Farm to Table Dinner: A Night to Remember in Graves County

By Laurna Todd KPI Writer

The 2025 Farm to Table Dinner, hosted by the Graves County Chamber of Commerce, was a sold-out success, once again bringing the community together to celebrate agriculture, leadership, and the strong spirit of rural Kentucky.

Guests enjoyed a beautiful evening featuring a locally sourced meal and inspiring words from some of the state's top agricultural leaders. Some of the distinguished speakers were Dr.

Brian Parr, Dean of Murray State University's Hutson School of Agriculture: Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner Jonathan Shell; Senator Jason Howell; and Representative Kim Holloway. Each speaker highlighted the essential role agriculture plays in Kentucky's economy, identity, and future.

The evening also served as a platform to recognize outstanding contributions to local agriculture:

2025 Fancy Farm Picnic: A Kentucky Tradition That Feeds More Than Just the Crowd

By Laurna Todd KPI Writer

The 2025 Fancy Farm Picnic once again lived up to its reputation as the "World's Largest Picnic," drawing thousands to the small Graves County community for a day filled with tradition, food, and political excitement.

Hosted by St. Jerome Catholic Church, the picnic is more than a political stage—it's a massive celebration of rural Kentucky life and hospitality. Volunteers spent days preparing tons of food, creating a true feast that included: 9 tons of BBQ pork and mutton, slow-cooked over open pits, 1,900 pounds of grilled chicken, 146 gallons of corn, 410 lbs of lima beans, 225 lbs peas, 258 lbs of green beans, 1,400 pounds of potato salad and 250 lbs of cole slaw, tomatoes, cucumbers, onions and thousands of homemade desserts. Along with endless sweet tea and lemonade

The food lines stayed busy all day, with locals and visitors alike enjoying the tastes and traditions that make this event so special.

While the political speeches capture statewide attention, it's the spirit of service, community, and connection that makes the picnic meaningful for Graves, Fulton, and Hickman counties. The event brings positive economic impact to the region from increased tourism and media coverage to local businesses seeing a boost in traffic. Just as important, the Fancy Farm neighboring counties a shared place to gather, reconnect, and celebrate the values that tie rural Kentucky together. It highlights the strength of community, the importance of agriculture, and the pride residents feel for their region.

Thanks to the hundreds of volunteers and the continued support of surrounding counties, the Fancy Farm Picnic remains one of Kentucky's most cherished and unifying traditions.

The winners of the raffles Friday night raffle: - CanAm Lori Thomas Wilson, -$500 each Rodney Wiley, Clay Willett, Ellen Kaye Thomas. Saturday night raffle:truck Gene Leeper and - $500 each Jesse Adams, April Kell and Linda Willett.

Mayfield HS Launches The Cardinal App

Picnic gives

New App to Transform Communication for Students and Families Bv Kim Martin, Director of Public Relations

Mayfield Independent Schools announced today the launch of The Cardinal App which is now available to download on iOSTM, AndroidTM, and WindowsTM devices. The school app gives parents, students, faculty, and staff the ability to stay connected and informed about what's happening at Mayfield Schools. Administrators can now easily distribute unified messages from the app for both emergency text alerts and day-to-day school communication.

Mayfield Independent Superintendent Billy Edwards is excited about the new parent communication app and what it will mean for the community. "Improving student learning outcomes is the top priority of Mayfield Independent. We know that parent and family engagement is one of the biggest factors in student success, and our new app will allow parents to easily connect with our staff. From inapp translations to push notifications for urgent messages, we know this will be an impactful addition to our communication," he said.

"Another benefit of The Cardinal App is that it complies with SB181, the new student digital communications bill, as a traceable form of communication," said Edwards. "From traceable communications, urgent messages, to the day-to-day news, documents, and forms, this app will save time and improve communication for families, students, and staff."

The Cardinal App, by SchoolInfo, is free and provides parents, students, and staff with immediate access to everything school-related including calendars, directions to events, contact information for teachers and administrators, important documents, cafeteria menus, and more. The school communication app will simplify communication from all three schools as well as from the school district, giving personalized information to users, right from their phones when they need it.

Parents and guardians should have received an invitation sent to the email address that is connected to the school. During Online Registration, whatever email was entered, that is the email account connected to the Cardinal App. More information can be found on The Cardinal App page on the district website at www.mayfield. kyschools.us.

Teaching Kids About Money:

Local banks play a role in helping

By Laurna Todd KPI Writer

Teaching children about money is one of the most valuable life lessons parents can provide. Developing smart financial habits early gives kids the confidence and skills to manage money wisely throughout life. The key is delivering lessons that match their age and understandingmaking the learning process both practical and fun.

For young children ages 3 to 7, focus on basic money recognition and the value of saving. Using coins during everyday purchases, giving them a piggy bank, or saving in a clear jar are great visual ways to teach the concept of delayed gratification. This is also a perfect age to introduce needs vs. wants, helping kids understand the difference between essential and optional spending.

From ages 8 to 12, children can grasp more detailed ideas like earning and budgeting. Giving an allowance tied to chores reinforces the concept of earning money through effort. Parents can guide kids in dividing money into spending, saving, and sharing categories. Apps and games designed to teach financial literacy can make this age group's learning both engaging and interactive.

Teenagers should be introduced to realworld financial tools like bank accounts, budgeting, and even the basics of credit and loans. Opening a savings or checking account gives teens responsibility, and conversations about credit cards and debt can prepare them for adulthood. Setting financial goals—like saving for a car or college—helps build a mindset for long-term planning.

Local banks also play a role. Abagail Norsworthy, Director of Marketing at Citizens Deposit Bank, said, "We encourage kids to save by helping their parents start a savings account for them at a young age. We love seeing children come into the bank to make deposits."

By starting early and keeping the conversation going, parents help kids build confidence, responsibility, and lifelong financial independence.

Western Kentucky schools launch 2025-26 year with new phone law, fresh protocols, and community support

By Laurna Todd KPI Writer

As the 2025-26 school year begins, schools across Western Kentucky are implementing significant changes following the passage of House Bill 208, which has been signed into law and is now in effect. This bill requires all public school districts to establish policies banning cell phone use during instructional time, with exceptions allowed for emergencies or teacherapproved educational purposes. Each district will develop its own version of this policy, so parents are encouraged to contact their child's school for specific guidelines.

Western Kentucky districts are adopting creative approaches, such as "cellphone hotels" and lockable pouches, to keep phones out of reach during the school day. Teachers have already noticed benefits from these initiatives. Several educators have reported that when phones are put away, students engage more, and there are fewer discipline issues. Research indicates that students without phone distractions tend to retain more information and perform better on assessments.

Despite these positive changes, schools continue to face challenges related to funding and staffing. A recent report from the Office of Education Accountability highlights a growing reliance on substitute and emergency-certified teachers due to tight budgets (Legislature. KY.gov).

