National Farm Show returns to Louisville for 60th year

LOUISVILLE -- "Every year is an important year for the National Farm Machinery Show as we bring the best in the field together," said David S. Beck, President and CEO of Kentucky Venues. "Reaching a milestone like the 60th anniversary is a powerful reminder of the show's legacy and a chance to honor the generations of farmers, innovators, and partners who helped build the show, while continuing to look ahead at what's next for the future of agriculture."

Over the four days, an international crowd will browse sold-out exhibit halls showcasing brands such as AGCO, Case IH, John Deere, Massey Ferguson, and New Holland. In addition to expansive equipment displays, attendees can take advantage of free daily educational seminars led by industry experts offering insight into the best farming and production practices. Visitors can also shop from nearly 50 retail vendors at the Gift & Craft Market selling clothes, keepsakes, souvenirs, and more.

In tandem with the farm show, the 57th Championship Tractor Pull sponsored by Farm Credit Mid-America returns to Freedom Hall for five dirt-slinging sessions. Now featuring new seats in the lower sections, the event runs nightly at 7 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, with an additional noon session on Saturday. Around 200 drivers from across the United States and Canada will compete during the high-octane, heart-pounding sessions. Tickets can be purchased online via Ticketmaster and at the on-site Ticket Office. Livestream and archival footage are available at stream.champull.org.

The National Farm Machinery Show is free and open to the public.

Fairmount woman takes trip of a lifetime

By Cathy Shouse

Carol Hepler, a longtime Fairmount resident, enjoys staying active. She studies her genealogy, makes jewelry to take to craft shows, and often spends time with family. Several months ago, her interests led her to travel to England.

Hepler, age 78, is originally from Pennsylvania. She and her late husband Chuck moved to the Grant County area in 1979 when he was working for Knox Glass in Gas City. In 2013, after 47 years of marriage, Chuck passed away.

Her mother was from England and came to the US to marry her father after WW II. She came over on the Queen Mary with other war brides. As a child, Hepler heard stories about her relatives in England and became intrigued. In recent years, she traced some of her family members who still live in Nottingham, England.

"One day I happened to click on my mother's family and pictures of my grandparents' wedding was there that somebody had posted," Hepler said. "I connected with a cousin. We texted maybe three times."

She and her cousin kept in touch over a period of two years and agreed to meet some day, when Hepler hoped to go to England. But they lost contact when the cousin stopped responding.

Hepler decided to go to Nottingham and look for her long lost relatives. "My daughter Ann arranged everything through a travel agent, which made it really nice," Hepler said. "We just wanted to do what we wanted to do, not take tours." Lacey, Hepler's granddaughter who is a Madison-Grant High school graduate, drove them to Miami, Florida to fly out.

"We flew nine hours to Heathrow. We had somebody meet us and they took us to the hotel," she said.

She thought she might be able to figure out where her relatives lived, but the area was much larger than she expected. They asked around, going to the archives building in Nottingham, and found the address where her mother was born, but couldn't locate the cousins.

"I did find my grandfather and uncle's graves," she said. "The lady who is head of the cemetery and does cremation helped. We met her and she took us around."

They spent the rest of their visit in London. They went to many sites in London, including the changing of the guard for King Charles, Buckingham Palace, among many famous places. "I was interested in the old buildings, the ones that survived the war. We went to Nottingham's Castle. We walked or went sightseeing on the double decker buses in London."

It was the rainy season and it rained every day but two. There were surprises, like paper eating utensils, and it was really clean but there were no trashcans.

"Everybody was so friendly," Hepler said, "even the homeless." They went into Westminster Abbey where Prince William and "Kate" Middleton were married.

She had a marvelous time although something was missing.

"I was just wanting to find relatives. It was my goal of doing it," she said. "If I get the chance to go again, I'd definitely go back."

Carol Hepler of Fairmount sorts through memorabilia from her trip to England.

VICTORIOUS Living ...in a troubled world

Seeing life through two pairs of eyes

Teresa LeNeave –
leneave2@comcast.net

I'm really bad about obsessing over the wrong things. I like schedules and structure. So, when things happen that upset my structure that's not a real comfortable place for me. Although my comfort zone is structure, as all of us know, that's not the norm because in this life something always changes. And, out of necessity, I adapt.

