(PADUCAH, KY)– If you and your family are going on a stroll around Noble Park in Paducah, KY, you might bump into some beautiful birds. Many types of birds can be found gathering near the pond with the island that has a mini-house and little windmill. This is just to the right of the pool parking lot on the west side. Viewing them during sunrise and sunset hours is truly a sight to see, especially when considering all the different types of birds cohabitating with each other. During the afternoon hours, the different types of duck and goose breeds gather from all around the park to congregate at this one location, almost as if they were going to church. During our stay at the park, we experienced this phenomenon when a flock of geese and ducks separately started lining up and swimming towards this destination. They made their way from the North end of the pond to the south end in approximately 8 minutes. It seemed they were happy to be there with the other birds when they arrived, with one of them even snatching a bite to eat(he was snacking on little fishes!). When the ducks and the geese made it to the island, it was about 5:15PM on August 21, 2026. By that time, they were all wading and enjoying each others’ company. Nature and the great outdoors is truly a blessing that we need to cherish and appreciate. Protecting animals like these and giving them a community at a place like Noble Park is just as important as the communities that we inhabit in our day to day lives. So considering that, why don’t you go to Noble Park and check out these super cool birds?

Cumberland River shaped McCracken County’s History and Growth

By Scott Waggoner

For generations, the Cumberland River has played a vital role in the development of McCracken County, Kentucky. Flowing along the county’s eastern boundary before joining the Ohio River near Smithland, the Cumberland has served as a transportation route, economic engine, and natural resource that helped shape the region’s history. Long before European settlement, Native American tribes used the Cumberland River as a travel corridor and source of food. The river’s fertile bottomlands and abundant wildlife made the area attractive for hunting, fishing, and seasonal settlements.

Early explorers and settlers later followed many of the same waterways as they moved westward into Kentucky. During the early 1800s, the Cumberland River became an important transportation link for settlers and farmers. Flatboats and steamboats carried agricultural products, timber, livestock, and other goods to larger markets along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. River transportation allowed local communities to grow and connect with the expanding economy of the American frontier. The river also played a strategic role during the Civil War. Control of Kentucky’s waterways was essential for both Union and Confederate forces. The Cumberland River served as a major route for military movement and supply operations throughout the region. Nearby river communities witnessed increased military activity as troops and supplies moved through western Kentucky. As McCracken County developed, the Cumberland River continued to support commerce and industry. River traffic brought jobs and economic opportunities to the region. Improvements to navigation, including locks and dams along the Cumberland River system, helped make the waterway more reliable for commercial shipping throughout the twentieth century. The construction of Barkley Dam by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in the 1960s transformed the river and created Lake Barkley. The project improved flood control, hydroelectric power generation, navigation, and recreation opportunities. The resulting lake became a major attraction for tourism and outdoor recreation, drawing visitors from across the nation and benefiting local businesses. Today, the Cumberland River remains an important part of McCracken County’s identity. From its role in early settlement and transportation to its modern contributions to recreation, tourism, and commerce, the river continues to influence the region’s economy and way of life. Its rich history serves as a reminder of the enduring connection between western Kentucky communities and the waterways that helped build them.

Hopkinsville Seeks Community’s Help Following Theft of Veteran Grave Markers

The City of Hopkinsville is asking residents to help following the theft of veteran grave markers from Cave Springs Cemetery and Riverside Cemetery. According to city officials, 27 markers are currently known to have been stolen from the two cemeteries.

Officials said the markers represent far more than pieces of bronze. They serve as lasting memorials to veterans who served the country and represent the sacrifices made by those who served. Their theft has caused concern among families and throughout the community.

The city is working with the Hopkinsville Police Department, area salvage yards and other community partners in an effort to identify those responsible and recover the stolen markers whenever possible.

Additional security measures are also being planned for city cemetery properties. Those measures will include the installation of cameras and increased surveillance to help deter future thefts and protect memorials.

City officials are encouraging families with loved ones buried at Cave Springs Cemetery, Riverside Cemetery or other cemeteries throughout the county to visit gravesites and check for missing veteran markers or other memorial items.

Anyone who discovers a missing marker, has information about the thefts or witnesses suspicious activity around a cemetery is encouraged to contact the City of Hopkinsville Public Works Department at 270-890-0600.

Public Works is coordinating with the Hopkinsville Police Department to ensure information is properly documented and shared with investigators when appropriate.

Residents are also being asked to remain alert when visiting or traveling near local cemeteries. Unusual activity involving grave markers, memorial items or individuals around cemetery grounds should be reported.

City officials emphasized that community awareness can be an important tool in protecting cemeteries and preventing additional thefts. Residents who notice suspicious behavior are encouraged to report it rather than attempting to intervene themselves.

Cemeteries serve as places of remembrance, reflection and respect, and officials said the veterans buried there deserve to have their service and sacrifice honored with dignity.

The city said it remains committed to maintaining its cemetery properties, supporting families who have loved ones buried there and taking reasonable steps to protect the memorials honoring those who served the nation.

Officials are asking the community to help watch over these sacred spaces and ensure they remain places of honor and remembrance for generations to come.

Beam Institute students gain global spirits experience in Scotland

By Grace Sowards

Bourbon is one of the Commonwealth’s signature industries, but Kentuckians aren’t the only group to pride themselves on their whisky. Students from the University of Kentucky James B. Beam Institute for Kentucky Spirits (JBBI) and the Lewis Honors College traveled to Scotland this summer to learn more about how spirits are made and marketed around the world.

