using the "KFWLaw" smartphone app available for free download from the Apple App and Google Play stores. Tips can also be submitted by texting the keyword "KFWLaw" along with a message to 847411 (tip 411) or by calling 800-25-ALERT.

More information on any of these subjects may be found by visiting the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife website (fw.ky.gov). For questions, contact the department's Information Center at 800-858-1549, or atinfo.center@ky.gov, weekdays 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. (ET), except holidays.

VICTORIOUS Living ...in a troubled world

Division has one ending - A Divided House

By Teresa LeNeave
leneave2@comcast.net

President Lincoln is famous for proclaiming, "United we stand – Divided we fall", but it certainly is not original with Lincoln. Aesop, a Greek storyteller who lived during the 6th century B.C. wrote a fable, "The Four Oxen and the Lion". In it, the last line of the fable reads, "united we stand, divided we fall". Jesus Christ said the same thing: "Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and every city or house divided against itself will not stand" Matthew 12:25. The gospel of Mark states it yet another way, "And if a house is divided against itself, that house cannot stand" Mark 3:25.

Aesop's story goes like this: "A lion used to prowl about a field in which four oxen used to dwell. Many a time he tried to attack them; but whenever he came near, they turned their tails to warn another, so that whichever way he approached them he was met by the horns of one of them. At last, however, they fell a-quarrelling among themselves, and each went off to pasture alone in the separate corner of the field. Then the Lion attacked them one by one and soon made an end of all four. United we stand. Divided we fall." (The Four Oxen and the Lion; Fables of Aesop.com).

The statement's meaning is undisputable. Everyone knows it is truth so why is it that there is still so much division? Is it not plain, "division will end in a fall? In destruction," just like Jesus said.

When Jesus made this statement, He had just healed a man possessed by the devil and the people were amazed by His power to heal and restore. In the context of the story, He was speaking directly to the Pharisees who had made the statement that He was only able to cast out devils "by Beelzebub (Satan) the prince of the devils". Jesus took this opportunity to explain that he could not possibly be casting out devils by the power of the devil because that is "a house divided against itself, which cannot possibly stand".

That truth still applies today and is applicable to the world we find ourselves living in. A house divided cannot stand. Does anyone agree on much of anything anymore?

Jesus goes on to explain, both in Matthew and in Mark, that any kingdom divided against itself will be destroyed, and any house divided against itself cannot stand. To put that on a level we relate to just think about a marriage; a school system; a country; a civic organization or a church. Most of us have been in a situation that proves a house divided against itself will be destroyed. It's the age-old trick: divide and conquer. A house, or a kingdom, that fights against itself cannot prosper nor will it have the strength to overcome the struggles and battles it goes through.

A house divided is imposing self-inflicting wounds. The Pharisees were attacking their own house (Jesus). Both, Jesus and the Pharisees, were warriors in a battle for good and evil, but because Jesus didn't follow the rules the Pharisees thought needed to be followed, they condemned him.

As Christians, we must not be divided. But that leads us to ask who is right? There has to be only one "truth".

Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth and the life – no man comes to the Father but by me". Clearly, truth must have a marker; a standard to attain to. Can we honestly believe there are dozens of markers and hitting any one of them is okay? Jesus didn't think so. He said He is the Truth.

Honestly, I believe that is the root of our shaking world. Multitudes of young people are taught that their truth is what is truth to them. And, if Christians can't agree on what "truth is", then how can we expect the world to understand? If we stand united on what the Bible says, and if we are not divided in our beliefs as the body of Christ, we will be much stronger in a world that is wallowing in anger and misunderstanding toward each other.

I believe it is time for Christians to re-examine what is dividing us.

