Grant County Sheriff's Office to increase patrols to target seatbelt enforcement

The Grant County Sheriff's Office, Gas City Police Department, Fairmount Police Department, and Van Buren Police Department is partnering with the Indiana Criminal Justice Institute (ICJI) to urge Hoosiers to buckle up as part of the national "Click It or Ticket" campaign, a high-visibility enforcement effort focused on increasing seatbelt use.

Beginning May 11 through May 31, 2026, officers will work overtime to ensure drivers and passengers are using their seatbelts and children are properly secured. The overtime patrols are funded by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) through ICJI's Comprehensive Highway Injury Reduction Program (CHIRP).

"Buckling up is one of the simplest and most effective ways to protect yourself and your loved ones on the road," said Douglas Huntsinger, executive director of the Indiana Criminal Justice Institute. "Seatbelts save lives every day, and every trip should begin with making sure everyone is secured before hitting the road."

Since 2021, Indiana has seen a steady decline in fatalities among passenger vehicle occupants not wearing seatbelts. Seatbelt usage among Hoosiers has also increased, reaching 94.1% in 2025 according to the Annual Seat Belt Usage Survey conducted by Purdue University Center for Road Safety in partnership with ICJI. This rate is above the national average of 91.2% usage in 2024.

"Too often, we see tragedies that could have been prevented with one simple click of a seatbelt," said Sheriff Del Garcia. "Buckling up isn't just the law. It's a responsibility that helps ensure you make it home safely."

Indiana law requires drivers and all passengers to buckle up. Children under age eight must be properly restrained in a federally approved child car seat or booster seat. Drivers can be cited for lack of seat belt use, but also for each unbuckled passenger under the age of 16.

Parents and caregivers are encouraged to make sure children are in the right car seat and that it is used correctly and properly installed. Resources can be found at

Two Marion High School students honored in statewide art competition

Two Marion High School students were selected as regional winners in a prestigious statewide art exhibition.

Madelynn Boogar, junior, and Gwynneth Hamilton, senior, were both honored for their drawings submitted to the Juried Exhibition of Student Art in conjunction with the Quadrennial International Violin Competition of Indianapolis, a unique showcase for the world's most gifted young violinists.

More than 11,000 students from across the state in grades 1 through 12 submitted work for this competition, which integrates the performing and visual arts. A panel of judges selected 150 regional winners. From those winners, 30 were selected as grand award winners (which are displayed online and will be exhibited during the International Violin Competition of Indianapolis in the fall). Since 1982, the International Violin Competition has been held every four years, when 40 of the world's brightest talents come to Indianapolis to perform some of the most beautiful music ever written before enthusiastic audiences. Musicians and music lovers from all parts of the world focus their attention on Indianapolis and the International

Violin Competition, regarded as the Western Hemisphere's "Olympics of the Violin."

In 1986, the visual art exhibition was added. The MHS students' selection as award winners this year is an outstanding honor! Their artwork can be viewed at the Marion Community Schools website, www.marion.k12.in.us.

VICTORIOUS Living ...in a troubled world

This one thing serves you will throughout life

Television (even cartoons) teach kids that it's funny to have an attitude. Movies teach kids it's okay to have an attitude. And, parents teach them it's okay to be disrespectful when a bad attitude is ignored. Then, we pretend we don't know why kids struggle with good attitudes.

When kids are toddlers, everything is cute. I know. I think everything my grandchildren do is cute. When they pout, I even think that is cute. I guess, kids have been pretty much the same since the beginning of time because the Bible has so much to say about honoring your mother, your father, and your elders. The Bible is very explicit, and to the point, when talking about honor. I don't think anyone could read what the Bible says about honoring parents and not understand it.

What does it mean to honor your father and mother ... to have a good attitude?

To honor your father and mother means to revere (respect), prize and value. Do we as adult revere, prize, and value our parents? Or, do we think they are adults and we have our own lives to live? ... Never forget your children watch what you do and will probably treat you just like you treat your parents.

Honor, to me, is something that stems from an inward attitude and it always values the position of the other.