Sixteen students from several University of Kentucky colleges spent three weeks in Edinburgh. They experienced tours at distilleries, spent day trips discovering surrounding cities and worked together on their assignments. The Lewis Honors College split the students into groups according to their working and learning styles with the goal of increasing confidence by bringing together students who share communication styles and interests.

One of the student projects was in partnership with Ballindalloch Distillery, a recent addition to the Estate Whiskey Alliance (EWA). This group’s assignment was to determine a plan for Ballindalloch to promote a new estate product to American consumers. In discussions with the EWA, a representative from Ballindalloch learned that students working on the project were planning to be in Scotland and wanted them to come see the distillery.

“It was a real pleasure to welcome the students to Ballindalloch,” said Aidan Dunn, international sales representative for the distillery. “Their enthusiasm, curiosity and willingness to get involved made them a pleasure to work with, and it was refreshing to see them applying their academic knowledge in a real distillery environment. Partnerships like these strengthen the future of the whisky industry and create lasting connections between education and the people working within it.”

One student on the Ballindalloch project, Jacob Keaton, is studying landscape architecture at the UK Martin-Gatton College of Agriculture, Food and Environment and working toward his Distillation, Wine and Brewing Sciences (DWB) Certificate. In addition to the trip aligning with his interests, he also was hungry for adventure.

“The program was wonderful in exploring the industry as a whole and understanding the different pieces that make up Scottish whisky,” Keaton said. “Travel provided a great chance for me to see a different perspective on things, like how I can interact with unfamiliar places, things and people. I was trying to plan and prioritize my experience, but once we arrived I learned to simply enjoy the ride.”

Ilka Balk, associate director at JBBI, traveled to Scotland with the students. While there, she supervised the project work and curated experiences to appeal to the multidisciplinary student group. Balk is no stranger to Scotland, having traveled there in both personal and professional capacities.

“Everywhere you go in Scotland, Kentucky comes up,” Balk said. “Distilleries over there use our casks for aging and are always friendly and warm to our students. Feels like a little piece of home for us while we’re visiting.”

EWA offers membership and product certification, which is what Ballindalloch Distillery is currently working toward. This classification on a bottle ensures that all production processes occur on the estate distillery and at least two-thirds of all mash bill grains are grown on estate-owned or estate-controlled land.

“Opportunities like this are exactly why the Estate Whiskey Alliance was founded: to foster connections that advance the estate whiskey community,” said Alexa Narel, associate director of the EWA. “Ballindalloch has gone above and beyond as our first EWA member in Scotland, opening its doors to JBBI students for an estate tour and a research collaboration exploring how regions define estate whiskey. We’re excited to build on this momentum, pairing more members with UK students for experiential learning and welcoming new distilleries along the way.”

The DWB certificate is available to all UK students, graduate and undergraduate. View more information about the program here. Visit this site to learn more about the EWA.

PCS gives public chance to discuss electric, gas affordability

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – The Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) opened a case on Wednesday to provide an opportunity for the public and stakeholders in the state to identify and discuss concerns, and potential measures to improve the affordability of electric and natural gas utility service for residential ratepayers.

The Commission made all regulated electric utilities and the five largest natural gas utilities parties to the proceeding to create a comprehensive record. The Commission invites interested groups or individuals with a special interest in the affordability of electric and natural gas utility service to participate by seeking intervention to the case or by filing public comments.

The PSC says access to electric and natural gas utility service is fundamental to the health, safety, and well-being of Kentuckians. Today’s order notes that data collected from the Energy Information Administration (EIA) show that the calculated average residential electricity price in Kentucky was 10.87 cents per kilowatt-hour (kWh) in 2020 and was 13.24 cents per kWh in 2025, showing a 21.8 percent increase from 2020 to 2025.

Given the current environment of rising utility costs, the Commission believes that a broader examination of electric and natural gas utility affordability issues would help the Commission better understand the factors affecting affordability across Kentucky and evaluate existing and potential approaches for addressing those concerns. The Commission intends to convene a technical conference in 2027 for parties to examine issues developed in the record. The Commission requests that parties file their initial comments and proposed topics for this case on or before September 30, 2026.

Public comments may be submitted through the Commission’s website at <https://psc.ky.gov/Case/SearchCases-PublicComments>, or by sending an email to: psc.comment@ky.gov.

This order and other records in the case are available on the PSC website, psc.ky.gov. The case number is 2026-00185.

The PSC is an independent agency attached for administrative purposes to the Energy and Environment Cabinet. It regulates more than 1,100 gas, water, sewer, electric and telecommunication utilities operating in Kentucky and has approximately 90 employees.

Mitch McConnell touts $26.7 million in federal money for UK agriculture research

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

WASHINGTON (KT) – U.S. Senator Mitch McConnell, R-Louisville, has released a statement applauding the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s (USDA) decision to provide the additional $26.7 million in federal funding for the construction of the Agricultural Research Service (ARS) Forage-Animal Production Unit at the University of Kentucky.

“I’m honored to have helped secure funding for the establishment and construction of this project over the years, and it’s great to see this final piece go into place for Kentucky’s leading agricultural research lab,” McConnell said. “There is no doubt this funding will help the University of Kentucky continue to solidify itself as the center for agricultural research in the Commonwealth, and I’m grateful for its work in this field. Our shared belief in improving the lives of Kentucky farmers and enhancing our agriculture industry through research has made for a productive working relationship that has delivered results for Kentuckians.”