Fortunately, community support is on the rise. The United Way of Western Kentucky, in partnership with CFSB. and had a "Stuff the Bus" drive in Paducah to benefit classrooms throughout the region. Local teachers are also receiving assistance through DonorsChoose, an online platform that allows individuals and businesses to directly fund classroom needs. Additionally, some educators are utilizing Amazon wish lists as another way for supporters to purchase needed supplies for their classrooms. Johnna Martin, a teacher from Carlisle County Schools, stated, "An Amazon wish list can help teachers create a learning environment that includes materials for engaging activities that enhance student learning. Teachers can list supplies that many students may not have, creating for all learners in the classroom. It can also include materials that help extend learning to the next level. I am always extremely grateful for any support my classroom receives from the community."

At Ballard Memorial High School, BTC recently donated classroom essentials like tissues, wipes, and paper towels, demonstrating that even small contributions can have a significant impact.

Together, these new laws and generous community efforts are shaping a more focused, calm, and well-supported learning environment for students across Western Kentucky. Amazon wish lists can be a valuable tool for teachers. students, and entire classrooms, allowing educators to create lists based entirely on their classroom needs.

How Kentucky's new Moment of Silence Law will impact schools

Bv Laurna Todd KPI Writer

Starting this fall, schools across Western Kentucky will be implementing a new statewide policy that requires a daily moment of silence or reflection. This change is part of Senate Bill 19, which was passed during the 2025 Kentucky Legislative Session.

The law mandates that every public school begins the day with a one- to two-minute period of silence. During this time, students are required to remain seated and quiet. Teachers and staff cannot suggest how students should use this time, allowing them the freedom to choosewhether for silent prayer, goal setting, reflection, or simply taking a moment to breathe calmly before the day begins.

The aim of this initiative is to create a peaceful and focused start to the school day. Ballard Memorial High School (BMHS) is one of several schools already adopting this change. Principal Mr. Adams emphasized in a social media post that starting the day in a calm manner helps set a positive tone for both academic and personal success. Educational experts equal opportunities

agree that a short period of stillness can reduce anxiety, improve concentration, and help students transition into learning mode. Teachers may also benefit from calmer classrooms and more focused students at the beginning of the day. Parents and guardians discuss the importance of this time with their children. By making it a shared priority between home and school, this moment of silence could evolve into a meaningful daily tradition that enhances emotional well-being and academic readiness.

are encouraged to

As schools across the region implement this new routine, the hope is that it becomes more than just a rule; it will serve as a quiet and powerful start to each student's day.

Baptist Health Paducah offers student opportunities for those interested in a healthcare career [PADUCAH, KY] – Baptist Health Paducah offers several opportunities for students to explore careers in healthcare while developing professional skills and gaining real-world experience in a hospital setting. The hospital is helping to shape the next generation of healthcare professionals through programs like volunteering and student shadowing.

Volunteering
Baptist Health
Paducah utilizes student volunteers to enhance the patient and visitor experience. They volunteer primarily during school breaks and more recently as part of high school coop programs, allowing them to volunteer during school hours.

"Students, especially those interested in healthcare careers, benefit from being in a professional environment with policies and procedures where they interact with patients, visitors and staff," said Greg Holtgrewe, Director of Volunteer Services. "Student volunteers greet patients, assist with campus navigation and transport. Volunteering offers a unique opportunity to develop secondary communication skills as well as learning about elements of the hospital and the multitude of career options available in healthcare."

Students as young as 14 can serve as hospital volunteers and will primarily assist with hospitality, wayfinding, and information desk duties. Volunteers must commit to a minimum of 40 service hours; most shifts are 3–4 hours. Potential volunteers must attend an orientation and training conducted by staff and experienced volunteers. An application with references is required. Interested students and parents can contact Greg Holtgrewe at 270.575.8450 or gholtgrewe@bhsi.com to learn more about the application process.

Shadowing This is a great opportunity for students to gain valuable insights into healthcare careers before choosing a specific career or educational path. This is a short-term observational experience ranging from 4-8 hours.

"Hospitals function much like small cities, relying on a wide range of specialties, from maintenance workers to physicians, to keep everything running smoothly,' said Maria Hayden, Director of Education and Development. "By offering job shadowing opportunities, we aim to give students firsthand insight into the healthcare environment and inspire more people to pursue careers in this vital industry."

Students must be 16 or older. Applications must be received two weeks in advance. Due to patient privacy, certain areas of the hospital are restricted. For more information, students can contact Andrea Williams, Student Coordinator, at 270.575.8370 or Andrea. Williams@bhsi.com

Paducah is committed to empowering the next generation of healthcare leaders by providing students with experiential

KENTUCKY PREP GRIDIRON 28 lineman framed out with the height and length coaches want

By Fletcher Long Special to West KY News

Morton's Gap, KY:
Connor Miles has the height and length we would all like to see along the front scrimmage line on either the offensive or defensive sides. Sure, he's a little light in the britches but trust me;
coaches would rather get them in the program and add weight than having to shave weight and rebuild.

This guy can play end on defense where he has consistently played to date, even at the next level. To continue on as an offensive lineman, programs are probably looking at a 40-50 pound add, but plenty of frame to put the weight.

I used to coach offensive line. I am in the unique position to render assessments on linemen.

Generally, the only time we noticed an offensive lineman was when he screwed something royally. When he did his job,...crickets.

O-Line is the only position on the field which exists to heighten the performance of other players. If a running back has a great night, it is the OL who opened the holes and drove the DL off the ball. If a QB completes lots of throws, it is because the OL gave him plenty of time.

If a WR has a big game, the OL neutralized the pass pressure giving the QB time to find his downfield targets and get them the football. You see my point.

Miles is a kid who is making strides. We believe this kid will be a both-ways star for the Storm this coming season and instrumental in the team having the type success it craves.

Miles with his height and length is the classic edge guy on either side of the line of scrimmage for the high school game. Miles as a narrow neck on narrow shoulders with long arms and legs. Matter of fact, Miles looks like a stork. So did NFL Hall of Fame member Ted Hendricks with the Oakland Raiders.

Imagine that. Go figure.

Connor Miles, a '27 guy who reports DE as his primary position, finished 5th at 220-pounds at this year's Kentucky HS Powerlifting Championships. For a sophomore, at one of weightlifting's more crowded and tougher competitions, that is really good.

Coach Manning tells us he is also good at football and ready to step into a leadership role. Miles got three (3) games of varsity run in '24 but he registered four (4) tackles. That is called making the most of your limited experiences.

The Storm was ravaged, up front, by last spring's commencement exercises. Coaches Manning and position coach, Jordan Vaughn, will be searching for young guys to "fill some shoes."