Outdoor Truths

By Gary Miller
Outdoortruths.org

There's a lot of packing when you take a hunting trip that lasts several days. And the weather report might be the most important factor when deciding what to take. As I began to pack for this last trip, I really just went through the motions. I had made this trip so many times, I had packing down to a fine art. Several weeks before my trip, I begin making the list of everything I need to bring. A few days before I leave, I begin gathering it all together in a few places. I like this approach because I'm not rushing just hours before I leave. This year was no different. I did what I always do, except I neglected to check the weather until I had everything gathered up. Then things changed. I found out it was going to be unseasonably warm, and it was going to rain most of my time there. Now my mind begins to race and reorganize. What I had planned for, and prepared for, now had to be changed- or at least thought out one more time. I decided that my tree stand needed to be replaced with a ground blind and my cold weather gear needed to be replaced with a rain suit and plenty of extra clothes that I might need to stay dry. So, I quickly adapted, made the trip, and was glad I made my last-minute changes. I even arrowed a nice buck on the last day out of my ground blind. I did the Clint Eastwood thing. I adapted, improvised, and overcame.

If there is one characteristic that marks successful people, it is the ability to adapt. Rarely do things go as planned. And if they do go as planned now, there will come a time when those same plans will lead to a different outcome. I mean while you and I may not want to change our ways, a changing world will demand it if we are to keep up. Or if we are to fulfill our purpose. As Christians, we are to be salt and light to the world we find ourselves in. I know this may cause a rub, but I want to remind you that striving to change our world is honorable and worthwhile. But don't forget that our true call is to adapt. It is to add our salt and light to any environment we find ourselves in. And when we understand that we can make all the plans we want without being afraid to change them. Because adapting isn't a change of plans. Adapting is part of the plan.

Appreciating and honoring our nation's Veterans

By William F Holland Jr.
billyhollandministries.com

This is the official week when we honor and remember our veterans from all wars, though we honor their service and sacrifices every day of the year. The current number of living veterans is approximately 17 million according to various Federal data sources, and we sincerely say, thank you. Veterans Day is not the same as Memorial Day, as this day of honor is a time to remember those who literally gave their lives for our country, particularly in combat or from wounds sustained in battle. Veterans Day, originally called Armistice Day, marked the end of WW1. In 1954, the title was changed to Veterans Day, and recognizes all those who have served in war or peace, living or deceased, to show appreciation for their military service.

When we think about those who have served our nation, we realize that many men and women have paid a great price trying to defend and protect us, and we are truly grateful. We can also look around and see many wounded warriors who are forced to live with physical disabilities along with serious psychological problems resulting from what they have gone through. Though we might not be aware of the severity of this situation, there is an ongoing phenomenon regarding the high rate of suicide among U.S. military veterans. According to a report published by the United States Department of Veterans Affairs in 2016, which analyzed 55 million individual cases from 1974 to 2014, along with more recent data, it tragically confirmed that an average of 17 veterans commit suicide each day. In May 2019, President Trump signed an executive order for an initiative to counter this horrible reality. The program aims to equip state and local governments with the resources necessary to identify and intervene in scenarios where veterans may be at risk. Included within the record $80 billion for veteran health services is $10 billion allocated to mental health services.

There is a story about a young man named Josh who suffered a traumatic brain injury in Iraq, which left him with extreme hopelessness and depression. He had been deployed Southwest of Baghdad, where, during an attack, a mortar exploded 10 feet away from him, leaving him severely wounded and with a one-way ticket home. Six months later, on one particular winter evening, he was really having a hard time trying to fight the shadows of fear and sadness. His Ka-Bar knife was lying on the table beside his computer, where he had just written a letter trying to explain his torment. He stepped outside to sit on the cold and wet cement steps, just wanting to end it all.

He remembers promising himself that tonight I will, as he took another drag from his cigarette. Staring out into the darkness, he noticed something moving and soon discovered it was a kitten that was slowly walking toward him. It was soaking wet but friendly, and obviously, being so skinny, it was hungry. It was a tom with black and white patches, and when Josh reached out to pet him, the mysterious visitor leaned into his touch and started to purr. This emotional connection with another living being triggered something deep within Josh's heart as he felt hot tears running down his face in the cold drizzle. The kitten did not show fear but just kept staring at him with beautiful green eyes. In fact, Josh says this innocent creature seemed to understand how desperately I needed a friend at that very moment.

