Cartoonist Jim Davis visits Fairmount for a special reason; Signs two town murals

By Cathy Shouse

Recently one of Fairmount’s famous native sons returned on a special mission. Jim Davis, the Garfield cartoon creator, returned to his hometown to put his signature on two murals.

The mural called “Greetings from Fairmount” by Alex Lomeli and a Garfield mural painted by MG high schooler Lila Morrow now have Davis’s name on them. He painted the lettering himself. While in town, Davis made a few other stops as well.

Recently, Hunter Wolf, of Main Street Fairmount, was a key player. Wolf owns Fairmount Pro Hardware on Main Street.

“I had written him a letter about a year back asking if I could use Garfield for advertising,” Wolf said. “He wrote me back and included a little sketch of Garfield in the bottom corner.”

Wolf and Kathy Savage got the idea to ask Davis to sign two town murals.

“He wrote back saying that he had seen our mural on Facebook and that he loved it. Before too long he reached back out with a few dates of when he could come.”

The visit was kept quiet but when it was over, the organization’s Facebook page shared the news.

Some locals commented on the photos. Jean Huff wrote, “Haven’t seen Jim since high school,” followed by a smiley face. “Looking well Jim. Thank you for visiting.”

Several other posts on Facebook mentioned going to Ball State University with Davis and experiences they had. Eric Herbst reminisced that he was a Ball State student pilot flying out of the Muncie airport in 1985 when he flew to Kokomo to pick up Davis.

Wolf said it’s a day he’ll always remember, since he participated as a kid in the Garfield run held annually during the

James Dean Festival.

“The day he came was a chilly fall morning,” Wolf said. “He pulled up in a car with his brother and cousins. I had already gone over a small itinerary with Jim prior to coming. The mural signing on Helping Hands, a few photos with the muralist and MSF Board, Then a small walk downtown to the Garfield Mural located on the Thompson Building across from the Hardware, and then to finish it out I connected with Christy Berry and Dorothy Schultz from The James Dean Museum about a private tour of the Garfield Exhibit. On our walk, me and Jim talked about the many changes in Fairmount since he had been last.”

While Wolf appreciates all of the celebrities from Fairmount, the Garfield creator is especially dear to his heart.

“I love Garfield, I feel like he is the underdog of Fairmount, and probably doesn’t get as much recognition as he should,” Wolf said. “I think what made this so special to me was that someone so famous didn’t forget about their roots and was so personable and down-to-earth. Jim was so pleased with everything in Fairmount and loved seeing the ways his successes are celebrated in his hometown. Basically, saying no matter how famous he became he hasn’t forgotten where he came from. Had he not grown up on that farm outside of Fairmount he quite possibly could have never gotten the idea for Garfield in the first place.”

Wolf had a unique role in the day, providing the materials from his store, the paint brush and paint.

“I handed him the supplies and held the pail of paint for him as he climbed up the ladder, and with every brush stroke he started to carve out the iconic signature. When he was done, it was perfect just like it looks on the comic strips.”

“When he started to sign his name, his cousins joked with him on how to spell his name, giving him pointers on what the next letter would be,” Hunter continued. “He joked along shouting out a wrong letter to get our small little crowd to give out a chuckle. After he was done signing his cousins pulled out their own paint joking that it was their turn. In all Jim was a very nice man with a down-to-earth personality and quite the sense of humor.”

Blackford County Extension Homemakers to host IEHA Spring
District meeting

By Susan Lannoy

Blackford County Extension Homemakers Association will be hosting the IEHA Spring District meeting scheduled for April 14, 2026. The meeting is for the New Castle District and will be held at the Blackford County 4-H Fairgrounds. Blackford County is in the process of preparing for this venue. It is anticipated that 100 guests will be in attendance including IEHA President Cathy Willymacky. A silent auction will be held with all funds collected going to Cancer Support in Blackford County. It should be noted that we are in the Noblesville District and the farthest north and east county in our district.

In addition, it should be noted there are five active clubs in Blackford County: Sew Happy Club’s main interest is quilting! Sewing, crocheting and knitting are interests as well. Sew Happy meets twice a month in Hartford City. There is an open sew day for anyone who knows the basics of sewing; they have a meeting once a month and work on their projects the same day.

The Kitchen Kemists has a wide variety of interests including contributing time and needed items to the VA Medical Center in Marion. They also help the Gideons fill Christmas gift bags for cancer patients. Additionally, they donate time by visiting nursing home patients, have a plant sale in the spring and many other activities. They meet once a month on the southwest side of the Blackford County near Shamrock Lakes.