This announcement from USDA builds upon federal funding McConnell previously helped secure for the UK ARS Lab amounting to $65.9 Million in Fiscal Year 2020 and another $10 million in Fiscal Year 2026.

Capilouto said: “The University of Kentucky is deeply grateful to the U.S. Department of Agriculture for this significant investment in agricultural research and to Senator Mitch McConnell for his steadfast leadership in helping make this project a reality. This funding represents a transformative step forward for the Agricultural Research Service Forage-Animal Production Unit and reinforces Kentucky’s position as a national leader in agricultural innovation. The collaboration among USDA, the Agricultural Research Service and the University of Kentucky will expand our ability to conduct groundbreaking research that supports farmers and strengthens rural communities, advancing the future of agriculture. We are proud to continue this partnership in service to the Commonwealth.”

Groundbreaking was held in June 2024 and the facility was expected to be ready this November, but the project was delayed with no new competition has been announced.

The 263,000-square-foot building will be the college’s central research hub, aligned with its teaching and extension missions, which serve the entire Commonwealth.

The 84-year-old McConnell is still recovering at home from a fall he suffered in June and has not made any public appearances since the accident. He is not seeking re-election in November.

KSP adds patrol boat to enforcement equipment

By TOM LATEK
Kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – Kentucky State Police (KSP) has obtained a new state-of-the-art patrol boat, allowing the agency to better respond to emergencies and natural disasters on Kentucky’s waterways, Gov Andy Beshear announced Thursday.

The agency recently purchased a 23-foot patrol boat, the Metal Shark 23 Relentless, which is specifically designed for first responders and allows for exceptional maneuverability in all types of waterways. The boat was purchased with grant funding from the FEMA Port Authority Program and will allow the agency to respond quickly to water-based critical incidents and perform operations on land, on water and in the air.

“The Kentucky State Police continues to raise the bar in its ability to protect our neighbors,” Beshear said. “This new equipment allows the agency to further expand its reach, helping ensure that Kentuckians and visitors are safe no matter the challenge. From lake recreation to flooding and weather events, this patrol boat will better prepare us to respond and protect more lives.”

The Metal Shark 23 Relentless watercraft is a fully equipped law enforcement vehicle, built to withstand extreme weather conditions with the same tools found in a state police cruiser, including radio, lights and a mobile data terminal, while also utilizing a FLIR Thermal camera and side-scan sonar camera for search operations.

The boat can be deployed during any major critical incident involving water when assistance from the KSP Special Operations Branch is requested, including the Special Response Team and the Aircraft Division. Examples of such instances consist of severe weather situations, water-based search and rescue and recovery missions, and support for safety during large public events like Thunder Over Louisville.

Members of the Special Response Team have completed specialized training to safely maneuver the vessel and conduct hoist operations involving both the aircraft and boat.

“Our mission is to do everything we can to keep Kentuckians safe,” said KSP Commissioner Phillip Burmet, Jr. “This boat will help our troopers during water rescue situations, explosive dive missions and maritime high-risk operations involving dangerous individuals.”

Franklin County High School cooks up win in School Garden Challenge

FRANKFORT, Ky. (Aug. 25, 2026) – Franklin County High School cooked up a winner at the Kentucky State Fair. Its squash soup, made with ingredients grown largely in the school garden, earned the top spot among eight teams in the second annual School Garden Challenge.

“With fall right around the corner, Franklin County High School picked the perfect recipe,” Agriculture Commissioner Jonathan Shell said. “These students took an idea from seed to table. They grew the food, developed their recipes, and worked together to bring it all to life. That kind of hands-on learning is what ag education is all about. Congratulations to Franklin County High School on a well-earned win.”

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture’s (KDA) Ag Education and Outreach Division invited schools from across the state to grow produce in their own school gardens, develop an original signature squash recipe, and present it for judging at the State Fair.

After judges from the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service reviewed recipes based on food safety, prep guidelines, and the basic knowledge students demonstrated about making the dishes, a blind taste test was held to determine the winner. The taste test was judged by Commissioner Shell, Kentucky Pork Producers Executive Director Niki Ellis, and Purchase Region State FFA Vice President Mallory Beliles.

The Franklin County High School team, that consisted of FFA members Adam AlHamdani, Gage Click, Makenzie Ratliff, and Gabby Roe, crafted its original recipe using butternut squash, red bell pepper and jalapenos. The team was coached by Kylen Douglas, Erica Baxter, and Grace McGaughey.

“I enjoyed this contest because it was something different that we have never done before,” Franklin County FFA team member Makenzie Ratliff said. “It was a fun way for our team to be creative and step out of our comfort zones, especially cooking on the stage in front of that many people. Being an FFA officer and an advocate for agriculture, I enjoyed learning the process to not only grow our food at school but also cook it. We are already looking forward to next year’s contest.

The competition helped kick off the countdown to All in for Ag Education Week, which runs Sept. 21-25. The week is a collaboration between KDA, the Lieutenant Governor’s Office, and the Kentucky Department of Education. As this year’s champion, Franklin County High School will receive a special VIP visit during the week.

Second Street School, out of Frankfort, placed second with its squash salsa Verde with flatbread. Bristow Elementary School, out of Bowling Green, placed third with a squash tot recipe.

Other participating schools included Saratoga Farm School, Barren County Schools, Providence Elementary, Highland Middle School, and Menifee County FFA and 4-H.