Josh carried his unexpected guest inside, dried him off, and gave him some food. His plan to end it all had been distracted. Holding the kitten close, Josh considered he might not be able to deal with his own problems, but decided that he could try to help this little fellow with his. Josh named him Scout, and on bad days, Scout would curl up in Josh's lap and shower him with love that brought comfort and peace. Over the next few weeks, the bond they developed inspired Josh to request help for his depression, and eventually, he grew stronger in his faith and confidence. It's not a stretch of the imagination that Scout helped save his life, as Josh is now married and his wife just gave birth to a baby girl. Of course, Scout still loves to sleep in Josh's lap. If you are a veteran and struggling with PTSD, counselors are available at 1-800-273-8255. "I sought the Lord, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears" Psalm 34:4.

IF GOD WILLS

Bro. Brandon G. Bramlett
Bandana Baptist Church

He didn't receive a miracle, but his friend did. His friend was delivered from death, but he wasn't. The Bible says that the suffering experienced by the disciples James and Peter ended quite differently. James was martyred by Herod, but Peter was miraculously freed from prison by a heavenly angel (Acts 12:1-19). Considering that there wasn't a hair's difference between them, why was James allowed to die while Peter was granted freedom?

Because sometimes God wills to deliver His people and sometimes He doesn't. God did not love Peter more than James. Peter had not prayed more fervently or with more faith than his colleague. Peter was not a better follower of Jesus than James. It was simply the sovereign will of God to grant Peter deliverance while withholding it from James.

God may also deliver you from your suffering and trials, or He may allow them to persist. The sun of His providence may dry up the clouds of trouble, or it might hide behind them for a torrential season. You can petition the Lord to end your afflictions (cf. Psalm 13:1), and He may will them to cease today or to last for a thousand tomorrows. God may allow you to keep your thorn in the flesh, or He may gracefully remove it (2 Cor. 12:7-10). God may deliver you from the fiery furnace, or He may deliver you over to fiery afflictions such as those endured by Job (Job 1:6-22; Dan. 3:24-27).

You cannot know what the sovereign will of the Lord is. He has written a novel for your life that only He may read. As Moses said, "The secret things belong to the LORD our God" (Deut. 29:29). However, you can be certain that whatever God wills for His children is good. Paul declared, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose" (Romans 8:28; cf. Ezra 8:22).

Jane Borthwick (1813—1897) captured the spirit of submission to God's will that ought to mark all saints in the opening line of her lesser-known hymn, My Jesus, as Thou Wilt:

"My Jesus, as Thou wilt:

O may Thy will be mine!

Into Thy hand of love

I would my all resign.

Through sorrow or thro' joy,

Conduct me as Thine own,

And help me still to say,

"My Lord, Thy will be done."

Salvation is as easy as
ABC

A - Admit to God That You Are A Sinner
For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God. - Romans 3:23 Repent, turn away from your sin. - Acts 3:19; 1 John 1:9

B - Believe Jesus Died for Your Sins
For God so loved the world that He gave His one and only son, that WHOEVER believes in Him shall not perish but have eternal life. - John 3:16

C - Confess Jesus is Lord
If you confess with your mouth "Jesus is Lord," and believe in your heart that God raised Him from the dead you will be saved. - Romans 10:9

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife provides recap of recently amended regulations

Staff Report

FRANKFORT — In accordance with KRS 150.025, the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is providing updated information about fish- and wildlife-related regulation amendments that have received final legislative review and are now in effect.

The following summarizes provisions that relate to or affect Kentucky Fish and Wildlife and the services the agency provides to hunters, anglers, boaters and the public at large. Changes include expanded deer and furbearer hunting opportunities, new rules for private pond owners, revised waterfowl and public-area hunting requirements, and updates to permits, boat registration and the commission s election process.

Chapter 1 – Fish

301 KAR 1:125 – Transportation of fish

This administrative regulation provides for control of the transportation of fish, fish eggs, live bait and other aquatic organisms into, within, and through the state to protect resident fish populations. The amendment addresses the requirements for transportation of fish, other than invasive species, from a private lake or pond to another location, except public waters, and conforms with recent statute changes from 2026 SB 39.