Those who honor their parents are blessed according to Jeremiah 35:18-19. In Jeremiah, the blessing extended from generation to generation. I believe it still does today.

"Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right. Honor your father and mother which is the first commandment with a promise, so that it may be well with you, and that you may live long on the earth" (Ephesians 6:1-3).

In my opinion, we have to teach our children / grandchildren well, because this world is trying very hard to teach them wrong. When it really comes down to learning, kids learn from watching. What do they see in us? Do they hear me talk respectful? Do they see me be kind or hateful? What they see, they learn.

Why is it important to teach honor to children? One simple statement answers that question: Because it serves them well throughout life. After a child is mature and on their own, the ability to show honor and respect will serve them well in honoring authorities who are above them such as employer, teachers, pastors, even the President. Ask any school teacher how important honor and respect is. Ask any employer who their most valuable employees are. Honor trickles into every vein of your life and it leaks into the life of following generations.

I couldn't ask for anything better

By Gary Miller

About a month ago, I hunted this same area. I was able to take a big gobbler that morning. I had not been back since. So, I knew, after a month, I could go back and see if I could get another one of those toms to come to my call. It was a beautiful, crisp, and quiet morning. My set up turned out to be about textbook. Before I made my first call, a tom belted out a loud gobble over the small hill, about 150 yards away, and directly in front of my location. Just after that another tom began to belt his opening alarm, behind me, about 500 yards away. He started gobbling almost none stop. I was liking what I was hearing, and also liking my morning set up. But it got better. As day was breaking two more toms joined in the chorus. One just to the left of the one directly in front of me, and one to the right. I couldn't ask for anything better. Three competing in front of me and one behind me. I'm thinking, "Let the competition begin." That was what I was thinking, but that was not what I was feeling. I was feeling nothing. I mean my heart didn't race, I didn't imagine a trophy camera shot, nor did I fret about what bad scenario could happen. I just stayed calm, enjoyed the welcomed noise, and waited to see what might happen. Again, I did so without ever having the least amount of anxiety. Why? Because I had been here before. I knew that I had positioned myself as good as I could and there was no other move to make. I didn't overcall. I didn't sneeze or make any alarming noise. I did all I could do. Everything that would follow was out of my hands. So, why worry. Ah yes. Worry.

This is actually the posture I should be making in the more serious areas of my life. The posture that comes from being right in the middle of a situation that could turn out bad or good and yet remaining calm because I have done all that I can do. The rest is out of my hands. But the real, unexplainable calm, comes from knowing Whose hands my circumstances are in. God's. Again, this is the posture God's wants us to have instead of worry. Jesus put it this way. "Can any one of you by worrying add a single hour to your life?" And then He added. "But seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things will be given to you as well. His words to us are basically this. Just get in the right set up (seek first the Kingdom of God) and I (God) will handle everything else, and every possible scenario, in every possible situation or circumstance, that might come about in your life. We have one thing to do. He has the rest. So, don't worry.

What is more important than the return of Christ?

By Dr. Billy Holland

Henry Allan "Harry" Ironside was a Canadian-American Bible teacher, preacher, theologian, pastor, and author who pastored Moody Church in Chicago from 1929 to 1948. It is said that Harry Ironside was one of the most prolific Christian writers of the 20th Century and published more than 100 books, booklets, and pamphlets, many of which are still in print. He also wrote several hymns, including "Overshadowed," "His Grace Proclaim," and "The Wonder of His Love to Me." One editorial reviewer wrote in a 2005 republication that, "Ironside's commentaries are a Christian standard and have stood the test of time."

In his comments on Isaiah 57, Dr. Ironside shares this true account: "Years ago, before the First World War, Professor Stroeter, a well-known prophetic teacher in Germany, would travel through the country giving lectures, and using charts to explain the dispensations. His meetings attracted the attention of the German Emperor, Kaiser Wilhelm, who, despite his many idiosyncrasies, was quite a Bible student himself and would deliver sermons in the palace chapel on many occasions. One day, the emperor invited Professor Stroeter to his personal residence so that he could learn more about the information the professor had been teaching. The professor was escorted into the library and began to spread his charts out on a table, and as the emperor listened closely, Stroeter pointed out various prophetic stages that led up to the glorious Second Coming.