Among those young guys who will be called upon, expect to hear the name "Connor Miles." Remember from where you first heard this morsel of information.

MSU College of Education and Human Services students help lead Racers to College World Series

MURRAY, Ky. – The Murray State Baseball team made history during the 2024–2025 season with its first-ever appearance in the College World Series, and three students from the Murray State University College of Education and Human Services were right there on the field, helping lead the way:

Luke Mistone, a junior infielder and health and physical education major from Upland, California.

Matthew Parenteau, a graduate righthanded pitcher and human development and leadership major from Carmel, Indiana.

Will Vierling, a junior catcher and criminal justice major from Mequon, Wisconsin.

The Murray State Baseball team made history during the 2024–2025 season with its first-ever appearance in the College World Series, and three students from the Murray State University College of Education and Human Services, Luke Mistone, Matthew Parenteau and Will Vierling, were right there on the field, helping lead the way.

Vierling said there's no way to describe the experience of playing in the College World Series.

"Our run is every player's dream, but even more meaningful is the fact that we did this together as a team," Vierling said. "Coaches, players — we are all so close. I can't imagine this run with anyone else. This experience will bind us for years to come."

Besides his work as an athlete, Vierling said he is first a student — and balancing the demands of Division I athletics with coursework isn't easy.

"My love for baseball makes the athlete effort a no-brainer," Vierling said. "In the classroom, my interest is in criminal justice, and understanding, flexible and excellent professors make all the difference."

Vierling enrolled in a few criminal justice courses in high school and said the subject has always interested him.

"As a studentathlete, I felt it was important to make sure that in the classroom I could succeed," he said. "Success comes from something you find enjoyable."

With all his success at Murray State, Vierling was selected by the Philadelphia Phillies in the 11th round of the 2025 Major League Baseball Draft.

Vierling said playing for the Racers has enhanced his life both as an athlete and an individual.

"I am grateful to Murray State University, our athletic department, coaches and fans for the opportunity to play for the Racers," he said.

Cooper receives the 2025 Legacy Award

By Wave River Counties Ag Initiative

Workman Bins Inc presented 2025 Legacy Award to Benny Cooper's family at the Wave Ag Day last week. He received this award because of the countless hours that he spent outside of the fields, devoted and dedication.

Benny F. Cooper was born to be a farmer; to tend to the land he loved. To be an overseer, a care-taker. Benny Cooper lived to farm; it was his passion, purpose and greatest pride apart from his Grandbabies. Sharing his love of the Farm with the ones who lovingly called him Dad, Tori and Kaycee, and the ones who called him Pop, Nick, Ella Jean, and Charlie was who Benny was and what made him tick. Benny was born a farmer, he was born INTO farming, he was born to do that very well, Benny LEARNED how to be a Pop. He learned through an unwavering love, prayer, and the guidance of his helpmate, life partner and right hand "man" of 49 years, his wife,

"Behind every good man, is an even better woman" couldn't be more fitting for Benny and Terre Cooper. His Legacy cannot be mentioned without acknowledging the role of the Farmer's Wife. For they too, worry, weep, pray, curse the weather, the poor market prices, and love the men that have been chosen, set-apart and entrusted to tend the land faithfully, and Anyone who knew Benny at all, knew likely the hardest working man in any circle that he was standing in. Yes, Benny Cooper was a hard worker. Benny was also loyal. He was a loyal man to his core. He was a loyal son, brother, friend, husband, father, grandfather, leader, and church member. He was loyal to where he hauled his grain, bought his seed, chemicals and fertilizer; even loyal down to his beloved "Red" tractors!

Benny was generous. He shared his blessings with responsibly. that he was more than dearly loved, along with his friends alike. Benny wasn't a flashy man, he was quite the opposite as I'm sure we can all agree. You'd never guess how generous of a man that Benny Cooper was, unless you yourself were the recipient of his love and generosity. Benny and Terre Cooper have together, over the course of Benny's 68 years on this earth, and their 49 year marriage and partnership, shared their home and their through the years. The friends and family of Benny and Terre Cooper can all say that they've felt the love and warmth of a plate of hot food, a glass of cold tea, the sweetness of a freshly baked dessert, and left their table full of not only the food, but most importantly, the fellowship and hospitality shown them; blood relative or not, you felt like family once you left their table.

hundreds of folks

The words Farmer and Benny Cooper are one in the same. You cannot rightfully say one, without the other coming to mind. Benny Cooper loved what he did, and left this world too soon, as we all know, in a terrible accident on a cold day in January of this year, doing just what he loved to do. It goes without saying that Benny was a humble man who is dearly missed, who left behind a greater legacy than he could have ever dreamed that he was building continuously through his life's work; by the sweat of his brow, by the ache in his back and the love in his heart.

Farm Safety and Accident Prevention is a focus of Benny's legacy, which will keep his memory and name alive, for the sake of safety for the future generations of farmers to come, through the Benny Cooper Foundation for Farm Safety and Accident Prevention.

we can honor Benny, his family and his

To wrap up, here are some of the many accomplishments, achievements and accolades that Benny acquired throughout his dedicated life-long time as a Bandana, Kentucky Farmer.

Benny began his agriculture career away from the field while first serving as a board member with Ballard County Farm Bureau, during which time he was promoted by way of election, to the seat of President. Benny served on both the Young Farmer's Committee and the Resolutions Committee during his time with Farm Bureau. Thus laying the groundwork for what came next for Benny, being chosen to serve the Kentucky Soybean Board. While with the Kentucky Soybean Board, Benny served as President. Benny also served on the United Soybean Board (USB).

He later went on to be elected threeconsecutive times, becoming the highest ranked position ever held by a Kentucky Farmer-Leader in the National Check-Off Program. During Benny's time with the USB, he held the title of Chairman for the Competitiveness Task Force, Chairman of the International Marketing Committee of which he was most proud, serving as a Marketer of U.S. Soybeans all over the world.

Benny served as Chairman of the Kentucky Soybean Promotion Board (KSPB), represented the Purchase Area District on the KY Soybean Association where he was awarded many times in for his international work and volunteer leadership, two of which include the Distinguished Service Award, and the Eddie Voils Leadership Award.

Congratulations, Mr. Benny! May you rest peacefully in The Lord's loving arms!

Ag Update

Submitted by Tom Miller, Ballard County Extension Agent for Ag and Natural Resources

Preparing storage systems for incoming soybean crops

Source: Sam McNeill, Extension professor, Biosystems and Agricultural Engineering

Preserving the quality of your corn and soybeans will help avoid price discounts when you deliver grain to the elevators and other markets, so it's important that you place great care and attention on the postharvest phase.