I know a lot of Martha's (not the name, but the thought process), and sometimes I see myself as a Martha. She obsessed over serving her guest while her sister, Mary, sit comfortably at Jesus feet, worshipping and listening.

In the Mary/Martha story, Jesus came to have dinner at Mary and Martha's house. It didn't transpire like Martha had planned and she was upset. (Luke 10:38-42). Jesus told Martha that Mary, her sister, had chosen wisely to not obsess over serving the guest. Believe me, I try to learn from Jesus' concept about not obsessing over the wrong thing. I try, but sometimes I still obsess over things that matter too much to me and not to anyone else.

When we stop obsessing over serving, we realize some things are just not worth obsessing over. At the time it seems very important, but in the scheme of things, it isn't. Jesus knew this. Knowing how I am, I can't help but appreciate the fact that He made this a big deal in the Martha/Mary story. As the story goes, Mary had a heart full of love and worship for Jesus and she didn't let things around her take away from that.

Martha, on the other hand, loved and worshiped Jesus just as much as Mary, but her heart was also focused on what she had to get done. Martha was the sister who was obsessed with what her guest thought about her. In her heart and mind, I know she thought it was important to focus on pleasing Jesus and making him feel comfortable in her home. I believe she thought she was doing a good thing. The sisters just saw life through two different pair of eyes. Remember it was Martha who fully trusted Jesus' love after Lazarus died! (John 11:20-28).

In the story, obviously, Mary saw the invisible while Martha focused on all the things that needed to be taken care of at the moment. Both sisters were doing their best to make an impact on Jesus and their other guest. And, both were doing important things. We need Mary's and we need Martha's. But most of all, whenever and wherever we find ourselves, remembering to stress a little less and relax a little more might be the key to all the chaos in the world.

I am reminded of 1 Timothy 6:11, "... Follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness." We can care too much about what people think of us and not enough of what God thinks. God wants balance in our lives so we love, serve and respect both Him and other people. Could finding balance in our focus be the theme of the Mary/Martha story?

Believer's baptism or baptismal regeneration?

By Dr. Billy Holland

Believer's baptism and baptismal regeneration represent two distinct views on the role of water baptism in salvation. Believer's baptism holds that baptism is an outward, symbolic act of obedience performed "after" a person has consciously trusted in Jesus Christ and His blood for salvation. Conversely, baptismal regeneration teaches that baptism is the sacramental law where God creates spiritual rebirth, forgives sins, and initiates spiritual regeneration. While I tend to avoid writing about church doctrines due to disagreements, my ministry requires me to share my personal interpretations. I'm often asked about what washes away our sins, the water or the blood? There is power in His blood – not the water.

I share the gospel often, including in our local Detention Center on a regular basis. A place to teach and baptize is provided, and our team also serves communion to the new converts. This gives us an open opportunity to explain what it means to confess receiving Jesus as Lord and Savior. Sadly, not all Christians are united with church doctrines such as immersion versus sprinkling, infant baptism, and baptizing in the name of Jesus versus in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, but even more importantly, there are different opinions about what exactly happens when the person goes under the water.

Some churches, including Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox, Lutheran, Churches of Christ, and some Anglican and Episcopal churches, including the Mormons, and Jehovah's Witnesses, believe in what is called baptismal regeneration, which means a person is not cleansed from sin or spiritually transformed into a new creation in Christ until after they are baptized. Within these churches, baptism is referred to as a requirement that defines water as the only way to literally receive God's grace, which saves. Groups such as Baptist, Church of God, Assembly of God, Reformed Presbyterian, Non-Denominational, Evangelical, Anabaptists, Mennonites, Quakers, Puritans, and The Salvation Army, use the term "ordinance" meaning that baptism although an important act of obedience, is only a public testimony symbolizing God's power that has already forgiven and transformed the spirit's of those who called upon the name of the Lord to save them, according to John 3:16.