AFBF analyses potential beef import impacts: Urges Trump to reconsider

The President’s plan to facilitate record imports of beef will have a significant impact on farmers and ranchers who are rebuilding their herds devastated by drought. American Farm Bureau Federation economists analyzed the potential consequences of increased imports in the latest Farm Bureau Intel. Also today, Farm Bureau President Zippy Duvall sent a letter to President Trump urging him to reconsider his plan to flood the market with foreign beef.

President Trump announced last week that he plans to import up to 300,000 metric tons of beef over a 90-day period in an attempt to ease record-high ground beef prices. But the timing could work against ranchers who are deciding whether to expand their herds. It’s estimated that 70% of spring-born calves are sold between September and November, which fall within the increased import window. A glut of foreign raised beef could drive down prices paid to ranchers at a time when critical farm business decisions are made. Falling prices paid to farmers would be the latest blow to a sector that just recently began a fragile recovery. AFBF economists write, “The reason for the historically small beef cow herd is multifaceted. First, drought conditions across much of the U.S. has forced ranchers to liquidate cattle or put cattle on feed because of the lack of homegrown forage. Second, according to USDA’s Economic Research Service’s cost and return data, input costs for cow-calf producers, i.e., ranchers who maintain a herd of beef cows for breeding purposes, reached a record high of $1,762 per head in 2025. Nearly every line item for cow-calf operators is more expensive today than ever before. Since 2020, prior to the most recent inflationary environment, production costs are up more than $400 per head, or nearly 30%.”

In his letter to President Trump, Mr. Duvall wrote, “A key tenant of your reelection campaign was affordability, including the costs of essentials like groceries and gas. Bringing down the price of cattle will not bring the price of beef down for American families. Instead, it will discourage American farmers and ranchers from making long-term investments in herd rebuilding, extending the cycle of tight cattle supplies, high production costs and elevated beef prices for consumers. To put it simply, allowing 300,000 metric tons—equivalent to more than 660 million pounds—of foreign beef into the United States at a 25% discount ‘below market prices’ will undermine America’s ranchers who work tirelessly to grow food for American families.”

America currently has the lowest beef cow inventory in more than 50 years.

A Blow to U.S. Agriculture

American Farm Bureau President Zippy Duvall commented on the presidential proclamation issued today by President Trump that allows beef imports to increase by 300,000 metric tons – more than 660 million pounds – over a 90-day period, undermining the U.S. cattle sector’s recovery.

“One of the few bright spots for U.S. agriculture right now – the cattle sector – just became dimmer because of today’s presidential proclamation. The timing of this proclamation is a gut punch to ranchers’ bottom line. The claim of ensuring these added imports do not ‘disrupt the orderly marketing of commodities in the U.S.’ falls flat when ranchers are now selling their cattle into a market in sharp decline. It’s not too late to reverse this decision, and we urge the president to consider the economic harm this causes America’s ranchers.

“A strong domestic food supply is easy to take for granted ... until it’s gone. We also urge the administration not to make any changes to the renewable fuel standard that would further destabilize farmers who raise corn, soybeans and other crops. Farmers and ranchers are proud to raise the food, fiber and fuel America’s families rely on, but pride doesn’t pay the bills in an upside-down farm economy.”

Apple picking pointers for fall

Visiting a local apple orchard and picking one's fill of apples is a quintessential fall activity. Apple picking is an ideal way to spend time outdoors when the weather tends to be cool and pleasant. Gathering fresh-from-the-tree fruit to turn into favorite fall desserts like cobblers and pies is irresistible.

According to the Economic Research Service, Washington state is the leading apple producer in the United States. It is followed very distantly by New York and Michigan. Apples were first cultivated in Canada by early French settlers, with the first trees planted in Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley around 1633. Today, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, and British Columbia have become strong players in the apple business. While other areas may not be apple meccas, those looking to pick their own have plenty of options across North American to enjoy this pastime.

Prior to an apple picking adventure, people can do a little preparation to ensure the afternoon is fun and fruitful.

- Do some research. Before individuals head out, they should do research into the available orchards and which apple varieties they specialize in. Ripening seasons vary, so certain varieties may not be available at all times. Call ahead to learn which apples are ripe and when.

- Visit early. The best apples are often available early in the season before the trees have been heavily picked over. It's also a good idea to visit the orchard early in the day, which means cooler temperatures and smaller crowds.
- Dress appropriately. Orchards can be dusty, muddy and buggy. The ground also may be uneven. Individuals can wear comfortable clothes and closed-toed shoes that can get dirty. Also, they should dress in layers, as it can be chilly early in the day and then warmer later on.

- Pick correctly. Instead of yanking on the apples, which can damage the tree and apples, people should gently roll or twist the apple upwards from the branch. If the apple is ripe it will detach easily with stem intact.
- Avoid bruising. It's wise to inspect the apples to make sure they are firm and brightly colored.

Those with bruising or insect damage should be left behind.

- Don't overload. Only pick what you need. Apples are delicate, and overloading the apples into bags can crush or bruise the ones on the bottom. Plus, over-picking means that the apples may spoil before they can be eaten.

After a day at the orchard, apples can be stored unwashed in a cool, dark place, which will help them stay fresher, longer.

Sudoku Puzzle

How it Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle! Good Luck!

SEC adopts strict policy regarding professional athletes returning to college competition

By KEITH TAYLOR
Kentucky Today

LEXINGTON, Ky. (KT) — The Southeastern Conference is taking a firm stance regarding the league’s professional sports eligibility rule adopted on Tuesday.