While it is financially advantageous to store the grain for this winter's higher prices. you must carefully monitor stored grain to preserve its quality. No one wants to have a load rejected at the elevator because of insect or mold problems caused during storage. To prevent this worstcase scenario, grain pits, conveyors, dryers and bins should be thoroughly cleaned prior to harvest to avoid mixing old, potentially moldinfested grain with the incoming crop. It may take you a fair amount of time, care and energy, but it is worth it to avoid price discounts from musty or sour grain. These discounts can range from 5 to 10 cents per bushel, respectively, which translates to losses between $50 to $100 for a typical load of grain.

Older conveyors and the bottom boot of bucket elevators will likely have a small amount of residual grain in the corners of the housing, so you may have to remove a portion for thorough cleaning. A small, wet-dry vacuum is usually adequate to clean hard-toreach corners and a disposable respirator or half-mask with clean filters is advised to protect lungs from dust and mold spores when working in close quarters and confined spaces.

Grain dryers will often have a few kernels that remain on the inside ledges, and screens should be free of foreign material and heavy dust that often accumulates during operation. Refer to the operator's manual for a complete check list prior to harvest for each specific dryer and be sure the fans and burners are working properly. Be sure to have a fully charged fire extinguisher nearby as a safety precaution during harvest, and inspect the electrical panel and junction boxes for insect nests and rodent damage to wiring insulation.

Grain bins have a lot of cracks and crevices where broken grain can go unnoticed along with the insects and mold spores that are prone to infest them. Clean the upper side of ladder

You can use a coarse broom to remove as much material as possible and follow it up with a vacuum for more thorough cleaning. You may have to use a shovel, pipe or compressed air to remove clumps of grain that often cling to the wall. To prevent the clumps of grain from falling on or injuring you or another worker, always approach these areas from the top of the bin and make sure no one is standing below the clump before beginning. Wear dust protection and always lock-out the switch box on unloading auger motors before entering the bin for cleaning to prevent unintentional operation.

Cleaning the area outside the bin is also important. High vegetation can be a breeding ground for insects, which can migrate to and feast on your grain. Mow the area around the bin often or control vegetation with an approved herbicide. Run the aeration fan and mark any leaks along the bottom bin ring and concrete foundation. Then, turn off the fan and seal them with caulk or expanding foam. Remove any spilled grain around the bin and pit area prior to harvest and routinely during harvest as needed, as it can be attractive for rodents and insects.

Review general safety suggestions for working around grain facilities with all employees and inspect personal protection equipment for wear. Be sure to have ample supplies of PPE on hand prior to harvest and replace as needed during the storage period.

Programs of the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, age, sex, color, religion, disability or national origin. For additional information, contact the Ballard County Extension Office, 110 Broadway, LaCenter, 665-9118.

Foraging ground cherries

By Teresa Pearson KPI Staff

Ground Cherries grow all around this area, and they are just starting to ripen.

Most people think of them as a pesky weed, but they are also a delicious fruit.

This fruit is part of the same family as tomatoes, The ground cherry is often found in gardens, on farms and fields. The fruits are similar to a very small tomato. This fruit is enclosed in a papery husk called a calvx that enlarges and covers the maturing fruit. The papery covering resembles a lantern.

Ground cherry husks turn light beige to tan as the fruit ripens. The fruits turn golden-yellow and drop to the ground when ripe. The inner pulp is juicy with numerous small edible vellow seeds. Look for fruits fully enclosed in their husks -- the drier the husk, the better tasting the cherry.

Ground cherries are notorious self-seeders, so they can become an agricultural pest as well.

Anyone with known allergies to tomatoes should not consume ground cherries or other husk fruits such as tomatillos. Ground cherries are members of the nightshade family, containing solanine, so some folks can't tolerate them well.

You can use ground cherries as fresh fruits or make jellies, and jams. You can dry them just as you would sun-dried tomatoes. Grind the cherries to make Salsa Verde as with tomatillos.

Ground cherries in their husks will remain fresh for two to three months in the refrigerator. Or you can remove the husks, freeze the cherries individually on a baking sheet, seal them in a freezer bag, and store them for several months in the freezer.

Some folks describe the taste of ground cherries as sweet and zesty. Others claim that it is a sweettart taste rather like pineapple meeting vanilla. Still, others state that the flavor is a bit like a tomato. I personally think they taste like a slightly tart tomato. I have made a delicious jam with ground cherries that I highly recommend.

As always, be sure to positively identify wild plants before using.

1. PLAN A SAFE ROUTE - Whether your child walks to school, rides a bike or strolls to the bus stop, map out the most direct trip possible. Do an initial walk-through with your child and make sure he or she doesn't walk alone - find a friend, parent or family member who can make the trip too.

2. KEEP YOUR KIDS INFORMED - Ensure your child is prepared in case of an emergency. They should know their address, telephone number and full name (for younger kids).

3. AT THE BUS STOP - Kids should follow these three tips: Always look for traffic before stepping off the bus. Always wait for the driver to signal you before crossing in front of the bus. Never walk behind a school bus.

BULLYING -Talk to your kids about bullying. Make sure they feel comfortable telling you or their teacher about any problems that arise. Keeping an open line of communication is essential.

S AVOIDING STRANGERS - Create a plan for your child explaining what to do if a stranger approaches - especially on their way to and from school. If your child is home alone after school, consider installing a home alarm system they can easily use and discuss additional home safety measures.

THE 7th ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF LIGHTS IS NOW OFFERING NEW LIGHT SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

By: Brooke Wiles VP & Chief Marketing Officer | FNB Bank Inc.

(Mayfield, KY) FNB Bank (FNB) is proud to be the title sponsor for the 7th Annual Festival of Lights at the Mayfield-Graves County Fairgrounds beginning the Saturday after Thanksgiving on November 29th at 5:30 PM. The Mayfield-Graves County Parks Department will be sending out renewal invoices soon for the past light displays and greeting cards.

"The light show continues to grow in popularity each year due to the outpouring of community support we've received over the past six years," stated Brooke Wiles, FNB VP/Chief Marketing Officer. "Festival of Lights is a great way for our local businesses, community organizations, churches, local families and more to show their support and Christmas spirit. We need the community's support to continue building on this tradition and making the light displays bigger and better each year." For those interested in purchasing a new light display, please visit https:// GrowWithFNB.com/ festival-of-lights/ to view an interactive catalogue of the available lights. After the initial purchase of a light display, a $100 renewal fee is assessed each year after to help supplement the cost of electricity for the displays. If you would like to order a light display or secure a greeting card spot, please contact the Mayfield Graves County Parks by e-mail at mgcfestivaloflights@ gmail.com. The deadline to purchase and pay for new light displays and renewals is Wednesday, October 1st. The deadline to reserve a greeting card spot is Monday, November 3rd on a first come, first serve basis.