After a lengthy conversation, the emperor cautiously asked, "Are you saying that Christ is coming back literally, and when He returns, all the empires of the world are going to be destroyed, and He will set up His eternal kingdom upon their ruins?" Professor Stroeter said, "Exactly, your Majesty." The emperor backed away with a look of sadness and disappointment and said, "Oh no, I can't accept that! This would interfere with my plans!" What an honest but troubling admission from a man who professed to be a student and teacher of the Bible, and even more importantly, a personal disciple of Christ. There are indeed many interpretations and opinions about what the future may bring, but we can agree that there is coming a day when this earth will be cleansed and judged, and every knee will bow and know that Jesus is Lord and King of all.

We look around and notice that many are striving to build their dreams, but are these God's ideas? I know individuals who are making plans 10, 20, and even 30 years from now, and hope these are divine blueprints that God has drawn. Have you known or heard about those who had their lives all mapped out, but were suddenly taken out of this world unexpectedly? It's worth ensuring whose voice we are following, as the Bible declares that there is nothing more important than keeping our spiritual eyes and ears open to where God is leading us. "Many are the plans in a person's heart, but it is the Lord's purpose that prevails" Proverbs 19:21.

We might add Christ to our long list of things we are interested in, but if God's will is not at the top, we need to rearrange our list. Yes, we all have responsibilities, but ignoring God and not being prepared to meet Him will have serious consequences. Jesus used the term "birth pains" to describe the signs of His return. Like the agony of childbirth, these warnings will become more intense and frequent as the day draws nearer. Can you see them today? Beware of those who mock and say, "It's been 2000 years, so the Lord must not be coming back." Remember the wise virgins in Matthew chapter 25. It simply comes down to who we will trust.

How often do Christians stop and consider that when they made a vow to surrender their heart to God, their lives were no longer their own? We promised God and the world going forward, we will only follow His voice. So, I ask today: Is there anything in this world that would cause us to wish Christ would postpone His return? Of course, we want to see our family be saved, which is why it's so crucial to intercede and fast for their salvation.

What about you, dear friend, are things like enjoying your wealth, building a house, seeing the world, graduating college, getting married, having children, getting that promotion, retiring, or completing a project you've been working on, more exciting and important than the return of your Savior? Maybe instead of wondering about His return, we should live as if He never left.

Community Foundation of Grant County invites public ideas for Riverfront canvas murals

Marion, Ind. — The Community Foundation of Grant County is inviting the public to help shape the Riverfront Canvas Public Arts Initiative, a community-driven mural project that will transform the Grant County riverfront into a public art gallery celebrating local stories, people, and places.

Centered in downtown Marion's Arts District, the Riverfront Canvas will turn the Foundation's historic 100 South Washington Street building into a vibrant visual narrative of Grant County's identity. The initiative is guided by a five-member public art commission chaired by Marion Mayor Ronald Morrell Jr., with members Eric Marshall, Ron Mazellan, Courtney Middlesworth, and Keenan Davis.

Since its formation earlier this spring, the Commission has convened to develop both a project brief (See attached for details) and a community application process, outlining the themes, values, and goals that will guide the murals. Together, these tools ensure that public participation is central to shaping each stage of the project, from concept to creation.

"This project is about more than artwork on walls; it's about telling the story of who we are as a community," said Dawn Brown, President and CEO of the Community Foundation of Grant County. "We want every resident, student, business owner, and neighbor to see themselves reflected in these murals and to help shape what that story looks like."

The Foundation and its commission are currently seeking input from residents across Grant County, including students, educators, artists, business and nonprofit leaders, faith communities, lifelong residents, and newcomers. Idea submissions may highlight individuals, places, or moments that deserve visual celebration. Once community ideas are collected, the commission will review submissions and collaborate with local artists to bring selected concepts to life.

"This is an opportunity for the public to play an active role in how we celebrate our shared history and our growing future," said Mayor Ronald Morrell Jr. "By gathering voices from across the community, we're creating something that authentically reflects the spirit of Grant County."