A program found in violation of the policy will face penalties, which include the head coach being suspended for 50 percent of the season, a fine equal to the sport’s yearly operating budget, and league voting privileges on business matters being revoked.

Earlier this week, the league adopted new rules regarding professional athletes returning to college competition. The rule applies to athletes who declared for the NFL, NBA or WNBA Draft and didn’t appropriately withdraw from the draft; signed a contract with an NFL or another league associated with the NBA or G League or listed on a professional roster, which includes the NFL, NBA, G League or WNBA squad.

Southeastern Conference Commissioner Greg Sankey is authorized to impose penalties on any school that violates the policy.

It’s unclear how the new policy will affect former Missouri star Mark Mitchell, who committed to the Wildcats last weekend. Mitchell played in a summer league with the Denver Nuggets, but didn’t sign an Exhibit 10 contract.

The court system has cleared Mitchell to compete next season. Kentucky’s Asja Sivka was drafted by the Chicago Sky in the 2025 WNBA Draft, but didn’t sign a contract and neither declared for or withdrew from the draft.

During the SEC

football media days in Tampa last month, league commissioner Greg Sankey said one of the league’s greatest responsibilities is “to establish a stable national framework for college athletics.”

“For more than six years, those of us in the conference office, the leaders on our university campuses, Southeastern Conference student-athletes and policy makers have worked in good faith seeking the return of national standards through federal legislation,” he said. “These efforts have demonstrated not only how complex these issues have become, but also have reinforced my belief that Congressional action remains a needed path to provide that long-term stability.”

Sankey also urged legislators to pass the “Save College Sports Act.”

“The legislation moves us in the right direction, but it should more fully replace the growing patchwork of state laws that are conflicting and create competitive differences based upon state borders,” he said. “Remember that quote from our student-athletes: we just want to know that others are held to the same standards.”

There have been discussions regarding the SEC breaking away from the current college structure and Sankey admitted last month the conversations are real.

“People have talked about that,” he said. “They’ve opined about the frustrations that bring them to the point of saying we should look at something significantly different. I do not believe that is a leverage point. I think that’s just honest communication.”

General Grant’s arrival in Paducah marked a turning point in the Civil War

In September 1861, Union forces under the command of Brigadier General
Ulysses S. Grant
entered Paducah, Kentucky, in one of the most significant military movements
of the early Civil War.
Acting on orders to secure strategic positions along the Ohio and Tennessee
Rivers, Grant
occupied the city on September 6, helping ensure that Kentucky

remained under Union influence.
Upon arriving in Paducah, Grant
assured local citizens that his troops had come to protect rather than harm the community. He issued a proclamation stating that peaceful residents and their property
would be respected
while Union forces

maintained control of the important river
port.
Paducah’s location
made it a key transportation and supply center for the Union Army. The occupation provided the Union with a valuable foothold in western Kentucky
and helped pave
the way for future
military campaigns into Tennessee and the Deep South.
Today, Grant’s
arrival in Paducah is remembered as a pivotal moment in local and national history, highlighting the city’s important role during the Civil War and the rise of a commander who would later become the Union’s leading general and the 18th President of the United States.

Keeping critters out of your yard

Many homeowners want their backyards to serve as sanctuaries.
However, some may be sharing their relaxing backyard domains with uninvited guests.
From racoons
checking out
trash cans to deer munching on prized
flowers to squirrels
raiding the bird feeders, unwanted wildlife can transform a normally peaceful spot into a frustrating space.

According to data tracked by the USDA Animal
and Plant Health Inspection Service,
wildlife damage in
the United States
accounts for billions of dollars in losses each year. Although a large portion of these losses
are agricultural,
residential damage
should not be overlooked. Deer,
rodents, racoons,
moles, and skunks are known to wreak

havoc on a property.
Keeping animals
out of the yard
requires an approach that balances
efficacy with humane practices. These tips, courtesy of the Humane Society of
the United States,
can help.
• Modify the habitat. Homeowners should remove the incentive for animals to visit a landscape.

This means identifying features that attract wildlife and removing them. Picking up fallen fruit from trees, locking trash bin lids, storing birdseed in airtight containers, and treating the lawn for grubs, can reduce the chances that animals
will visit.
• Erect physical barriers. Fences make for great

neighbors and also are a viable option for keeping out large intruders. To deter deer, homeowners likely will have to put up a fence that is at least eight feet tall, as deer can easily
jump lower barriers.
For burrowing animals, fencing that extends underground and turns outward is essential to prevent digging.
• Use sensory deterrents. Modern repellents use smells or tastes that will keep animals at
bay. For example, some repellents
will use predator
urine to dissuade certain animals from spending time in the yard. Additional deterrents include motion-activated sprinklers or lights
that scare animals
away.
• Work with neighbors. Critter prevention must be a community effort.
If one neighbor is leaving out food for feral cats or feeding deer, then they may be compromising
the efforts of homeowners looking to keep wildlife at bay. Making a neighborhood pact
to be consistent with pesky animals will help everyone avoid damage and potential animal interactions.

Ballard Schools Raise Bus Driver Starting Pay by 11 Percent

By Julie A. Thomas
Ballard County Schools

The Ballard County Board of Education voted to increase starting school bus driver pay by 11 percent, from $18.02 to $20 an hour, at its regular meeting on Aug. 17.

The increase took effect immediately, and will make Ballard's drivers the highest paid in the Purchase area.