The drive-thru Christmas light display will open to the public on Saturday, November 29th, 2025, and will run every weekend night through Thursday, January 1st, 2026,

Longtime western Kentucky pastor dies at 83

By Chip Hutcheson Kentucky Today

PRINCETON, Ky. (KT) — Doug Anderson, who had a 61-year ministry including pastoring churches, being active in Kentucky Baptist Convention life and involved in various ministries of two western Kentucky associations, died Aug. 2, 2025. He was 83.

Longtime friend, accountability partner and prayer partner Ron Wells, pastor of Bays Fork Baptist Church in Alvaton, said that the men's friendship began 44 years ago when both pastored in the same community.

"I was called to Buck Creek Baptist Church and he was at Livermore Baptist Church," Wells said. "We decided we were going to be prayer partners, and we did that two to three times a week, praying for each other's ministry and family."

Anderson wrote an Easter drama, "The Christos," a first person account centered around Pontius Pilate's house. When Wells became pastor at Second Baptist Church in Russellville, the church did that drama for 10 years. "It was a great production, and we had over 5.000 decisions (salvations, calls to ministry. etc.) in a 10 year period." In Wells' 15 year time there, the church grew from 126 to 1,187 people. "God did a great work and there were lot of wonderful things that happened. We (Wells and Anderson) were more than colleagues, we were brothers literally." One of his fondest memories came from their days together at Livermore. "There was a basketball league, and we coached the Misfits team." That was the name generated because two of the players were girls — one was Wells' daughter, Christie, who was 6-foot tall as a middle schooler — and rather than tall boys players they had two of the smaller guys — but those two were the best shooters. "We won the whole league — that was a great time in our lives," Wells said.

Rick Reeder, Caldwell/Lyon Baptist Association director of missions, recalls the first time he met Anderson.

"He was leading a grief care class in our association. He was helping people who had lost loved ones, and had a good number of people attending. My first impression was that he was a kind, empathic listener

"He was a good conference.

of our evangelism

pastor and preacher — people loved him. He never gave up and stayed the course, and was always a good example to both young and season pastors by his life and tenacity. His faith, attitude and his life really had an impact on his family."

Anderson was ordained at Mt. Zion Baptist Church in Kuttawa in 1962 and pastored 12 Southern Baptist churches — Bethany in Eddvville. Oscar Baptist in LaCenter, New Bethel in Eddyville. Providence in Frankfort, Northside in Princeton, Buffalo in Buffalo, Ky., First Baptist in Dyer, Tenn., Ewing in Nashville. Tenn.. Livermore Baptist, Henderson Memorial in Hopkinsville, Park Avenue in Madisonville, and his last church was Second Baptist in Princeton, where he served from 2012 until his retirement in late 2022. His mission trips included Jamaica, Africa and Russia.

His "passing for storytelling and his creative spirit shone brightly through his dedication to organizing and presenting Christian plays and services, including impactful passion play 'The Christos," according to his obituary.

His service in the Kentucky Baptist Convention from 1993 to 2003 included being on the Administrative Committee, Agencies and Institution Committee, Church Consulting and Revitalization Committee Mission Board member, Placement Committee and Committee on Nominations.

An insight into Anderson's ministry is provided by several Facebook posts from previous years ...

where I was assistant director and chaplain, I could immediately see she was a troubled child. Her counselor soon shared with the staff the trauma she and her teenage sister experienced with physical and sexual abuse from an uncle. The counselor advised all males not to approach her or touch her.

With most children, we very soon moved into each child's life to show the loving care of Jesus. Before meals I greeted children to the lunch room. It soon became a game where kids competed to run to me so they each could grab one of my fingers and hang on for a few minutes.

Our little precious one would just stand back and watch from a distance. I'm sure she was wondering if I could be trusted to treat her with love. I made eye contact with her and smiled as I was having my fingers getting rough treatment while the kids competed to hold one of my fingers.

Finally one day I saw her move a little closer but didn't compete for a finger. Then one day she came forward and trembling reached for the last available finger...and smiled for the first time. Her barrier had been removed and in following weeks, she broke the shell and began to smile and frolicked with the other kids. She had many victories in her recovery, but I broke into tears the day she was the first child to come and grab my finger.

I am a strong believer in the love of Jesus working with us and others. Satan has abused each one of us and seeks to keep us from the love of God shown through Jesus shedding His powerful redeeming blood by His death on the cross on Calvary's Mountain and resurrection to follow.

Then, He offers to cleanse "whoever will" seek Him to do so. That brings us from death to new birth in Jesus. That's the good news "gospel.

• When I went on a mission trip to Kenya, we walked daily from village to village of those precious people to share the awesome good news that Jesus would save anyone who would trust Him.

As we were sharing with the crowd of villagers, I noticed a girl come out of the bush carefully carrying in her cupped hands a half coconut shell filled with something.

Immediately the village chief's wife went to meet her and they went inside the chief's hut.

Soon they came out, and the girl went back into the bush pathway.

Many of the villagers trusted Jesus as their Savior that day.

As we were preparing to depart, I asked the chief's wife what the girl had brought to her.

She said the girl was the "keeper of the fire" and daily went from village to village to share the hot coals of fire from her coconut shell.

Then, the chief's wife shared her fire with each family in the village so they could light their lamps and cooking fires.

Lesson: We have been given the fire — Jesus Christ, and we have the joy, privilege and responsibility to share the fire of Jesus Christ daily.

· When I was serving as assistant director and chaplain of KBC Spring Meadows Children's Home, a very disturbed and angry young boy, a senior in high school, sat down in my office. He obviously was emotionally disturbed with anger and had it in his heart to hurt his mother. He shared that his alcoholic mother physically and emotionally had abused both him and his three younger siblings. He pulled up the front of his shirt to show me his hideously ugly deep scars on his stomach.

He strongly wanted to find a way not to hate his mother and wanted to find a way to love and forgive his mother plus help her to love her children. His compassion broke into tears.

I told him how God has changed lives from anger to love.

Our Savior changed a young abused and angry high schooler, a son who hated and despised his abusive alcoholic mother.

As he confessed his sins to Jesus and asked for his forgiveness and a cleansed heart, his Savior did that and more. He let the Lord give him a new heart and let the Lord show him how to love his mother, forgive her and lead his siblings to love their now born-again mother.

God also used His wonderful loving servants at Spring Meadows whose loving embrace through the years led so many children to love again!

The young man took sisters to be reintroduced to their mother.

As he finished high school, he went to college to finish his law degree.

Today he is a very respected and successful Christian lawyer in Louisville, Ky.

Funeral services were held at 11 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 7, at Morgan's Funeral Home in Princeton. A grandson, Christian McKenzie, officiated.

VICTORIOUS wing ... in a troubled world

Broken down walls leave you vulnerable

By Teresa LeNeave Leneave2@comcast.net

There is a proverb that will serve you well, throughout your entire life. You'll find it in Proverb 25:28 where King Solomon warns us: "He that hath no rule over his own spirit is like a city that is broken down, and without walls." There are some problems with a city that is broken down, and without walls. There are some problems with a soul that is broken down, and without walls.