Redkey Town & Country Club are actively helping the communities of Jay County as well as participating in and contributing to Blackford County activities. They have worked with recycling for Jay County and made donations to projects as well.

Jolly Workers Club meets in Montpelier on the north side of Blackford County. They have donated items, worked at Montpelier Jamboree, and helped with the Blackford County Fair Board sale of sausage sandwiches and pork chops.

Just-A-Mere Club usually meets in Montpelier as well. This is our oldest club in Blackford County and was started in 1926. This club meets once a month for a business meeting and socializing. They donate to our county projects and help wherever they can.

There are extension clubs in Grant County, and Blackford County is open to visitors and welcomes you to visit. If you would like to know more about Blackford County Extension Homemakers Association, you can find us on Facebook at: Blackford County Indiana Extension Homemakers Association or contact our Purdue Extension Office at 766-348-3213, or through messenger on Facebook. Let’s share information and ideas!

VICTORIOUS

Living...in a troubled world

One moment changes everything

By Teresa LeNeave
leneave2@comcast.net

There are countless Bible stories that could have been written just yesterday. They are still as relevant as the 5:00 news. One such individual emerges from the pages in the Bible: the woman at the well. She lived a life of passion. Since she had already been married and divorced five times, she was not a young woman when she met Jesus, but she still had not changed her sinful lifestyle. Obviously, she was the type that needed a man. Had she been abused? Had she been an orphan without a father in her life? Or, had she been a rebellious child? The Bible doesn't tell us much about her past, but a few things were pretty obvious, one being that she was co-dependent. She needed a man to feel secure. Being alone was not something she could face. After five husbands, she now was in a live-in relationship. I imagine her dealing with feelings of rejection. Normally, women went to the well early in the morning before the dessert sun was miserably hot, but not this woman. She went at noon, at meal time when very few, if anyone, would be there. Perhaps she was coming at noon to avoid the sneers and whispers of the other women who were so quick to judge her. Five husbands, in any generation or culture, is not something a woman is proud of. There were periods of history when men could have all the wives he wanted, but never a time when women had that luxury. From the beginning of time women were expect to be chaste, to love her husband and her family. If you wonder how an unchaste woman was thought of, you have only to read Proverbs chapter two. Solomon said her ways lead to death and total destruction. In Proverbs 5:3,4 he says, "For the lips of an immoral woman drip honey, and her mouth is smoother than oil; but in the end she is bitter as worm wood" (which is poison). That's the kind of culture she had to face, daily. She was the "immoral woman". The one people whispered about. She knew what public rejection felt like. Life had not been good to her. Her life was empty, but she continued to search. And that is where Jesus finds her. To her, He is a "Jew" which was not good news and when she saw Him sitting on the well something in her stomach probably began to sink. "Oh, no" she must have thought. Because Jews did not associate with Samaritans, she was surprised that He spoke much less ask her for a drink of water! Her immediate response came from a life of rejection when she spit out words of pain. "How is it that You, being a Jew, ask a drink from me, a Samaritan woman? For Jews have no dealings with Samaritans" (John 4:9 KJV). Jesus said, "I'll give you water that you will never thirst again". Her entire life she had been searching for something to satisfy and now Jesus was offering to end the search. One intimate moment with Jesus Christ solved two very big problems for her: She was instantly transformed by the Spirit of God and secondly, her words turned an entire city to Christ. One moment with Jesus changed her life forever. She went from seeing Him as the prejudice Jew; to the honorable "Sir"; to a revered "Prophet"; and finally she concluded by acknowledging Him as the Most High King, "the Messiah". The Good News is: He will do the same for any of us. Just one sincere moment with Jesus has the power to turn around a life forever.