To submit an idea, community members can complete the Riverfront Canvas Community Ideas application online.

Submissions may include short written descriptions, sketches, or visual references, so no artistic experience is required. Simply scan the QR code below or visit givetogrant.org to participate. Submissions are due on or before midnight, May 31, 2026. All mural-related questions must be submitted via email to Murals@GiveToGrant.org.

Indiana Conservation Officers hold memorial, awards ceremony

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Division of Law Enforcement held a ceremony on May 8, at the Indiana Government Center in Indianapolis to remember fallen conservation officers and recognize those who are currently serving for their achievements.

Indiana Conservation Officers are law enforcement officers for the DNR. The DNR Division of Law Enforcement is the oldest law enforcement agency in Indiana and has a total of 214 officers.

The ceremony started with a time of remembrance for fallen officers. The seven conservation officers who have died in the line of duty since the division's inception in 1911, listed with their end of watch date, are: Sgt. Ed Bollman, Feb. 13, 2018; F/Sgt. Karl E. Kelley, April 17, 1998; Officer Thomas Deniston, Oct. 16, 1990; Officer James D. Pitzer, Jan. 2, 1961; Officer Robert S. Perkins, May 27, 1958; and Wardens William J. Nattkemper and William J. Peare, who both died on April 27, 1926.

After the memorial ceremony, the division recognized current individual officers for their outstanding service.

District 10 Officer Tyler Brock, assigned to Porter County, was selected as the James D. Pitzer Indiana Conservation Officer of the Year. The award recognizes Brock as the top officer of 2025, selected from the 10 district officers of the year recipients.

The Pitzer award is named for James Pitzer, who was killed in the line of duty in Jay County. The recipient of the award demonstrates professional ethics, attitude, and service to the public while demonstrating dedication to the conservation of natural resources and the enforcement of laws affecting the department. The officer must also provide a positive influence, develop camaraderie within the ranks, and gain the confidence and respect of fellow officers.

Lt. Brent Bohbrink received the Director's Leadership Award for his work overseeing the DNR Division of Law Enforcement's statewide 24-hour dispatch center and the Turn In a Poacher (TIP) program.

District 9 Officer Steve Kinne was presented with the William J. Nattkemper Brotherhood Award. This award is named in remembrance of William J. Nattkemper who, along with William J. Peare, lost his life on April 27, 1926, on the Wabash River near Tecumseh. Officers L.B. Watson, John Pile, and A.R. Hill, who were witnesses to the incident, remained at the scene until the bodies of their fallen comrades were recovered. This award recognizes the commitment and inseparable bond of brotherhood displayed by those men that has become the hallmark of Indiana Conservation Officers.

Retired Officer Jeff Wells was presented with the Honorary Lt. Colonel Award, recognizing his significant lifetime contributions that have shaped the integrity and professionalism of the Division of Law Enforcement through his continued support and advocacy for the DNR.

District 2 Officer Erick Bolt was recognized by the National Association of State Boating Law Administrators (NASBLA) as the state's Boating Enforcement Officer of the Year for his leadership in boating education.

District 8 Officer Zach Howerton was presented with the 2025 Waterfowl Protection Officer of the Year award for his enforcement of waterfowl regulations and his related performance in public education and community interaction.

District 9 Officer Josh Thomas was selected as the National Turkey Federation Wildlife Officer of the Year. Considerations for this award include an officer's case involvement, public relations outreach, and service to the community.

District 8 Officer Rob Klakamp was selected as the International Wildlife Crimestoppers Game Warden of the Year for his demonstration of outstanding conservation law enforcement, excellence in response to TIP information, heroic service, and meaningful engagement with youth and outdoor communities.

Officers Matt Landis of District 5 and Kendrick Fuhrman and Kenny Tincher II of District 7 were honored with Life Saving Awards for their exceptional actions that saved lives.

Communications specialist Stephanie Hovious received the Dispatcher of the Year Award for her work in the Indiana Conservation Officers Central Dispatch Center.

William Haus received the 2025 Civilian Employee of the Year Award for his dedication, competence, and exceptional attention to detail in assisting the division carry out its mission and responsibilities.