The first problem is what we let in and what we don't let in. A city without walls is open range. So is a soul without walls. It is my belief that humans have to have some restriction because it's very easy to go off the rails. Without walls, there is no control and no way to keep out evil influence. That is especially true for the person "who has no rule over his own spirit.". When we have no rule over our own spirit, we're like a city with no control and no way to keep out the influence of evil.

In most cases, evil comes in quietly. It doesn't come in like they depict in the old shootim'-up-western shows that most of us grew up with. In my experience, evil creeps in. Quietly.

For proof, let's take Solomon, who wrote most of the book of Proverbs. Although it's recorded that he was the wisest man who ever lived, we find he was far more influenced by people he hung around with than he realized. According to scripture, Solomon did not turn toward other gods...he turned toward his many wives, who turned him toward other gods (1 Kings 11:3).

How would you explain a city without walls? Would it be a place with no restraint? Nothing to stop you? Without walls - you go anywhere you want - at any time you want. Without walls there are no restrictions and no restriction always invites trouble.

The devil is looking for souls without walls or with broken doors. It's up to us to guard the doors of our hearts. We can't leave the door open and let the devil pick off our family, our finances, our peace of mind and our strength.

It was Solomon who advised us to guard the door of our heart (Prov 4: 23-27) and maybe he was speaking from experience. I believe he was telling us we must guard the door of our heart because it's harder to fight the devil when we let him right in our living room. It's easier if he's kept on the outside of the door where he doesn't get a strong foothold.

Reading through Proverbs, we find Soloman warning us, from many different angles, to recognize the influencers around us. Choose influencers who will not "turn your heart toward other gods"

Remember: Soloman didn't choose other gods. He chose the people to be around him who influenced him to turn to other gods.

It is our own best interest to choose our influencers well. Broken walls, leaves broken souls.

For nearly 20 years I have been going to Missouri to hunt during the first week of November. Mv schedule has always been the same. Arrive one morning, hang a tree stand late that morning, and hunt that afternoon. I like for my first hunt to be in the afternoon so that everything is situated before climbing my stand in the dark, for the next morning hunt. When I'm there, I usually spend most hours of the day in a stand. So, comfort is essential.

For years, however, comfort was essential only if it didn't cost me anything. I used inexpensive climbing sticks and tree stands. But in reality, I paid dearly as I usually sat in pain and awkwardness the whole time. And there is nothing more miserable than doing what you love, in pain. I did that until I realized how my cheapness was ruining this incredible experience. I decided to save my money and get what I needed to hunt in comfort. Thank God for my Rivers Edge Big Foot Tree Ladder and my Millennium Monster Hang-On Tree Stand. I mention names not because I'm sponsored. I'm not. But because they are the comfort duo that I love. And what a difference an allday stay makes now. I no longer dread the long days in the woods. Comfort costs. Sometimes, however, pain has greater benefits.

There's a quote that has been front and center in my mind for the past year or so. It's from Gary Brecka. He says, "Aging is the aggressive pursuit of comfort." He says this not as comfort to be something pursued but as something to fight against as you grow older. The truth is, as we age, we are drawn to comfort – to ease. We have worked hard, and we want retirement. We have struggled, fought, and paid our dues. Now we just want to hunt in the mornings and play pickleball in the afternoon. And while it's a worthwhile goal to be comfortable financially; health wise, comfort is a killer. Pain is power. Pain pushes muscle and mind and prevents atrophy of both. But pain also has spiritual benefits. First, it provides an opportunity for God to comfort us. Secondly, it provides the ministry God gifted us for. And thirdly it gives us the message God has for the people we are to minister to. Here's how Paul described these three. "All praise to God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. God is our merciful Father and the source of all comfort. He comforts us in all our troubles so that we can comfort others. When they are troubled, we will be able to give them the same comfort God has given us." (2 Corinth 1:3-4 NLT) There you have it. The reason for our pain is so that we can be a comfort to others, as God has comforted us in our pain. So, you see, there is both purpose and power in our pain. In most things, embrace pain. It will keep you physically and spiritually young.

Calculating the cost of being close to God

By William F Holland Jr. billyhollandministries.com

We talked about taking a stand for Christ last week, but being a Christian is also a walk which in the light of scripture refers to conduct. Ephesians the second chapter mentions how we once walked with the world fulfilling the lust of our flesh, and Romans the sixth chapter talks about how once we are transformed by His saving power we now walk in a new spiritually transformed identity. While these passages help explain our salvation experience, what about how we are to walk after we are saved?

Colossians 1:10 describes our new lifestyle as a "walk worthy of the Lord" and then we notice another road sign in Ephesians chapter five saying, "Walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time, because the days are evil." Since God demands for us to seek wisdom and pray for selfdiscipline, we should comprehend that what we say and do speaks volumes about who we are. When we leave this world, how we lived will reveal what we believed was important. Our testimony and conduct are what everyone sees, which is why it's so important to surrender our will to be like Christ.

Many are involved with religious works, and will raise their hand when asked if they believe in God, but does doing a good deed always prove our love for Him? Can we not manage our own desires in the name of religion? So, what is the key to walking with God in this life? What is the difference between wanting Jesus as our Savior and having Christ as our Lord? Luke 6:46

sums it up, "But why do you call Me 'Lord, Lord,' and not do the things which I say?"
Since we know the Rhema Word of God
penetrates our spirit,
our mind, emotions,
and even our bodies, this revelation has the power to change us.

If we are not obeying God's commands and following His voice, He is not our Lord. We have given our worship and love to someone or something else. In Romans 6:16 we find another sobering statement, "Do you not comprehend that when you offer yourselves to someone as obedient servants, you are loyal to the one you obey, whether you are devoted to sin, which leads to death, or to obedience, which leads to righteousness?"

There is a good reason why we should conduct a daily examination of our conscience to make sure we have not drifted away from our commitment and love for God.

Each moment we are tempted and distracted to focus our attention on something other than Jesus Christ. We hardly notice this subtle persuasion from the dark side, but stop for a moment and observe. This is certainly not a game, but conduct a serious experiment and you will realize that all of us are in the middle of fierce spiritual warfare. The idea from Satan is if he can keep our thoughts occupied with anything except God, he can control us. The question is, do we care? Do we not see the danger of being led around by Satan whose mission according to John 10:10 is to kill, steal, and destroy? The good news is we have a choice about how we live as the second part of that verse says, "but Jesus has come that we might have life, and have it more abundantly."