Effective Nov. 5, 2026.

301 KAR 1:410 – Taking of fish by nontraditional fishing methods

This administrative regulation establishes the procedures for taking sport and rough fish by nontraditional fishing methods. The amendment allows bona fide owners of private land in Kentucky, who are also residents of the commonwealth, to not be subject to any limits or restrictions established in this administrative regulation for daily limit, possession, size or method of take for the fish in the private landowner's private lake or pond when using non-traditional fishing methods. It also allows the bona fide landowner to extend these privileges in written or electronic form to any other person who has a valid fishing license and requires individuals utilizing extended privileges to provide written or electronic documentation from the bona fide landowner to game wardens upon request. The amendments conform with recent statute changes resulting from 2026 SB 39.

Effective Nov. 5, 2026.

Chapter 2 – Game

301 KAR 2:049 – Small game and furbearer hunting and trapping on public areas

This administrative regulation establishes exceptions to statewide small game and furbearer requirements on public areas and establishes rules for dog training areas on public areas. This amendment limits coyote and bobcat hunting to daytime only on specified federal lands and prohibits night hunting of beaver on all public lands. The amendment removed management restrictions on Otter Creek Outdoor Recreation Area as the area has been transferred from department ownership to Meade County. An agency amendment established dog training permit requirements for West Kentucky Wildlife Management Area (WMA) and rules for use of dog training areas at West Kentucky WMA. The amendment provides additional training opportunities while restricting unleashed dogs during specified periods associated with hunting use.

Effective Nov. 5, 2026.

301 KAR 2:172 – Deer hunting seasons, zones, and requirements

This administrative regulation establishes deer hunting seasons and zones, bag limits, legal methods of taking, and checking and recording requirements for deer hunting.

The amendment clarifies how the department manages deer by categorizing deer hunting zones and designates Zone 1 counties as overpopulated with deer. It also adds antlerless deer hunting opportunities in counties in deer zones 1-3. A new four-day, antlerless-only firearms season in Zone 1 counties will begin on the fourth Friday in September, and a new three-day, antlerless-only firearms season will begin on the second Saturday in January in counties in deer zones 1-3.

The amendment conforms with recent statute changes resulting from 2026 HB 142.

Effective Nov. 5, 2026.

301 KAR 2:176 – Wildlife causing damage and landowner designee process

This administrative regulation establishes the requirements for wildlife control tags, destruction tags, and the landowner designee appointment process. The amendment establishes a reporting mechanism for control tags and wildlife taken under KRS 150.170 authorization and clarifies the destruction tag issuance process for white-tailed deer damage. The amendment was necessary to comply with changes made to KRS 150 in 2026 HB 142.

Effective Nov. 5, 2026.

301 KAR 2:222 – Waterfowl hunting requirements on public lands

This administrative regulation establishes requirements for the taking of waterfowl within reasonable limits and within the frameworks established by 50 C.F.R. Parts 20 and 21.

The amendments include limiting public land hunters the ability to apply for or be assigned to a single hunting unit in Ballard County; removing primitive weapons restrictions for waterfowl hunters at Barren River Lake WMA; adding a 2 p.m. closure of hunting and limits entry before 4 a.m. daily on Blackford Oaks, Clear Creek and Harris-Dickerson WMAs; changing closed rest days at Sloughs WMA from Tuesday and Wednesday to Monday and Tuesday; requiring hunters utilizing Sloughs WMA to check into the area before hunting each day; removing the automatic online assignment of surrendered blinds at Boatwright WMA; changing the time when hunters shall apply for stand-by drawings at Boatwright WMA; and removing the forfeiture of hunting privileges and the ability to apply for limited-access hunts for anyone cited for violating state or federal law while participating in a limited access waterfowl hunt.

Effective Nov. 5, 2026.

301 KAR 2:228 – Sandhill crane hunting requirements

This administrative regulation establishes the requirements for taking sandhill cranes within reasonable limits and within the frameworks established by 50 C.F.R. Parts 20 and 21. The amendment changes the fee structure according to the formula utilized for all licenses and permits, including the application for a sandhill crane hunting permit. The new fee is prescribed in 301 KAR 5:022.