Caring for Seniors

Safety and smarts necessary when exercising with arthritis

Physical activity is a vital component of a healthy lifestyle. While the recommendations for exercise may vary for each individual, general guidelines from public health agencies typically suggest most people should get around 30 minutes of moderate-intensity aerobic exercise per day.

People with arthritis may be hesitant to head to the gym or engage in home workouts because the instinct to rest is strong when joints feel stiff or painful. However, health care advocates note that movement is one of the most effective treatments for arthritis.

Recent data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says arthritis remains a leading cause of disability in 2026. Roughly one in four adults in the United States have been diagnosed with some form of arthritis. The Arthritis Foundation says exercise is not just a lifestyle choice, but an essential component of joint health. People who engage in physical activity report a 40 percent reduction in pain on average. Here is a prescription for safely navigating physical activity while managing arthritis.

• Emphasize

exercise that improves flexibility. The Better Health Channel says people with arthritis should focus on exercises that reduce stiffness and keep joints moving through their full range-of-motion. Examples include gentle neck rotations, shoulder rolls and finger stretches daily, especially in the morning during flare-ups.

• Incorporate low-impact aerobic movements. Cardiovascular exercises improve heart health and help with weight management, which is essential for people with arthritis. The Arthritis Foundation says losing just one pound of body weight can remove four pounds of pressure from the knees. Walking, cycling and water exercises are low-impact ways to get the cardio a body needs, says the Mayo Clinic.

• Make resistance training part of your routine. Building strong muscles can help protect the joints by acting as shock absorbers.

People can use bodyweight exercises like chair squats, resistance bands or light dumbbells to build muscle. The Arthritis Foundation recommends focusing on the muscles surrounding joints experiencing the most pain, such as quadriceps for knee arthritis or abdominals to protect the hips and spine.

• Assess pain. Experts suggest using something called the “two-hour rule” to determine if exercise added to or diminished arthritis pain. If joint pain is higher two hours after exercising, then it’s important to reduce the duration or intensity of exercise the next time. During a flare-up, do not stop moving entirely, but shift to gentle range-of-motion stretching only, suggests the Mayo Clinic.

Exercise can remain a key component of daily life, even for those with arthritis.

How to find time to be more physically active each day

Physical fitness is one of the keys to a long and healthy life. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention note that routine physical activity helps people maintain a healthy weight, reduces a person’s risk for chronic health problems like cardiovascular disease and type 2 diabetes, and strengthens bones and muscles, which can help aging adults overcome age-related reductions in muscle mass and strength and reduce their risk for falls.

People have much to gain from incorporating exercise into their daily routines. But many adults are not reaping those rewards, and studies indicate sedentary lifestyles are on the rise. A 2024 study published in the journal The Lancet Global Health noted that 31 percent of the world’s adult population was physically inactive in 2022, which marked a 5 percent increase since 2010. And a recent report from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and the United Health Foundation found that roughly one in five adults get no physical activity beyond their regular job.

The Heart Foundation notes lack of time is often cited as an excuse for not exercising, and that’s a legitimate hurdle for many professionals. Indeed, a 2026 report from Monster indicated that 73 percent of workers report regularly working more than 40 hours per week and 47 percent cite employer expectations or company culture as their top reasons for overworking. While professionals in such situations may find it challenging to overcome a lack of time to exercise, the following strategies may be just what people need to incorporate physical activity into their daily routines.

• Drive less.

Driving is undoubtedly convenient, particularly for people who feel they’re continuously pressed for time. But leaving the car behind and walking or cycling to run local errands is a simple and enjoyable way to incorporate physical activity into your daily routine. Parents can walk children to the bus stop or their school in lieu of driving. Adults also can try walking to a local coffee shop near their home or office in lieu of driving to get their morning cup of Joe.

• Break up workouts.

WHO guidelines recommend adults between the ages of 18 and 64 get at least 150 minutes of moderate-intensity physical activity or 75 minutes of vigorous physical activity each week. The WHO also recommends muscle-strengthening activities two or more days per week. That can seem daunting to adults pressed for time, but workouts can be broken up throughout the day. A pre-breakfast strength training session at home may only require 20 minutes, and that night adults can go for a jog or a brisk walk around their neighborhood.