I have two passages to share with you before we close. The first is Matthew 6:33, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things will be added unto you." The second is found in James 4:7-8. "Therefore submit to God. Resist the devil and he will flee from you. Draw near to God and He will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners; and purify your hearts, vou double-minded." If we meditate on seeking and drawing near to God, we notice it demands an intentional act on our behalf to pursue with a passionate determination. Could the principle of reaping and sowing pertain here? I believe so.

If God's response to us is based on the level of our desire to know Him, then how many steps do you intend to take to meet Him? If something prevents you from embracing and giving yourself completely to Him, what is it? There is a reality within the Christian faith and a worthy consideration; we can be as close to God as we want.

STAGEHANDS FOR THE SAVIOR

Bro. Brandon G. BramlettBandana Baptist Church

Every person's pupils were practically glued to the pandemonium among the pirates and pillagers. Buccaneers swung from the crow's nest to the main deck, battling raiders and robbers with their blood-drawing blades. "Avast ye! Give no quarter to these scurvy dogs!" yelled the captain. After a brief brawl, the invaders were repelled and the ruckus settled down. And that's when I saw it: a man stepping out of the shadows to mop the deck.

While watching the Pirates Voyage Dinner & Show in Panama City, Florida, I couldn't help but notice the stagehands who quietly emerged from behind the scenes to keep the stage safe and prepare for the next act. They unhooked ropes, removed and repositioned props, and checked on the actors to ensure everything was running smoothly. They weren't the center of attention their job was to guarantee that the stage was set for the main actors who were. They weren't the stars of the show and received no applause. They had one mission: to ensure the spotlight shined on the real stars.

And this is precisely what Christians are called to do for Christ. Believers are stagehands for the Savior. Jesus is highly exalted "far above all rule and authority and power and dominion, and above every name that is named" (Eph. 1:21a), and our job as believers is to keep it that way in our hearts and lives. The mission statement of our lives ought to be that of John the Baptizer: "He must increase, but I must decrease" (John 3:30). As the reformer John Calvin once said, this world is a "theater for God's glory," and our divine duty is to ensure that the spotlight shines on the real Hero: Jesus.

This means fighting the temptation to "think of [ourselves] more highly than [we] ought to think" (Rom. 12:3). We must see ourselves as "unworthy servants" (Luke 17:10) whose principal assignment is to shine the light of our good works upon Him (Matt. 5:16). Everything we do should draw people's attention to Christ, so "that the name of our Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified" (2 Thess. 1:12a). Our soul's greatest passion should be that of Psalm 115:1, where the psalmist prayed, "Not to us, O LORD, not to us, but to your name give glory, for the sake of your steadfast love and your faithfulness!"

One day, Jesus will return to take center stage and every eye will see Him (Rev. 1:7). Everyone in the universe will "take a bow" not to receive glory, but to give glory to the Morning Star (Phil. 2:10-11; Rev. 22:16). And those who hogged the spotlight will be humbled and eternally regretful that they did not make Jesus the center of their lives (Luke 14:11). But, saints who served as stagehands will be eternally glad they did not steal the spotlight (Rev. 4:10-11). Are you a stagehand for the Savior?

Sudoku Puzzle

How it Works:

Sudoku puzzles are fomatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle! Good Luck!

Stocking Up on School Supplies

A Key to a Successful Start

By Wilbur Jackson KPI Writer

As the new school year approaches, shopping for school supplies becomes a top priority for families. Having the right tools not only sets students up for academic success but also boosts their confidence and readiness to learn. Whether your child is starting kindergarten or heading into high school, a well-stocked backpack is essential.

Basic supplies like pencils, pens, lay the foundation. Younger students may need crayons, glue sticks, and safety scissors, while older kids might require calculators, binders, and USB drives. Don't forget extras like lunch boxes, water bottles, and hand sanitizer.

Involving children in the shopping process gives them a sense of responsibility and helps them get excited about the new school year. Many schools provide specific supply lists, and a sturdy backpack so it's helpful to check those before heading to the store.

> Organizing supplies at home ahead of time—labeling items and packing them neatly-can ease firstday jitters and ensure a smoother transition. School supplies aren't just about materials; they're tools that help students stay organized, focused, and prepared. Investing time and care into this process sends a powerful message: education matters, and they're ready to succeed.

Welcome to this spacious and beautifully maintained brick home nestled in a quiet, established neighborhood in West Paducah. Just over 2 miles from McCracken County High School, this property offers a rare combination of comfort, space, and flexibility-making it ideal for families, remote workers, or anyone seeking room to grow. With 3 bedrooms and a potential 4th that can serve as a home office, nursery, or guest room, this home adapts easily to your lifestyle.

Inside, you'll find a warm and inviting layout featuring both a formal living room and a cozy den with a fireplaceperfect for entertaining or relaxing evenings. A bright sunroom opens to a covered patio and a private courtyard, providing a peaceful outdoor retreat right at your doorstep. The primary suite is thoughtfully designed with a walk-in closet, private in-suite bathroom, and direct access to the additional flexible room.

Additional highlights include 2.5 bathrooms, an attached 2-car garage, and a 16×12 ft portable building that's perfect for storage, a workshop, or hobby space. With convenient access to schools, shopping, and everyday amenities, this move-in-ready home offers the space and serenity you've been searching for.

Building a Strong Relationship with Your Child's Teachers:

Why It Matters and How to Do It

By Wilbur Jackson KPI Writer

Creating a strong, respectful relationship with your child's teachers is one of the most impactful ways to support your child's education. When parents and teachers work together, students benefit from consistent messages, increased support, and a more personalized learning experience. A solid parent-teacher relationship fosters trust, communication, and collaboration—all essential components of student success.

Why a Good Relationship Matters

Teachers play a central role in your child's daily life. They not only deliver academic content but also help shape social skills, emotional well-being, and personal growth. When parents and teachers communicate openly, children are more likely to feel supported, motivated, and accountable. A strong partnership also allows for early identification and resolution of any learning or behavioral issues.

Furthermore, students notice the relationship between their parents and teachers. When they see adults working together respectfully, it reinforces the importance of education and creates a sense of security and stability in the classroom.

Start Early and Be Proactive

The best relationships begin before a problem arises. Don't wait until there's a concern to introduce yourself. Reach out early in the school year—either during open house events, through an email, or with a quick note-to introduce yourself and express your commitment to supporting your child's education. A simple "I'm looking forward to working with you this year" sets a positive

Communicate Regularly

Open, consistent communication is the foundation of any strong relationship. Find out how your child's teacher prefers to communicate—some may use email, school apps, or paper newsletters. Try to stay informed about what's happening in the classroom, from academic topics to behavior expectations and upcoming events.

If you have a concern or question, approach the teacher with respect and a desire to understand. Ask open-ended questions like, "How is my child adjusting socially?" or "What can we do at home to support what you're teaching in class?"