As we are immersed under the water, this displays the spiritual reality of how we died to ourselves, were buried with Christ, and in coming up out of the water, we are raised from the dead by the glorious power of God to walk holy and obey Him in everything as His child. An outward sign of an inward work. Since we have been united with him in his death, we are also raised to life as He was. Yes, we are forgiven and washed clean by the blood of Jesus, as the power of sin is broken, and our carnality was crucified with Christ. As no longer slaves to sin, the new Christian is declared righteous through Jesus, but still has the free will responsibility to demonstrate His holy nature and character. We should consider ourselves to be dead to the control of sin and to have faith in God for everything. Take a moment to read Romans chapter 6. In fact, as we develop a solemn, reverential fear and awareness of His presence, sin should literally make us nauseated as we realize how much our disobedience hurts Him. If our intentional sins do not cause brokenness, weeping, and deep sorrow, we have become spiritually numb, calloused, and deceived. However, with God's grace and mercy, our spiritual determination to deny our flesh and walk in sanctification can be rekindled by returning to our first love.

Baptism is not just a religious ritual. It's a deeply personal commitment to living the life this holy re-enactment is revealing. It represents death to sin, the burial of our old life, and the resurrection to a new life in Christ! We are confessing and professing that Jesus is our Lord, and the miracle of being born again. We receive the gift of God's love by declaring to the world that we are completely dedicated to loving and serving our Master. The believer's baptism is an open display and promise that we will fulfill our vow to never return to who we once were. We now promise to allow God to lead us, we have become a temple of the Holy Spirit and are filled with the marvelous light of His eternal truth. Jesus died and resurrected so that you could become a member of His everlasting kingdom of peace and joy. Will you respond to His voice today?

When Heaven quakes

By Brandon Bramlett
Pastor - Bandana Baptist Church

A traumatic earthquake in San Francisco deeply devastated the little boy, although he was oblivious to it. But he showed subtle signs of how shaken he was on the school's swingset. The lad's teachers observed that he would run for the swings during recess, and sway back and forth until it was time for school to resume. And when a teacher finally asked him why he bypassed the slides and merry go-round to swing alone, he sadly answered, "On the swing, I move like the earth. So, if there's another earthquake, I won't feel it."

Without realizing it, he diagnosed the knee-jerk reaction we often have when we endure troubles in our lives. When we go through a life-shaking storm—an earthquake-level tribulation that rattles our world—we tend to brace ourselves for the next one. We live anxiously and guarded, worried that if things start to get better, that can only mean they are about to get worse. We often find ourselves quaking before the ground does.

But the heartening truth of Scripture is that a much greater "quaking" takes place in heaven when we pray during times of trouble. As David said in Psalm 18, "In my distress I called upon the LORD; to my God I cried for help . . . Then the earth reeled and rocked; the foundations also of the mountains trembled and quaked, because he was angry. The LORD also thundered in the heavens, and the Most High uttered his voice, hailstones and coals of fire. He sent from on high, he took me; he drew me out of many waters" (Ps. 18:6a, 7, 13, 16; cf. Acts 4:31; James 5:16b).

When we send up a prayer for help during trials, the Lord treats it like a call for backup. At the sound of our requests, God rises like a mighty warrior from His throne, rattling the floor of heaven with His swift steps, and heaven's gates fling open wide just so the Lord can get to our side. When we pray in peril, God shouts across the heavens as though to say, "Out of My way, My child is in trouble!" When our prayers reach His ears, He leaves the throne-room of glory and enters the battlefield with us. He conducts a search-and-rescue mission when we petition Him for mercy in misery, and will even mobilize creation itself to provide us with reinforcements so we can survive the battle.

Every good father—upon hearing his child crying in danger—would drop everything, rush to his location, and push aside anything that stands in his way. Likewise, our heavenly Father rushes to our position, pushing aside all the glories of heaven and all the starry hosts of the heavens to come to our aid when we need Him. As James Rowe (1865-1933) wrote in the great hymn Love Lifted Me, "But the Master of the sea heard my despairing cry, from the waters lifted me—now safe am I."