"Our Board of Education has made significant commitments to the salaries of positions all across our district," said Superintendent Dr. Casey Allen. "Bus driver continues to be one of the hardest positions to fill. Being a driver requires specified training, a commitment to pass continuing health and skill requirements, and a high level of patience."

Drivers work six hours for 182 days, and receive full benefits: health insurance with dental and vision, life insurance, and enrollment in the KPPA retirement system. Under the new salary schedule, drivers who stay for five years will be paid $20.85, instead of $18.85; in 10 years, pay will be $21.70 instead of $19.69. Top pay goes to $25.10, instead of $23.02.

"We really appreciate the board's help in making this a better-paying job for all of our existing drivers, and our prospects. If you are a credentialed bus driver, you can pretty much start to-day as a full-time sub," said Leigh Ann Green, director of transportation. "If you don't have your CDL and endorsements, we'll train you, and pay you for the training when you get your permit."

"This new rate recognizes our appreciation of the existing team who makes our wheels turn every day," Dr. Allen continued. "It also sends the message that we are still looking for new faces to join that great team! We welcome new applicants to come check out what our district has to offer."

For more information, contact Green at leighann.green@ballard.kyschools.us, or go straight to the "Employment" page of the district website at <https://www.ballard.kyschools.us/employment>.

Time limits for field event warmups approved

Staff Report

INDIANAPOLIS — The NCAA Division II and Division III Playing Rules Oversight Panel and the Division I Men's and Women's Track and Field and Cross Country Oversight Committee approved a rule that all preliminary warmups for horizontal jumps and throwing events can be no longer than 30 minutes per flight. If all athletes in the flight are ready to compete before the allotted time ends, competition can start immediately. All warmups for the final in horizontal jumps and throwing events cannot be more than 15 minutes. If all the athletes are ready to compete before the allotted time ends, competition can start immediately. Other rules changes: - In cross country, turns should have distinct barriers located along the course. - Rules regarding calibration of equipment will return to rules established in the 2023 and 2024 NCAA Track and Field/Cross Country Rules Book. - If a competitor is suspected of using an illegal shoe, a protest is allowed. - Current collegiate coaches or enrolled track and field student-athletes from any competing school in a meet cannot officiate a competition. - A flagrant action is now defined as an evident, clear or decisive act that infringes upon or impedes another competitor. Scoring option The Division I Men's and Women's Track and Field and Cross Country Rules Subcommittee and the Division II and Division III Men's and Women's Track and Field and Cross Country Rules Committee rescinded the optional indoor and outdoor team scoring proposals. Committee members will continue to discuss this topic, but it will not be an option for the 2026-27 academic year.

COLLEGE BASEBALL

Technology rules approved for college baseball

Staff Report

INDIANAPOLIS — Rules addressing technology in baseball were approved by the NCAA Division I Baseball Oversight Committee and the Division II and Division III Playing Rules Oversight Panel earlier in the month. The technology rules include giving teams the option, when available, of implementing a system to challenge called balls and strikes that could be used in regular-season and postseason games for the upcoming season. This will be an experimental rule in all divisions for the 2027 season. The Southeastern Conference experimented with a challenge system during its conference tournament in May. Teams also have the option of using bat sensor technology for in-game data collection. Division I teams experimented with this rule the past two seasons. One area where the Division I Rules Subcommittee wanted to take a step back is the use of technology to communicate offensive signals. Division I teams no longer will be allowed to use electronic devices to communicate with their offensive players during a game. Subcommittee members wanted to avoid any situations where a batter could have an advantage due to an electronic communication device before a pitch is thrown. Other rules changes - The use of 18-inch square bases for next season will be permitted at all facilities in all three divisions, while 15-inch square bases remain the standard. - A double first base is required for all games. - The number of allowable offensive conferences in a game will increase to six. This includes batters' request to reset the action clock. Like defensive conferences, a coach will be allowed to be involved in a maximum of three offensive charged conferences, plus one additional conference in the event of an extra-inning game. - In games using video review, teams can make a video challenge to see any play that could result in a fair ball call being overturned to foul and any tag play, regardless of the location. - In Division I only, a 30-second timer will be used between batters, as well as during mound visits and offensive timeouts. Additional experimental rules Conferences in all three divisions could receive approval to experiment with allowing pitchers only two disengagements from the pitcher's plate per batter. A third disengagement would be considered a balk unless the pickoff attempt results in an out. Also, pitchers entering a game would be required to face at least three batters unless the inning ends before three batters could be faced.

VICTORIOUS Living ...in a troubled world

No sustainable joy without spiritual joy

By Teresa LeNeave
leneave2@comcast.net

I recently attended the wedding of my granddaughter and as I watched the faces of everyone who attended, it left me thinking about the connection between joys of this life and spiritual joy. I was asked the question, “What advice do you want to give them?” My response was, “Remember to keep a relationship with God throughout the years.” I am confident there can be no sustainable and continual joy without spiritual joy. A wedding is so precious and so full of hope, but when the honeymoon is over, we still need God.

Putting our lives and hopes in God is important. The psalmist said, “Hope thou in God” (Psalm 42:11). Like King David we cannot always control what happens to us, but we can choose how we respond.

It’s easy for kids, jobs and life in general to distract us from our most important connection. When prayer, Bible study and worship become neglected, faith can gradually give way to troubles of life. It’s very important to keep a connection with God because hopelessness can become overwhelming.