Knowing God through His word

By Dr. Billy Holland

Even with something as simple as praying and reading the Bible every day, it's a challenge even to those who are determined and sincerely seeking God's divine guidance. As a Christian writer and teacher, I encourage everyone to make time and find the secret place of God's presence where they can spend quality moments alone with Him. I've noticed a huge difference between reading non-religious books and reading the Bible. There is no resistance when reading novels and ordinary books, but when we read and study the Bible, alarms sound, and the atmosphere changes as it draws the attention of dark spiritual forces. I realize some believe this is silly and there is no such thing as invisible entities trying to hinder us, but when we make a vow to obey Christ, we not only face hostility from our carnal nature, but also aggressive attacks from demonic enemies who oppose God. I'm not condemning those who read secular books, watch movies, or play video games, etc., but would you be surprised if I told you that I know church members who have confessed they never read the Bible? How can a Christian know God personally or understand what He requires if we refuse to read or study His word? What about passages such as Matthew 4:4? "But Jesus answered and said, it is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God." Are there individuals who can spend significant amounts of time entertaining themselves while also being devoted to daily prayer and Bible study? The concern comes when the hours people spend on their phones, internet, and television add up to be significantly more than the time they spend in prayer and absorbing God's instructions. There was a time when statements like this were respected as truth and brought conviction to the listener. However, as compromising is more popular today than ever, lame excuses are now justified as legitimate reasons. As the religious continue to fall into the snare traps of rebellion, denial, and deception, we now commonly hear people declare how they do not want anyone meddling in their personal business. Lately, we've been talking about our responsibility to engage in intercessory prayer and spiritual warfare, and we cannot overemphasize how critical this is to those who have a passion to be an overcomer for Christ. Since God has explained the symbolism of our spiritual armor mentioned in Ephesians chapter six, we are left to ponder why a person who says they are a servant of God would ignore it. Why is it that some church-goers assume the pastor and elders do the work of the ministry while the average pew sitter is exempt? Many believe that if they contribute money to the church, this is all they need to do. However, if a person is truly saved and filled with the Holy Spirit, they also have ears to hear what God's Spirit is telling them to do. Every Christian has been given the gifts, talents, anointing, authority, and the fruits of the Holy Spirit, which means we are commanded to walk, work, and obey His voice. We read in I Corinthians 12:4-6, Matthew 28:15-20, Acts 1:8, and II Corinthians 3:5-6, that as the Lord's disciples, we are responsible for doing the work of ministry, and be constantly aware of His presence. Every thought and deed should be a reflection of God's love and grace, and if it is not, we are guilty of the sins of omission. I Peter 4:10 is not a suggestion. "Each of you should use whatever gift you have received to serve others, as faithful stewards of God's grace in its various forms." Choosing to live in denial and only think happy thoughts does not mean the spiritual war between light and darkness is not raging all around us. Thomas Gray, an eighteenth-century poet, declared, "What you don't know can't hurt you," but we know this reveals the immaturity and deception of those who take comfort in false security. It's probable the devil would not need to waste his time hindering lukewarm religious individuals, as they are no real threat to his agenda. In fact, they are helping promote Satan's twisted and distorted philosophies. It's the devoted and obedient follower of Jesus who reads their Bibles and intercedes, and are engaged on the front-lines of spiritual combat. The dark side fears the children of God as demons know that greater is He that lives in us than he that is in the world. Dr. Holland is an ordained minister, chaplain, and author. The bitter cup of legalism

By Brandon Bramlett
Pastor - Bandana Baptist Church

Coffee was once considered the devil's drink of choice. Because coffee was popular among Muslims who drank it to stay awake during their evening worship services, Roman Catholic Church leaders during the 16th century claimed that it was a demonic concoction "of Islamic infidels." That is, until Pope Clement VIII gave it a taste—and it didn't take long for him to bless the bean. "This Satan's drink is so delicious," he remarked, "it would be a pity to let the infidels have exclusive use of it. We shall fool Satan by baptizing it." And immediately, coffee conquered the continent and flowed all the way to the mugs we fill every morning. Coffee-hating legalists nearly missed out on one of God's greatest gifts to mankind, and legalism continues to rob believers of God's gifts of joy, grace, peace, and Christian liberty. Legalism, if you didn't know, is when we add man-made rules and religious traditions to God's word, grading our holiness and that of others based on restrictions God never gave us in the Scripture. Legalism turns us into spiritual hall monitors who police piety based on personal preferences. And legalism rears its ugly head when we measure spirituality by clothing choices, denominational traditions, worship music styles, and strict abstinence from activities not explicitly prohibited in the Bible—things like watching secular movies, wearing blue jeans to church, or enjoying classic rock music. The Pharisees of Jesus' time were steeped in legalism, demonstrated by their indignant insinuation that His disciples were heathen-like sinners because they didn't ceremonially wash their hands before eating (Mark 7:1-5). The apostle Paul warned believers about the danger of legalism in Colossians 2:20-23, "You have died with Christ, and he has set you free from the spiritual powers of this world. So why do you keep on following the rules of the world, such as, "Don't handle! Don't taste! Don't touch!'"? Such rules are mere human teachings about things that deteriorate as we use them. These rules may seem wise because they require strong devotion, pious self-denial, and severe bodily discipline. But they provide no help in conquering a person's evil desires" (NLT). Simply put, legalism may appear holy, but it does not make you holy. It may keep your hands clean, but it cannot keep your heart pure. However, the remedy for legalism is not swerving to the opposite extreme and indulging in unrestrained and careless conduct. The solution is also not more rules—the answer is more Jesus (Col. 2:6). And we must obey the Lord out of gratitude for His saving grace (cf. 2 Cor. 5:14-15; Titus 2:11-12), and carefully assess our obedience according to what God has clearly written in His word. Additionally, we ought to enjoy and embrace the good gifts of God's creation without guilt, and exercise wisdom while doing so. Otherwise, we will dilute the sweet cup of God's grace and drink the bitter cup of legalism.