• Workout while watching television.

Adults who like to unwind at the end of the day by watching their favorite television shows can use that time to exercise without giving up their entertainment. Invest in a treadmill or elliptical and turn television time into a time to break a sweat as well. Watching a 30-minute episode of a favorite TV show while on a treadmill or elliptical can help adults meet WHO physical activity guidelines without requiring them to sacrifice their preferred way to unwind.

These strategies can help time-pressed adults incorporate more physical activity into their daily routines and lay a foundation for a long and healthy life.

Nominations open for 2027 Farm Bureau Farm Dog of the Year Contest

Farmers are invited to submit nominations for the 2027 Farm Bureau Farm Dog of the Year contest, which comes with cash prizes and bragging rights. This is the ninth year of the contest, supported by Nestlé Purina PetCare, which celebrates farm dogs and the many ways they support farmers and ranchers.

The grand prize winner – Farm Bureau Farm Dog of the Year – will win a year's worth of Purina Pro Plan dog food and $5,000 in prize money. The winner will be recognized at a Farm Dog of the Year award ceremony at the American Farm Bureau Convention in Charlotte, North Carolina, in January 2027.

The 2027 Farm Dog of the Year will also be featured in a professionally produced video. The profile of 2026 Farm Dog of the Year Max can be viewed here. Since its inception, the contest has provided a link to the farm for pet-loving Americans who vote for their favorite farm dog online.

“Farm dogs are often important partners in our daily work as well as wonderful companions for farm families,” said AFBF President Zippy Duvall. “As we saw with our 2026 winner, Max, these loyal companions go above and beyond to look after both the land and the farm families they work alongside.”

Rounding up livestock, chasing off predators, fetching gates, fetching or carrying tools/buckets and greeting visitors are among the many tasks performed by farm dogs.

Scientific research from a collaboration between Mayo Clinic and Purina reveals that interacting with pets can provide health benefits. For example, spending just 20 minutes with a dog increased a hormone that helps moderate stress. This was also associated with a decrease in heart rate and an increase in a self-reported sense of well-being.

“We are honored to continue supporting the hard-working, devoted farm dogs featured in the American Farm Bureau's Farm Dog of the Year contest,” said Jack Scott, vice president of sustainable sourcing at Purina. “Purina proudly uses nutritious ingredients sourced from American farms to make our pet food, and we remain committed to supporting American farmers who have fed generations of people and pets.”

Desired attributes for the Farm Dog of the Year include helpfulness to the farmer and his/her family, playfulness and obedience.

Farm dog owners must be Farm Bureau members to enter their dogs in the competition. Not yet a Farm Bureau member but interested in nominating your farm dog? Visit fb.org/join to learn about becoming a member.

Eligibility guidelines and submission requirements are available here. Farm Dog of the Year nominations, which include written responses to questions, at least one still photo and a video clip (optional), must be received by July 11, 2026, for consideration. The Farm Bureau Farm Dog of the Year contest is sponsored by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The People's Choice Pup, a popular social media element of the Farm Dog of the Year competition, returns for 2027. Profiles of several dogs nominated for the contest will be shared beginning in September, with the public invited to vote. Bragging rights and a $2,500 cash prize from Purina will be awarded to the People's Choice Pup.

Illinois Department of Agriculture announces specialty crop block grant funding

Illinois to prioritize projects that benefit beginning farmers, nutrition and health outcomes, sustainability and conservation

SPRINGFIELD, IL – The Illinois Department of Agriculture (IDOA) will distribute more than $796,000 over the next three years to expand access to fresh, locally grown produce and boost the competitiveness of the state’s specialty crop industry. This funding is made possible through the USDA Specialty Crop Block Grant Program. An application for grant funding will be available this week on the Illinois Department of Agriculture website and must be returned to the Department by noon on June 5, 2026. The program will run from September 30, 2026 through September 29, 2029.