Isaiah 50:7 declares, “I have set my face like a flint.” This picture reminds me of the determination required to remain faithful during difficult seasons. Flint is a very hard type of rock. It’s a form of quartz and traditionally was used to make arrowheads and other tools. Isaiah’s readers would have known the analogy of flint to determination. Believers are called to stand firm when trials, fear and doubt attempt to persuade them to weaken their relationship with God.

God offers stability, perseverance, peace and joy to those who seek His presence.

Too often, however, we remain at “pool-side,” occasionally touching the water when stress or crisis becomes unbearable. Instead, we are invited to wade deeper into His presence and allow His Spirit to transform us.

One of the best ways to maintain a healthy spiritual perspective is through daily prayer and the study of God’s Word. I also a good church home is important to a happy life. Personally, I believe it helps keep us conscious of God’s constant presence, love and protection.

Jesus is our vine, and we are His branches. His strength, hope and peace are available to us every day. We believe in Him, but perhaps we should also remember something even more powerful: He believes in us.

In the early 1900’s, gun ownership for most families might have included a .22 rifle, a double barrel shotgun, a .30-30 lever action rifle, and a pistol. Many only had one or two of these. A pistol was often the last firearm on the list. A farmer looked at these guns not as something to collect or trade, but as tools. That same farmer would look at the collection that many individuals have today, and ask “What’s all them for?” He believed that a gun had a purpose and if the purpose was met with one firearm, you really didn’t need another one. He also kept his gun a long time. He became comfortable with how it handled and how it shot and therefore felt no reason to trade it for a different one, no matter how much better the newer model was. Yes, that is different from today. Many of us think we need a gun for every type of hunt and for every situation in life. And then we need one to defend the house and the country – just in case. And all of that is fine. But when it comes down to it, the gun, no matter how it is used, still has one purpose -to fire a projectile from a barrel. That gun can be worth a lot of money or a just few dollars, but it is still made to fire a bullet or shell. This purpose doesn’t change. It never has and it never will. What changes, however, is the object of its purpose. In war, the object is the enemy. In hunting, the object is game. In that same hunting scenario, the object might be a duck, a deer, a grouse or a gobbler. But the purpose of the gun remains. Only the object changes.

When I think about the purpose God has given His followers, I think we can say the same thing. Our purpose doesn’t change. Only its object does. I believe the purpose for each believer is the same: to love and serve God and, to love and serve the people He puts in front of us. What’s neat about this is that we never have to ask God what purpose He has for us. He has already told us. What changes over our lifetime, and even from one day to another, is the object of that purpose. For me, the object was once a church where I was the pastor. Today it’s a group of diverse men. But even those descriptions are too broad. One day the object of my purpose might be hundreds of people I’m speaking to. The next day it might be one person who needs a listening ear and a little encouragement. The size of the opportunity may change. The purpose doesn’t. And there are plenty of other examples as well. These changes occur as we experience different things in our lives. Death, divorce, disease, defeat, and disappointment can all change the people and opportunities that are placed in front of us. And all of this does a few things. First, it settles the question of what my purpose is. Secondly, it takes away the pressure of trying to figure out some great calling for this particular period of my life. Instead, I can simply ask: Who has God put in front of me today? And was I a good steward of that opportunity? But it also does a third thing. It shows us that no matter how bad we’ve been, no matter how difficult and disappointing our past, as long as we are here on earth, God has people for our purpose. Sin, suffering and setbacks may redirect the object of our purpose, but they can never eliminate it.

Victorious living includes praying for discernment

By William F Holland Jr.
billyhollandministries.com

As I awakened this morning and opened the shades, the sun was shining, and the sky was clear. I'm very blessed that I could stand and walk without pain. We seldom think about how often we take the basic functions of life for granted. I walked around outside and looked at the temperature on my watch: 70 degrees. I enjoyed the gentle breeze as I took a deep breath. Being able to breathe is another amazing gift that God gives. I went to the donut shop and enjoyed a chocolate-covered selection and a small coffee. More thoughts came to me. I can see; I have a vehicle and can drive; I have enough money to buy a donut; I can taste, chew, swallow, and appreciate the entire process of digestion. I can go on, but you get the point of just slowing down and concentrating on being aware of God's presence and all the things He blesses us with every moment. Gratitude for what we have is a sure way to stop whining about what we lack. Even though I'm retired, I stay involved with working on something or going somewhere most every day. I love to write and create, and one thing I've learned over the years is to be very cautious about what I read and listen to. I'm not saying there is anything wrong with trying to learn and gather knowledge, but once we receive something into our minds, we are then left to decide if we will believe it or not. I'm sure that most of you who read this column understand the importance of prayer and are convinced that God listens when we talk to Him. You also realize that asking for wisdom and spiritual discernment is critical if we are to walk in His truth. As technology has opened up opportunities for every person with an idea to have a global microphone, it's important to not allow the ever-increasing sea of voices to distract, overwhelm or confuse our conscience. Those who are considered truth seekers love to absorb knowledge and listen to people who are recognized and respected as being wise. The question is whether what is being said is true. For those who have not heard of the "illusion of truth effect", it's the tendency to accept certain information as reality, based on repeated exposure. When we listen to an idea over and over, our brain decides whether the information agrees with our current level of understanding. This repetitive confirmation is how many of our personal worldviews have been established. By faith, we believe that what we know is truth (whether it is or not). Building our worldviews is a choice, as our interpretations continue to enhance our confidence; however, everyone's personal truth (including our own) is not always true truth. I personally believe it's good to step away from the chaos each day and find a quiet place where we can talk to God and listen to His voice. As I mentioned last week, "political news" is hardly more than tiny shreds of facts mixed with an abundance of biased opinions. This is exactly what the master of manipulation and persuasion wants. No one has enough discernment to filter the truth from the daily tsunami of political garbage, so instead of allowing our minds to be filled with hopelessness, realize that mainstream media and news talk shows don't care about carrying the torch of the truth; it's about ratings and popularity. The masses already know what they believe, so the instigators and accusers try to please the listeners. It's all about giving the multitudes what they want to hear and see, which is how they stay in business. Sadly, many churches operate the same way.