Taylor University public relations class wins gold in International MarCom Awards

By Kylie Roggie

Taylor University’s Public Relations (PR) Cases & Campaigns class earned a Gold Award from the MarCom Awards for their innovative public relations campaign with Main Street Fairmount (MSF). The recognition from 6,000 entries from throughout the United States, Canada, and 41 other countries honors the class’s creativity, strategy, and impact in connecting with the local community. In fall 2024, students in Professor Donna Downs’ class partnered with MSF to develop an 18-month campaign promoting the organization to residents and businesses of Fairmount, a town nearby campus. The goal was to increase visibility and engagement, especially among younger generations, while celebrating the town’s historic charm. Throughout the semester, students conducted extensive research to create clear goals, objectives, strategies, and tactics for the campaign. Once the semester ended, the class handed the project to MSF to continue implementation and track results. “Working with a real client motivated us as a class to think outside the box to work around the wants and goals of Fairmount,” Olivia Nairn, senior PR major said. “I hope it helps bring the community together and strengthens their ability to communicate, collaborate, and support one another, ultimately creating a lasting impact.” The Marcom Awards is an international creative competition that recognizes outstanding achievement by marketing and communication professionals. Administered and judged by the Association of Marketing and Communication Professionals (AMCP), the awards honor work that exceeds industry standards in creativity, execution, and impact. Taylor University’s Gold Award distinguishes the class as leaders in innovative, applied public relations practice.

Keep pets safe this Halloween

Halloween is an annual celebration that many children and adults look forward to each October. From the mysterious and the macabre to the goofy and gregarious, Halloween speaks to people in many different ways. And with the opportunity to accumulate several pounds of sugary treasure after a few hours of trick-or-treating, is it any wonder celebrants love Halloween? While Halloween hijinks may be ideal fun for plenty of ghosts and ghouls, companion animals may not be so enthusiastic come October 31. In fact, Halloween can be a source of stress and even dangerous for many pets. Here are some things pet parents should keep in mind prior to Halloween.

Costumes
Pet costumes are popular and can help owners and their pets coordinate for Halloween. Some pets may find costumes uncomfortable or frightening. For those with a mind toward creative costume coordination, introducing the costume to the pet slowly and gradually can help ease the transition. Allow the pet to sniff the costume and put treats nearby to indicate it is no threat. If the pet simply will not warm to the idea of a costume, it’s best not to force the issue.

Glow sticks
Glow sticks are a safe way for children to enjoy some spooky fun

on Halloween night and become more visible when the sun sets. But those glow sticks may be attractive to pets and they can bite them, ingesting the liquid. The ASPCA Animal Poison Control Center says typically pets experience a mild and self-limiting taste reaction to glow stick liquid. Wiping off the excess with a damp cloth to help prevent the pet from licking again and having another reaction can help.

Accessibility to candy

One of the biggest Halloween dangers for pets is the accessibility of candy, especially chocolate. Chocolate is toxic and particularly dangerous to dogs. Chocolate with high amounts of cacao is especially dangerous. Raisins and gum with the artificial sweetener xylitol also are problematic. Candy wrappers can get stuck in the intestinal tract and cause a life-threatening blockage. Lock candy away so pets can’t get into it.

Nerves
Many youngsters will ring the door bell on Halloween. Anxious pets, and even those that normally aren’t nervous with visitors, may be overwhelmed. Keep pets in a dark, calm room away from the door to reduce anxiety and make it less likely skittish pets will escape the home and get lost. Understanding common Halloween dangers can help keep pets safe on this fun-filled holiday.