Eligible applicants include non-profit organizations, local and government entities, trade and commodity associations, public and private colleges/universities. Illinois funding priorities include projects that benefit beginning farmers and first-time specialty crop producers (a beginning farmer is an individual or entity that has not operated a farm or ranch for more than 10 years and substantially participates in the operation), projects with educational programming to enhance knowledge and consumption of specialty crops, projects connecting specialty crops with nutrition and health outcomes, including food safety, projects that prioritize sustainability and conservation.

“These grant funds help ensure that Illinois producers—especially small, beginning, and historically underserved farmers—have the opportunity to grow and succeed,” said Jerry Costello II, Director of the Illinois Department of Agriculture. “Our goal is to strengthen local food systems, expand access to fresh, healthy products, and drive innovation in Illinois’ specialty crop industry.”

To encourage further expansion of this industry, and to take full advantage of the allocated

federal funds, the Department invites the development of projects pertaining to the following issues affecting the specialty crop industry:

- Enhancing food safety.
- Improving the capacity of all entities in the specialty crop distribution chain to comply with the requirements of the Food Safety Modernization Act, for example, by developing "Good Agricultural Practices," "Good Handling Practices," "Good Manufacturing Practices," and in cost-share arrangements for funding audits of such systems for small farmers, packers and processors.

Investing in specialty crop research, including research to focus on conservation and environmental outcomes.

Supporting the growth of organic specialty crops.

Developing new and improved seed varieties and specialty crops.

Improving pest and disease control.

Increasing child and adult nutrition knowledge and consumption of specialty crops.

Improving efficiency and reducing costs of distribution systems.

Projects that benefit a particular commercial product or provide a profit to a single organization, institution, or individual are ineligible. Farmers' markets, roadside stands and community-sponsored agriculture programs should consider submitting proposals to the USDA's Farmers' Market and Local Food Promotion Program.

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service defines specialty crops as "fruits, vegetables, tree nuts, dried fruits and horticulture and nursery crops (including floriculture)." There are more than 3,200 producers devoting more than 83,000 acres of Illinois farmland to specialty crops production, creating nearly $500 million in annual sales for Illinois farmers. Nationally, Illinois ranks first for its pumpkin and horseradish production and ranks in the top ten for the production of asparagus, cauliflower, fresh-cut herbs, peas, mustard greens and lima beans. Additional information about the program can be found online at the Department's website and/or by contacting AGR.ISCBG@illinois.gov

Forest Service and other federal lands help sustain rural communities

Bedford, IN — The U.S. Forest Service recently announced it will issue $248 million in Secure Rural Schools (SRS) payments for 2025, delivering critical funding to eligible states and counties with National Forest System lands. These payments help sustain public schools, maintain local roads, strengthen wildfire preparedness, and support other essential services in rural communities.

During the past decade, the Forest Service has distributed $2.4 billion through the Secure Rural Schools program. In Indiana, the Hoosier National Forest spans nine counties, all of which will receive SRS funding based on timber receipts and special use permits. These counties also receive annual support through the Payments in Lieu of Taxes (PILT) program, which helps local governments offset reduced property tax revenue from federally owned lands. Together, these programs provide consistent and reliable funding that helps communities maintain critical services. For 2025, Indiana counties will receive the following combined SRS and PILT allocations:

 Brown County - $84,858
 Crawford County - $97,220

Dubois County - $24,311
 Jackson County - $85,506
 Lawrence County - $49,626
 Martin County - $28,427
 Monroe County - $119,206
 Orange County - $152,007
 Perry County - $210,401
 For more information about the Secure Rural Schools program, visit the Forest Service website. About the Forest Service: The Forest Service has, for more than 100 years, brought people and communities together to answer the call of conservation. Grounded in world-class science and technology — and rooted in communities — the Forest Service connects people to nature and to each other. The Forest Service cares for shared natural resources in ways that promote lasting economic, ecological, and social vitality. The agency manages 193 million acres of public land, provides assistance to state and private landowners, and maintains the largest wildland fire and forestry research organizations in the world. The Forest Service also has either a direct or indirect role in stewardship of about 900 million forested acres within the U.S., of which over 130 million acres are urban forests where most Americans live.