I'm reminded today that God knows everything about us, what we are going through, and even what we are thinking. The best part is that He loves you and wants to live with you forever. He can cleanse our conscience, forgive us, and give us clarity from all the lies and deceptions. In Psalm 100, God invites us to enter His gates and courts with praise, to walk in His peace and rest. Or we can live in a state of discouragement, depression, disappointment, and confusion. As the Lord will never force us to love Him, He also does not make us pray. If what we believe, and who we trust is a deliberate free-will decision we make every moment, then we can know that prayer and discernment are the difference between surviving and thriving! *Dr. Holland is a Christian minister, author, and community outreach chaplain. WHEN THE WAY IS UNCLEAR

Bro. Brandon G. Bramlett
Bandana Baptist Church

Only thirty miles from freedom, four runaway slaves stopped in their tracks beneath the starlit darkness. Behind them was a life of slavery, but before them was a frigid creek that appeared impassable—one they were instructed to wade through by the woman who promised to lead them to liberty. They had no lamps, no map, and no clear path ahead—just faith in Harriet Tubman and confidence that she knew the path to freedom. On the other side of the bitter stream was an abolitionist-friendly safehouse that would send them toward independence, but they didn't know that. They didn't know what Tubman knew, and they couldn't see what she saw—so, not knowing the way to go, they trusted in the one who did. And this is what the Scripture instructs believers to do when the way in life is unclear: "Trust in the LORD with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths" (Prov. 3:5-6, KJV). Life sometimes brings you to a creek you don't want to cross—a tumultuous tribulation, a season of unanswered prayer, or a consequential decision that is nearly impossible to make.

But remember, only the Lord sees what is on the other side. You do not know what He knows, nor can you see what He sees. Therefore, when you do not know the way to go, trust in the One who does. King Jehoshaphat once stood where the water looked deep. Advancing upon him were the mighty Moabites and the aggressive Ammonites, and he was severely outnumbered—or so he thought. With nowhere else to look, he looked up, and prayed, "O our God, will you not execute judgment on them? For we are powerless against this great horde that is coming against us. We do not know what to do, but our eyes are on you" (2 Chron. 20:12). This is what faith says in times of uncertainty: "I don't know what to do, but I know where to look. I don't know where to go, but I know who to follow. I don't know how this will work out, but I know the God who works all things together for good." The guiding Shepherd is also the way-making Lord, and He will either lead you the right way or make a way when there isn't one. When the Israelites fled from Egypt, they came to a standstill at the Red Sea with no way forward, and the Egyptians were hot on their heels. And although Moses did not know how they would escape, he trusted in God and said with bold faith, "Fear not, stand firm, and see the salvation of the LORD"

(Ex. 14:13a). And the Creator parted the sea. The God who knows the way and makes the way is worthy of your trust when the way is unclear.

Ky. drivers raise more than $940,000 for Ag Tag fund

By Tom Latek
kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – Kentucky drivers donated more than $940,000 for the Ag Tag Program in 2026, bringing the amount raised for agriculture youth since 2024 under Commissioner of Agriculture Jonathan Shell to more than $2.8 million.

“Kentucky farmers and agricultural enthusiasts have helped us reach another fantastic total for the Ag Tag Program this year,” Commissioner Shell said. “This couldn’t be possible without the wonderful support of those who see value in supporting the next generation of farmers through their donations to the Ag Tag Fund. It’s that generosity that will help ensure Kentucky agriculture has a bright future.” This year’s total, $941,630, includes funds generated by the purchase or renewal of Kentucky’s farm vehicle license plate and the new “Friends of Agriculture” special license plate that became available in February. Each plate includes a fee that goes into the “Ag Tag” fund. The farm license plate generated $927,585, while the “Friends of Agriculture” special plate generated $14,045. The fees are divided equally between Kentucky 4-H, Kentucky FFA and the Kentucky Department of Agriculture. This year, each group will receive $313,876.67.

Half of the 4-H and FFA donations are returned to local councils and chapters, meaning leaders in the donating community can use those funds to cover the cost of 4-H and FFA camp and other leadership programs for youth. County 4-H councils regularly use Ag Tag dollars to provide 4-H camp scholarships and travel for life-changing educational experiences to enable local 4-H youth to grow as leaders and engaged citizens. FFA chapters were free to use the money to meet the greatest needs in their community, such as FFA jackets for students in need or helping cover travel costs to leadership events. The KDA uses its share of the Ag Tag funds for various programs such as the Ag Athlete of the Year awards, the Kentucky Leopold Conservation Award, Kentucky Women in Agriculture and the University of Kentucky Grain and Forage Center of Excellence. Kentucky drivers who buy or renew the farm vehicle or the special “Friends of Agriculture” license plates may make a voluntary donation of up to $10 to the Ag Tag Fund.