What to do with leftover Halloween candy

What can be better than spending a day with friends, decked out in costume as you accumulate a mountain of sweet treats? That's what trick-or-treaters do every Halloween, and sometimes the cache of candy is more than a person can consume in a lifetime. When October rolls into November and Thanksgiving is on the horizon, few people want to be staring at a witch's cauldron full of chocolate bars. Rather than be wasteful and throw it away, they can utilize that candy in many different ways.

- S'mores cookie: Turn miniature chocolate bars into a campfire treat with a cookie twist. Press premade cookie dough into a round cast iron skillet and bake until cooked throughout.
- Add chopped up pieces of chocolate and marshmallows on top, and place under the broiler a few minutes until melted and gooey. Slice up to serve or dig in with spoons.
- Confectionary pizza: Purchase premade pizza dough or make your own. Bake the dough on a pan with no toppings. Afterwards, spread a layer of peanut butter or hazelnut spread on top. Then set up a fixings bar with various candies that others can add to their pizza slices. Options include chocolate candies, miniature pretzels, marshmallows, or gummy candies.
- Stained glass cookies: Turn hard candies (like Jolly Ranchers®) into works of art. Fill sugar cookie cutouts with hard candies in the middle. When the cookies bake, the candies will melt and then turn soft after cooling.
- Candy-topped brownies: Brownies are delicious on their own, but they're even better with some embellishments. Mix chopped caramels into the batter, or add other candies for flavor and fun.
- Candy bark: Melt down any chocolate you may have and spread it on a baking sheet. Sprinkle chopped up leftover candy on top and allow to cool. Break into pieces for a homemade chocolate bark.
- Gingerbread house: Save the candy in a zip-top bag for freshness and reserve for decorating gingerbread houses around the holidays.

- Birthday piñata: If there is a birthday on the horizon, use the Halloween candy to stuff the piñata.
- Parade route: Veteran's Day parades are held each November. Start a new tradition in town where donated candy will be tossed out to the crowd by those marching in the parade.
- Donate: Various organizations will gather and ship leftover candy to troops stationed overseas or donate the goods to first responders, veterans and others.

It's fun to gather treats on Halloween. But when the collected candy is simply too much to eat, there are various ways to put it to good use.

Safe trick-or-treating tips

Halloween is enjoyed by people of all ages, but few get a bigger kick out of the holiday than children. There are costumes to be worn, time spent with friends and the opportunity to collect free candy and other treats.

Although Halloween can be a fun time, the Children's Safety Network warns that it's also a time when accidents can happen. According to the CSN, the most dangerous day for child pedestrians is Halloween, with two times as many child pedestrians dying on Halloween compared to other days. It is essential to prioritize safety on Halloween, and following these guidelines can help.

- Make sure costumes are short. Costumes that drag on the floor are tripping hazards, which can lead to injury. Be sure that costumes do not cover the feet or drag on the ground.
- Trick-or-treat in groups. Children are safer in numbers due to the increased visibility of a crowd and because, if something happens, others can call for help. Parents can use their discretion on what age they feel is mature enough to let children go out alone. Until then, children should be accompanied by adults.
- Improve visibility. It's important to be seen while trick-or-treating, and that can be achieved by making sure costumes and trick-or-treat bags feature reflective tape. Trick-or-treaters also can carry flashlights or glow sticks to improve visibility, and stick to areas with streetlights if going out after dark.
- Stay on sidewalks. Whenever possible, trick-or-treaters should stick to the sidewalks and avoid walking on the roads. This may not always be possible in neighborhoods without sidewalks, where parents and youngsters must be especially careful.
- Eat before trick-or-treating. A meal or snack before trick-or-treating can reduce the tendency to fill up on candy while out and about. All candy and other treats should be inspected by an adult before it is eaten.
- Keep pets locked away. Animals can become skittish when there are many people loitering outside of homes or ringing doorbells. Keep pets in a quiet room away from the action to prevent them from getting loose, injured or scared enough to bite or scratch someone.
- Avoid masks that obstruct vision. It can be hard to see peripherally with a mask on, so avoid costumes with masks that compromise vision.
- Test out makeup beforehand. All makeup used for costumes should be tested for allergic reactions prior to use. Heed the warnings on packaging and avoid putting makeup too close to the eyes or lips.

These are some safety strategies designed to keep Halloween fun and incident-free this year.