Effective Nov. 5, 2026.

301 KAR 2:251 – Hunting and trapping seasons and limits on furbearers

This regulation establishes seasons, bag limits, legal methods of take, and checking and recording requirements for hunting and trapping furbearers. The amendment increases the otter bag limit to 15 per season, only 10 of which can be taken from Zone 2. The bobcat limit increases to 10 per season, only three of which can be taken with a firearm. An agency amendment added provisions for the night hunting of beavers and bobcats to comply with statutory changes to KRS 150.360 arising from 2026 SB 39.

On private land, hunters may take a beaver after daylight hours from Dec. 1 through the last day of February, subject to the following conditions:

Night hunting is not allowed in any county or area where a deer or elk firearm season is open.

Hunters may use artificial light or other means designed to make wildlife visible at night. The light or device may not be connected to or cast from a mechanized vehicle.

Holders of a valid Mobility-Impaired Access Permit or Hunting Methods Exemption–Vehicle Permit may use a stationary vehicle as a hunting platform. They may also use lights or other means to make wildlife visible at night, as long as the equipment is not connected to the vehicle.

Legal equipment is limited to bows, crossbows, rimfire firearms of any caliber, straight-wall cartridge centerfire firearms with a .35 caliber or smaller that has a shell case no larger than 2.75 inches, or shotguns. Single-projectile shotgun shells are prohibited.

Hunters may take a bobcat after daylight hours from Dec. 1 through the last day of February, subject to the following conditions:

The bag limit is one bobcat taken after daylight hours.

Night hunting is not allowed in any county or area where a deer or elk firearm season is open.

Hunters may use artificial light or other means designed to make wildlife visible at night. The light or device may not be connected to or cast from a mechanized vehicle.

Holders of a valid Mobility-Impaired Access Permit or Hunting Methods Exemption–Vehicle Permit may use a stationary vehicle as a hunting platform. They may also use lights or other means to make wildlife visible at night, as long as the equipment is not connected to the vehicle.

On private land, legal equipment is limited to bows, crossbows, shotguns of 12 gauge or smaller, muzzleloaders of .54 caliber or smaller, and modern centerfire firearms.

On public land, legal equipment is limited to bows, crossbows and shotguns of 12 gauge or smaller. Single-projectile shotgun shells are prohibited.

Effective Nov. 5, 2026.

Chapter 5 – Licensing

301 KAR 5:210 – Special agency fundraising permits

This administrative regulation establishes the requirements for the issuance and use of Special Agency Fundraising Permits. The amendment changes the title of the regulation and titles of the special agency fundraising permits to further distinguish the difference between this program and special commission permits. It also incorporates provisions of 2026 HB 142, adding a provision under which hunters can obtain a free entry into the "Big Game Pursuit Permit" drawing by harvesting and telechecking at least four female deer from Zone 1 counties during the previous hunting season. To qualify, hunters must submit a time-stamped photo of each of those deer, up to four, and request entry into the drawing at fw.ky.gov.

Effective Nov. 5, 2026.

Chapter 6 – Water Patrol

301 KAR 6:070 – Motorboat dealer and manufacturer registration

This administrative regulation establishes the requirements for registering as a boat manufacturer and boat dealer. The amendment updates the material incorporated by reference to include reporting requirements that were already within the administrative regulation.

Effective Nov. 5, 2026.

Chapter 11 – Administrative

301 KAR 11:002 – Fish and Wildlife Commission member selection process

This administrative regulation outlines the process for individuals seeking nomination for the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission. The amendment conforms to changes made to state statutes governing the nomination and selection of commission members in 2026 HB 10 and 2026 SB 39.

Effective Nov. 5, 2026.

301 KAR 11:003 – Commission districts

This administrative regulation designates the counties within each district. The amendment changes the term "wildlife districts" to "commission districts" consistent with statutory language used in KRS 150 and KRS 235.

Effective Nov. 5, 2026.