Toby and Christi Siler have traveled and sang gospel music together since they were first married. In 2002, one sunny Sunday morning in September, their family doubled in size when we said "hello" to boy/girl twins, Jarrod and Jewel, who were destined to grow up "on the road". They continued to travel for several years following their arrival until God spoke to us that it was time for me to come off the road. When asked whether or not we would ever sing together again, Toby and Christi would respond that we hoped and prayed that God would allow us to travel again as a family. Someday. You know... when the kids were older. Eventually, Jarrod & Jewel started asking when the four of us would be going back on the road to minister as a family. And so began their adventure begin to start traveling again as "The Siler Family". They have had the privilege of ministering together all across the US, across the ocean in the Philippines, and even on the ocean during Gospel cruises.

How seniors can cultivate a new hobby

Retirement is often characterized as a carefree time in life when adults who spent years in the workforce get to enjoy the fruits of their labors. But upon retiring, many retirees find themselves fighting boredom. A recent study from Indeed found that, as of March 2022, 3.2 percent of workers who retired a year earlier had already reentered the workforce. No two retirees are the same, and a host of variables, boredom among them, likely compelled recently retired professionals to go back to work.

Retirees who like the freedom of not working but are confronting a good bit of boredom can consider these tips to cultivate a new hobby that can help them pass the time in a rewarding and engaging way.

- Identify new (or old) interests. Many retirees discover new passions in retirement, while others turn back the clock and revisit favorite hobbies from their youth. A good way to begin cultivating a new hobby is to jot down a list of activities you always found interesting but never had the time to learn or became too busy to fully invest in. Some seniors hit the links for the first time in retirement, while others return to school to study subjects they find interesting but did not engage with during their college years. The options are endless, and jotting down a list of new or old interests is a great way to get the ball rolling.

- Embrace new ways to engage a passion. Virtual resources like online courses and book clubs conducted over Zoom with fellow readers across the nation and possibly even the globe are a great way to cultivate a new hobby in retirement. Virtual resources can be especially beneficial for seniors with mobility issues.

- Consider locally based resources. Community parks departments and libraries may offer an array of free or affordable opportunities for seniors to engage with a new hobby. Parks departments may offer anything from cross country skiing tutorials to age-based hiking excursions, while libraries may offer weekly crafting sessions or wellness programs to local residents. In addition to providing fun ways to discover and cultivate a new hobby, programs offered through parks departments and local libraries are great ways to meet fellow retirees.

- Put your experience to use. Retirees with years in their field don't have to go back to work to make use of their professional expertise. Contact local youth organizations or outreach programs sponsored by churches, libraries or local law enforcement agencies and offer to share your expertise with young people. Such opportunities allow retirees to continue to engage with their professions and help a younger generation of aspiring professionals gain valuable insight into fields they're interested in.

There's no shortage of ways for seniors to overcome retirement boredom and cultivate rewarding hobbies.

Vietnam Veterans of America to hold veterans benefit luncheon Feb. 21st

Lawrence, Indiana — Vietnam Veterans of America Sammy L Davis Chapter 295 will host a luncheon for veterans and their families noon Saturday, February 21 in the veterans center 9450 East 59th Street, Lawrence, Indiana 46226 during which chapter leaders will present its highly regarded program explaining benefits available to veterans and their families through the Veterans Administration and other organizations. “The genesis of this presentation was our realization that we were doing a great job of helping veterans get the benefits they had earned but we were not doing a very good job of explaining the benefits their spouses and survivors were eligible for,” Dennis Smalling, president of VVA Chapter 295 and a certified service officer explained. “Since we’ve been doing these briefings we have helped many veterans and their families get the benefits they have earned,” Smalling continued. According to Smalling, their presentation has been getting state-wide and national attention. “This information is thoroughly researched and life-changing for some of our veterans and their families,” Smalling said. “We are trying to get this information out to as many people as we can in as many ways as we can” he continued. “We would like to give this presentation as often and in as many locations as possible,” Smalling continued. “Last year we were invited to give it at an event held at a Veterans of Foreign Wars chapter in South Bend and at the national convention for the Society of Certified Senior Advisors in Baltimore. “We are constantly seeking new opportunities and will respond to requests from and groups who would like to host us,” Smalling concluded. According to Smalling, VVA has partnered with the Indiana Chapter of the National Association of Insurance and Financial Advisors to post a video of the Veterans, Spouse and Survivor Benefits presentation on their you-tube channel so that interested parties unable to attend the quarterly programs in Lawrence are able to get the information at any time. There is no charge and all are welcome, including media.