It's important to remember that teachers have busy schedules and often juggle many responsibilities. Be patient and allow reasonable time for responses. Keep messages clear, respectful, and focused on solutions.

Support Learning at Home

One of the best ways to show teachers that you're a partner in your child's education is by reinforcing learning at home. This doesn't mean taking over the teaching role, but rather creating an environment that values learninghelping with homework when needed, establishing a quiet study area, and encouraging reading.

When children see that school and home are aligned, they're more likely to take learning seriously and feel supported. Teachers appreciate parents who help build a bridge between school and home, especially when they reinforce key skills or classroom expectations.

Attend Conferences and School Events

Make time to attend parentteacher conferences, curriculum nights, and school events. These opportunities allow you to better understand your child's academic environment, connect with the teacher in person, and ask specific questions. They also show your child that you care about their school experience and that you value their educators.

If you can't attend in person due to work or other commitments, ask if there are virtual options or ways to stay informed. Teachers understand that parents are busy, but showing interest—however you can—is what counts.

Be Respectful and Collaborative

Disagreements or concerns may arise during the school year, and that's normal. What matters most is how you approach them. Rather than placing blame. focus on collaboration. Use "we" language to signal that you're on the same team: "How can we work together to help my child stay focused?" or "I'd love your input on how we can manage this better at home."

Respect the teacher's professional expertise while also advocating for your child's unique needs. When parents and teachers work together as partners—not adversaries—solutions are easier to find, and children benefit the most.

Show Appreciation

A little appreciation goes a long way. Teachers often work long hours and go above and beyond to support their students. A simple thank-you note, a kind word during a conference, or a message recognizing their efforts can brighten their day and strengthen your relationship.

Encourage your child to show gratitude as well. Teaching children to respect and appreciate their teachers fosters a positive, respectful classroom environment and reinforces the importance of kindness and gratitude.

Stay Involved, Not Overbearing

While involvement is key, it's also important to strike a healthy balance. Trust your child's teacher to do their job, and avoid micromanaging or overstepping boundaries. Being too involved—such as constantly checking in about minor issues or second-guessing teaching decisions—can strain the relationship.

Instead, focus on staying informed, supporting your child at home, and maintaining open communication. When teachers know they can count on you without feeling monitored, trust and respect grow naturally.

Conclusion

A strong relationship between parents and teachers creates a powerful support system for children. By initiating early contact, maintaining respectful communication, supporting learning at home, and showing appreciation, you lay the groundwork for a positive and productive partnership.

Ultimately, the goal is the same: to help your child thrive. When parents and teachers work together, that goal becomes much more achievable. So, take the time to connect, collaborate, and build a relationship that will support your child not just for one school year, but for their entire educational journey.

General Matter:

Beshear, others celebrate Paducah nuclear energy plant

By TOM LATEK Kentucky Today

PADUCAH, Ky. (KT) - Gov. Andy Beshear joined other elected officials and leaders from General Matter, an American uranium enrichment company, to recognize the company's signing a lease with the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) for the former Paducah Gaseous Diffusion Plant.

The economic development project in McCracken County will include a nearly $1.5 billion investment and create 140 well-paying jobs.

The signing of the lease paves the way for future milestones, including permitting, licensing and contractual terms with the DOE that will move the project moving forward. When completed, the facility will represent the largest economic development project in western Kentucky history.

"I want to congratulate the team at General Matter on this major step toward what will be the largest economic investment ever for western Kentucky," Gov. Beshear said. "This lease reflects Kentucky's leadership in nuclear energy and our strong partnerships at the federal and local levels, as well as in the private sector. I am looking forward to being back in Paducah soon to celebrate the next key milestone for this exciting and historic project."

General Matter collaborated with state and local leaders and the DOE for the plan to build a commercial uranium enrichment facility at the Paducah site that served as the first location in the United States for industrialized enrichment technology. Plans for the facility include production of fuel needed for the next generation of nuclear energy, which are vital for future growth of manufacturing, artificial intelligence and other key industries.

"Seventy-five years ago, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission selected Paducah to help lead the nation's original enrichment efforts," General Matter CEO Scott Nolan told those on hand. "We are proud to return to and reactivate this historic site to power a new era of American energy independence, and we thank our partners in Kentucky and at the DOE's Office of Environmental Management and the Office of Nuclear Energy for supporting us in this landmark investment in American nuclear infrastructure."

General Matter is a privately funded American company focused on development of uranium enrichment technology to reshore domestic nuclear fuel capacity and power American energy production. The company's team includes experts and engineers with backgrounds in nuclear, tech and government. The company was selected by the DOE as an awardee in both its low enriched uranium (LEU) and high-assay low enriched uranium (HALEU) enrichment acquisition programs and plans to enrich uranium at the Paducah site by 2030.

Kentucky AG calling for ban on bromazolam

By TOM LATEK Kentucky Today

FRANKFORT, Ky. (KT) – With dozens of overdose deaths in Kentucky involving a drug some refer to as the "Designer Xanax," Attorney General Russell Coleman is calling on the Cabinet for Health and Family Services (CHFS) to take emergency action to ban bromazolam.

In a letter to Secretary Steven Stack, Coleman urged CHFS to use its authority to immediately schedule the drug, which will then empower law enforcement to crack down on it in the state.

According to the AG's office, bromazolam is being passed off as prescription pills including benzodiazepines, which are commonly used to treat conditions such as anxiety disorders, insomnia, and seizures. Sold illicitly on the streets and online, bromazolam has proven to be both highly potent and even lethal. especially when combined with opioids or other central nervous system depressants.

In his letter, Coleman wrote to Stack, "We can immediately empower law enforcement to crack down on the traffickers and distributors of this deadly drug. Your action could have an immediate and lifesaving impact on Kentuckians across our Commonwealth."

The Northern Kentucky Drug Strike Force (NKDSF) contacted detectives with the Attorney General's Department of Criminal Investigation (DCI) about a troubling increase of bromazolam pills flooding the Commonwealth. A Drug Strike Force investigation with the U.S. Postal Inspection Service recently interdicted one parcel containing 958 pills that were later confirmed to be bromazolam.

In Kentucky. the Office of Drug Control Policy has reported 47 overdose deaths in 2024 involving bromazolam. Despite its clear dangers, bromazolam remains unscheduled at the federal level, creating significant challenges for law enforcement and public health officials trying to respond to this emerging crisis.

when as little as one pill can-and iskilling our children. As parents and public officials, we must do all we can to stop illicit drugs and counterfeit pills," Coleman stated. "The threat is clear, and all of us must work together to keep these drugs off our streets to save Kentuckians' lives."

"We live at a time

In addition to seeking this emergency action from CHFS, the AG's office has already contacted the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) regarding the emergency scheduling of bromazolam at the federal level. The drug has already been scheduled in states that include Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Virginia, and West Virginia.
